EDITORIAL

Looking at the pictures in this year's Kingia got me to thinking that the one thing that stands out about this school is that it is a place where anyone who is willing to get involved can have an absolutely terrific time.

The images and articles celebrate the myriad of opportunities available to students at Bunbury Senior High School.

This year's magazine is a celebration of staff and students who have extended themselves and have done something to be involved in the life of the school.

I would like to thank all of the people who assisted with the taking of pictures, the writing of articles or the preparations for this magazine - without their hard work the Kingia would never be produced.

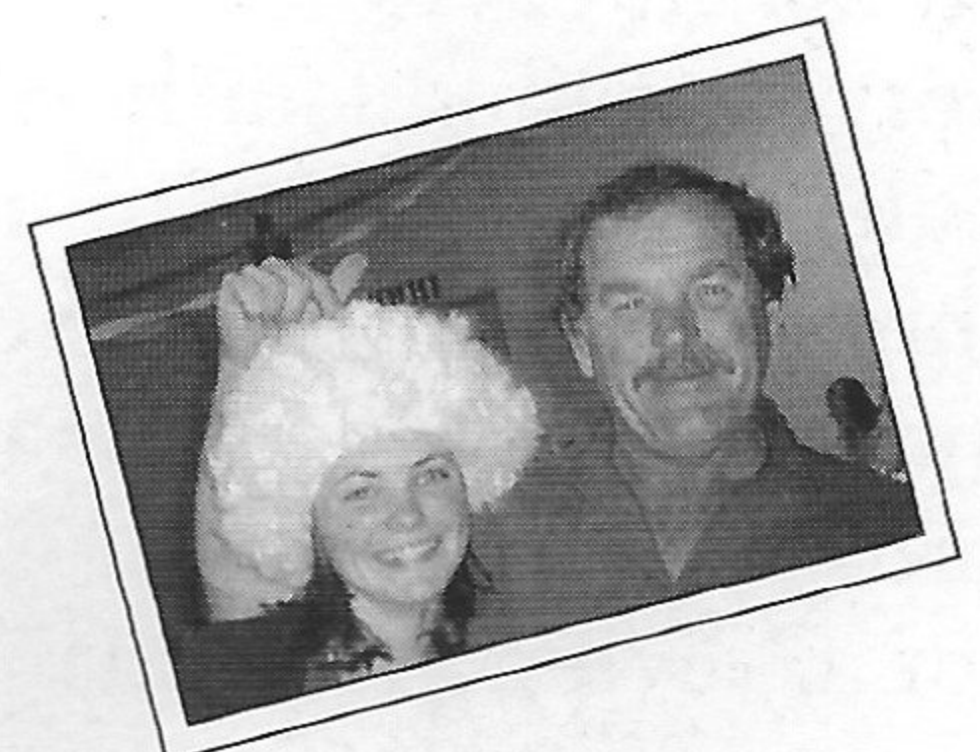

Special mention must go to Nathan Hobby our resident literary genius, for his entertaining articles and insights in this year's magazine.

I hope that the life of Bunbury Senior High School has been accurately captured in this record of events and that you can look back fondly on 1998 and remember the good times we shared.

PRINCIPAL'S ADDRESS

1998 has been a full and exciting year at Bunbury SHS. I didn't know what I was letting myself in for when I came to this "school with a view" and a 75 year history, but I have quickly learned that this is a special school, on a very special site, that holds a very special place in the heart of its community.

I have been made to feel so welcome by students, parents and staff alike, and I have really enjoyed the richness of life that BSHS offers. Our 75th Anniversary Celebrations were a major event that amply demonstrated the great affection for and ownership of their school that ex-students from all decades have. It was most apt that the official opening of the Performing Arts Centre occurred at the same time as it symbolised the school motto of moving forward.

There have been many successful achievements by students from all year levels in 1998 in many fields of endeavour. I have been most impressed by the number of students who have represented their state in sporting teams, those who have participated in international Maths and Science competitions, as well as the many other extra curricular activities which enhance the cultural fabric of the school such as dance and drama festivals, the Rock Eisteddfod, Art exhibitions, the Reunion Island exchange visit, Italian exchange program, concert band and other musical events, photography and Outdoor Education camps. There is always something going on at Bunbury SHS that expands the life and learning experiences of its students, and the staff are to be congratulated and thanked for their tremendous efforts in providing these opportunities.

Significant development is occurring in the curriculum area with staff working towards implementing a new framework covering eight learning areas. There will be greater emphasis on collaborative planning between teachers across various learning areas, especially in Year 8 in 1999, and a more student-centred approach where students will be much more involved in and responsible for planning their own learning. Strong developments have also been occurring in the vocational education courses in the school which greatly enhance students' "work readiness". A major technology grant for 1999 will see improvements in the provision of computers and other related technology in classrooms.

Exciting advances have also been made in the pastoral care area with a strong team of eight year coordinators appointed for 1999, and the launching of a whole school merit system. Student behaviour management processes and philosophies have also undergone major review and we should see benefits from this next year.

At the end of my first year at "Bunno" I must say I am very proud to be here and to feel part of the very extended family that this school community is. Its arms reach out to all parts of the state, nation and the world, into all walks of life and then bend lovingly around its members when they need special care or attention. There is a precious thread that binds past and present staff and students together made up of many years of tradition and family connections, as well as pride and a warmth in the nature of the people who have lived and worked here. I thank you all for allowing me to share this family experience.

Painting Presented to Bunbury SHS by the school's ASSPA Committee

The Bunbury Senior High School's Emblem at the top of the painting represents the School, it's Past, Present and Future.

The two dot circles at the top of the painting show the Staff and their unique talents, academic and non academic.

The two dot circles to the outer edge of the middle of the painting portray the Students at Bunbury Senior High School.

The bottom dot circle represents the Families of Students and Staff and the various Committees that lend support to the School such as Parents and Friends, Canteen Volunteers, etc

The central dot circle represents the ASSPA Committee nurturing and educating towards understanding and respect for Aboriginal People and their Culture.

The dot bands linking the dot circles portrays the diverse pathways Staff and Students will and have taken.

The Spirit figures at the bottom of the painting symbolise a vision of Students and Staff going into the future with the freedom that education brings enabling them to make informed decisions and to form opinions with intelligence and tolerance.

The dot bands at the bottom of the painting represents the future and the dreams and aspirations of Students and Staff at Bunbury Senior High School.

Bunbury Senior High School 75th Anniversary

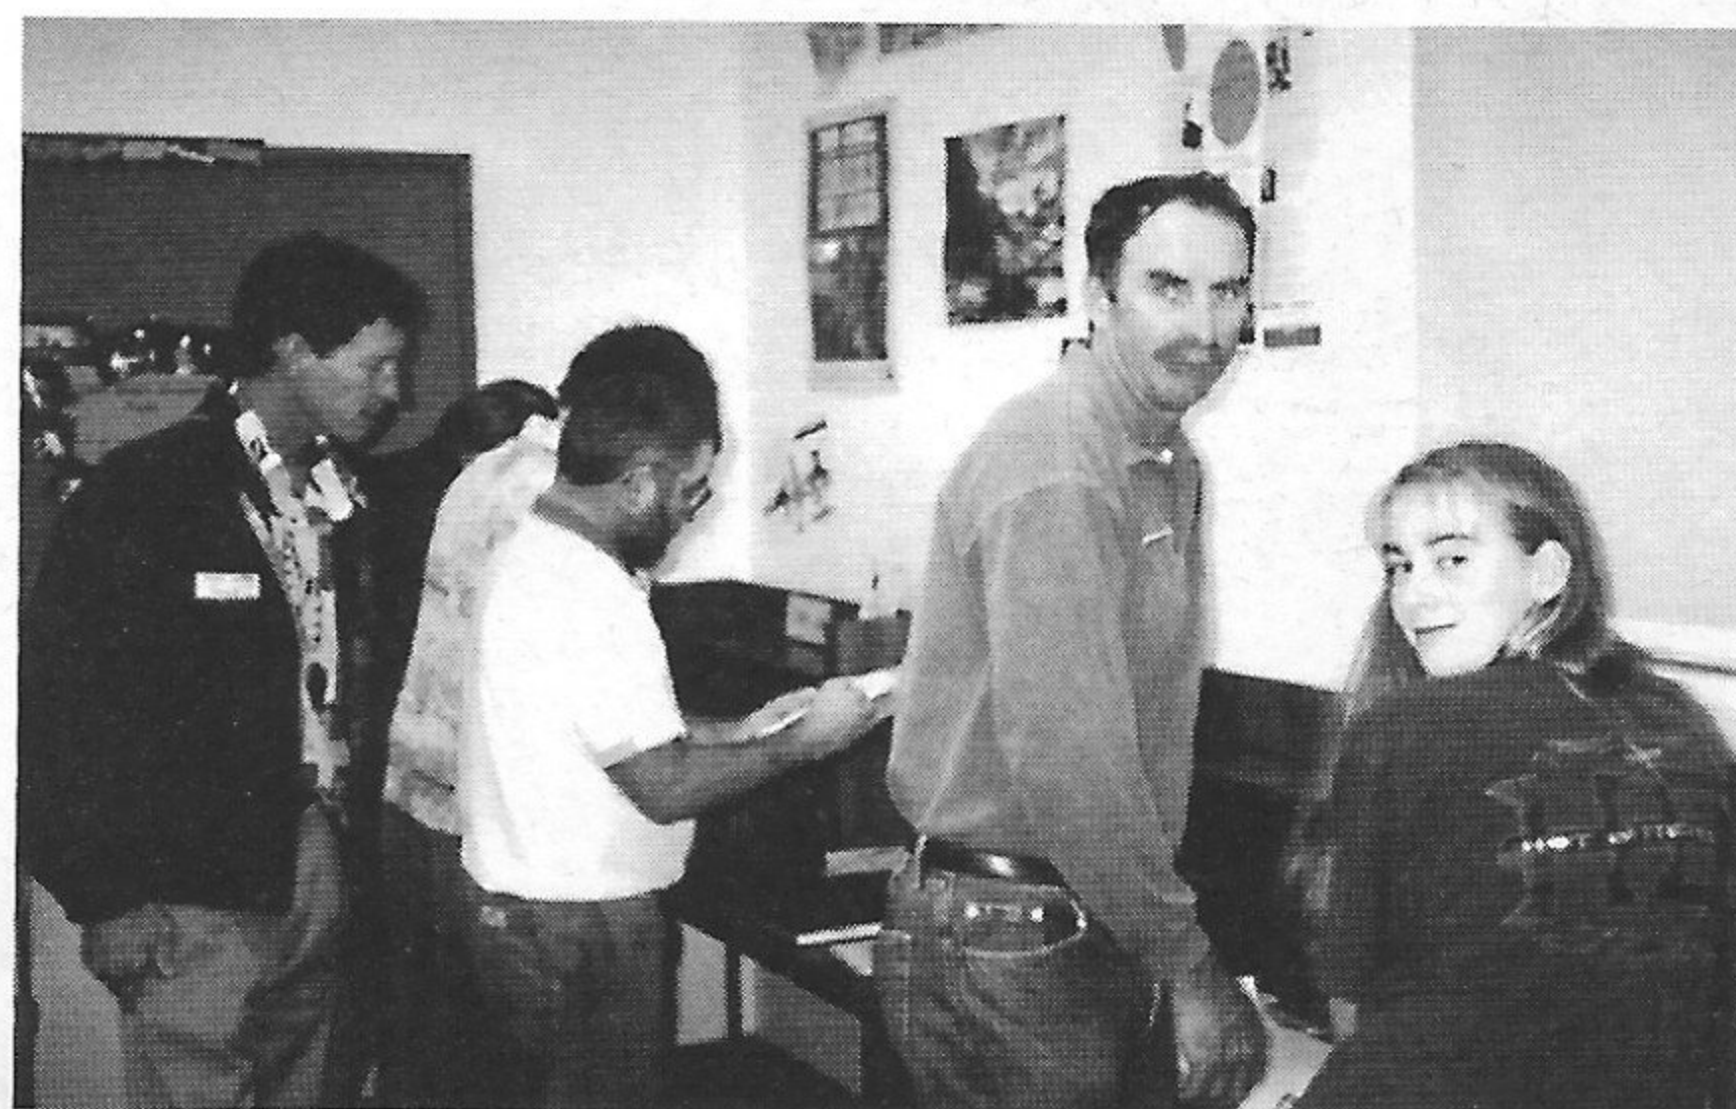

Bunbury Senior High School proudly celebrated its 75th Anniversary this year on Saturday, 9th May. After the Mayoral Reception on Friday night, hundreds of past and present staff and students enthusiastically explored the grounds the next day to relive old memories and talk about experiences of the "old school days".

The historical display was housed in the Library. A huge project initiated by Mrs. Val Mutton, it reflected the rich history and unique traditions of a school strongly supported by its local community. The Bunbury Historical Society provided memorabilia such as rulers, pencil cases and ink wells. We appreciated their contribution.

Exclamations of surprise and joy greeted many individuals as they renewed acquaintances and traded stories. Students from Year 9 conducted tours around the school and were heartened to hear the warmth and favour with which the visitors recalled familiar sites.

Drama, dance, singing and music students entertained audiences during the day. The Bunbury Oral History group invited participants to record anecdotes about their past experiences at school. Official year group photos were taken and people were encouraged to sign the Visitors' book before being issued with a Certificate of Attendance.

An Anniversary Reunion Dinner was held at the Lord Forrest in the evening to round off an exciting day.

YEAR 8

Busseilton Camp '98

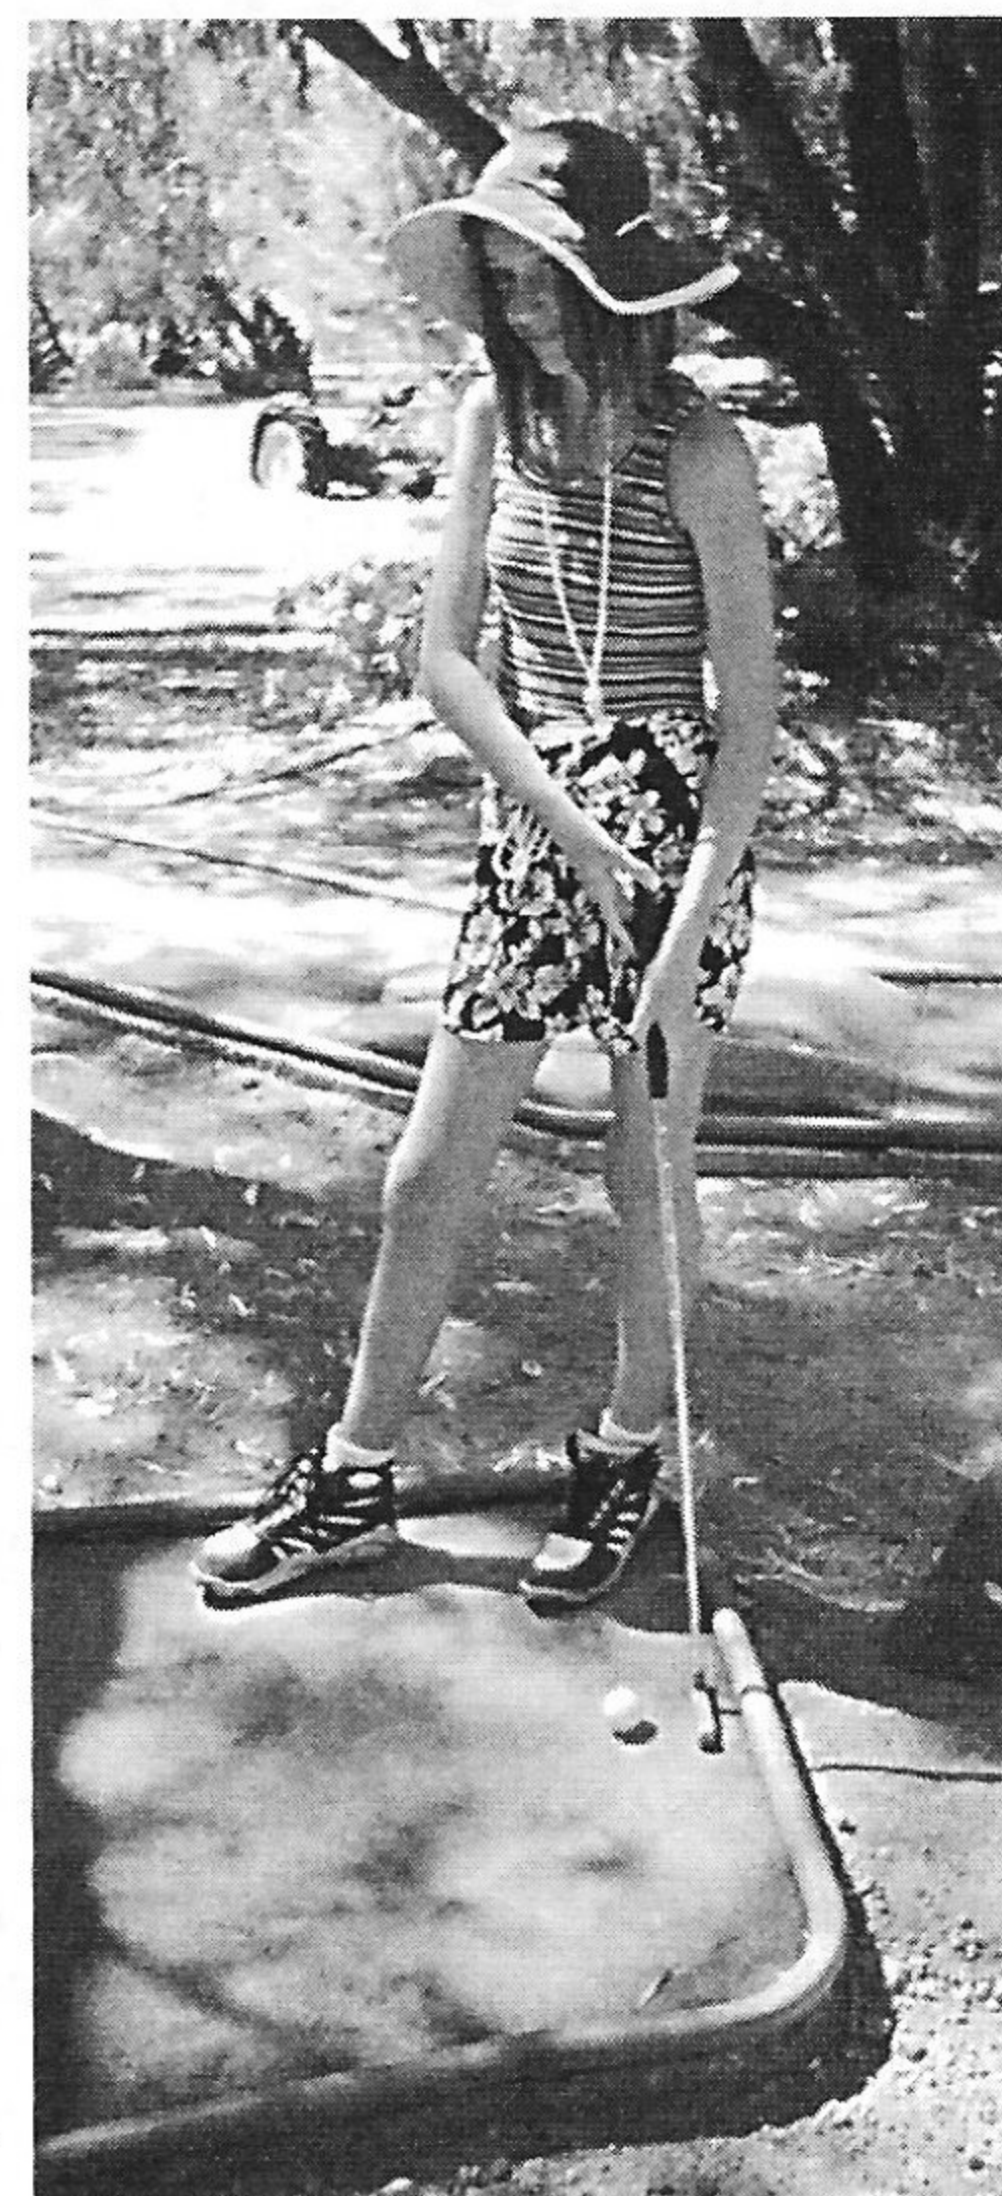

Camp 1

Finally the day we have all been waiting for has come! All the students, approximately 120, sat outside the gym waiting to load the bus. After a few words from the teachers we ran to the bus, through the sprinklers of course.

When the bus had been loaded we headed off. The trip lasted about an hour. We arrived and jumped out of the bus, we were allocated dorms then went swimming with hundreds of stingers.

Everyday we did an activity. On Monday 8S & 8L did rafting and canoeing. We made our raft out of five drums and some pine poles. We took it out to see if it floated. It did but after about half an hour, it fell to bits! That night we had a mini quiz and went to bed but not to sleep, our dorm stayed up until 2.30am. A few people fell asleep earlier and Natasha tried to pour orange juice on them.

In the morning, we had to walk to the rocks then we swam, had breakfast, swam, canoed and went to archery and mini golf. When our group had finished archery, the bus left Katy and myself behind. We had to run to the fence and shout out "STOP" and feeling very embarrassed, climbed into the bus. When we got back we did thinking skills with Mr Castieau and coordination and argumentative skills with Mr Waddy.

That night, the prefects came and we played games such as relays (holding a baton between our legs), passing a lifesaver around on a toothpick and a volleyball skills game. After this we had a quiz in groups of six, the group I was in won.

On Wednesday morning, our dorm didn't wake up until Mrs Smith came in and told us everybody else had started the walk. That morning, we had free time at the beach from 8.30-10.30am then we packed and waited for the others to come. They came, we had lunch and left.

Camp 2

The second camp started on the bus, everyone scrambling for the best seats. Then after roll call, some shouts from Mr Robb of no seat swapping and no eating (too late for some people), we left.

We arrived in Busselton and there was chaos as people from the second camp greeted their friends and were introduced to other people in the first. A lunch of a sausage sizzle and we farewelled the first camp.

After unpacking, everyone headed to the beach. Almost immediately, stingers were apparent with numerous people getting stung. They left to nurse their wounds and the brave swam on or tried out canoes. It was quite an experience learning how to get them to go straight!

Later that night, there was a quiz night. Practically all tables did well and even the ones that didn't do as well still had fun.

The next day started out horribly with us being woken up at 6.00am for a run/walk on the beach. Whatever place you came was the order in which you had breakfast. Of course, the teachers conveniently forgot to mention that.

The rest of the day was spent doing activities with our Forms, either cricket, archery and mini golf or beach activities. Our Form went to archery and mini golf in the afternoon. Everyone had lots of fun, even those of us who vowed archery would never become our future profession.

That night we played some hilarious icebreakers with the prefects. After we had all gone to bed, some of us just couldn't sleep and had to run laps until we could.

The next day, it was time to come home. We had a fantastic time on camp and made stacks of friends (the aim of the camp). We would like to thank all prefects and teachers, especially Mr Powell (the organiser) for making the camp possible.

Year 8 Teams

Our Year 8 teaching teams aim to ensure that each student in our care makes a positive and smooth transition between Primary and Secondary School. Our main priority is to get to know all of our students well so that we can help them, guide them and facilitate their learning as best we can.

We began this process with Year 7 orientation where we met for the first time to talk about Secondary School.

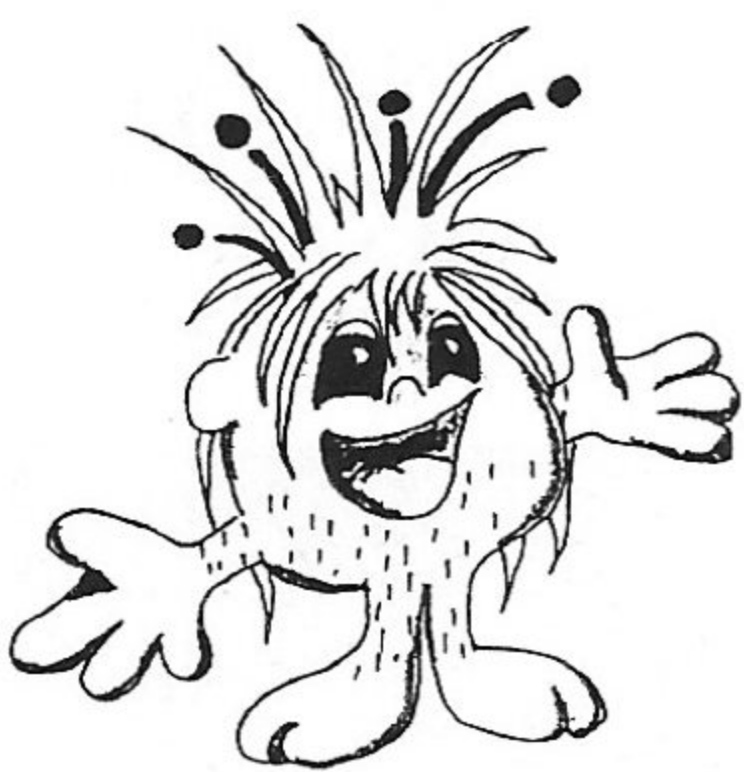

Then came Year 8 camp held early in first term followed by the year 8 dinner for parents and teachers to meet. Regular meetings between team teachers were held throughout the year to discuss students' progress and planning issues.

Year 8 assemblies have been held this year also, and these were planned and run by the students to acknowledge student achievements, to entertain with performances and to give us relevant information.

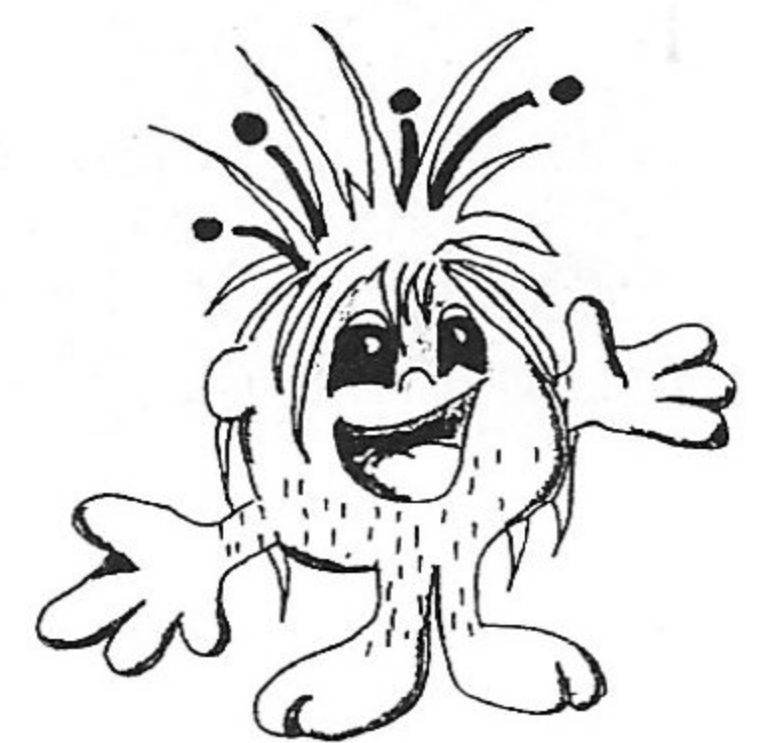

We have tried to keep parents in touch as much as possible with positive issues and problems as they have arisen, and have welcomed the extensive parent contact that we have received.

As our students prepare to move into year 9 they will know that their teachers from year 8 know them well, care for them, and will continue to have an interest in their progress through secondary school. We wish this very good group of Year 8's every success next year.

KINGIA SAM HAS ARRIVED!

At the beginning of term 4 the Student Services Team launched a school wide System for Awarding Merits (code-named SAM) to encourage and reward positive student behaviour in a number of areas.

Some of your students may have already come home with Merit slips from various teachers. All staff have been issued with booklets of Merit slips which have a carbon copy.

As well as the acknowledgment of the slip itself, students are being asked to give the copies to their Form Teachers for two purposes:

1. The Form Teacher will keep a tally of each student's merits so that when they reach target goals of 25, 50 or 75 they will receive a bronze, silver or gold certificate.

2. The copy will go into a draw which year Coordinators will operate on a regular basis and students have the chance of winning a small prize.

The Bronze, Silver and Gold certificates will entitle students to certain privileges which will be negotiated with parents. They will also be excellent additions to student folios of achievement. We hope these encouragement's will result in some very positive outcomes in students' behaviour and work ethic.

A one point loss in the final, a few minor casualties, but hey, the senior debate team - Michelle Walker, Kristy Mitchell and Gemma McLean - came out of Country Week eager for fresh blood.

With the aid of Mrs. Dykstra we entered the Worksafe Week School Debating competition - a three round debate with Grammar. We had to win. It was public school pride on the line.

The day of the debate arrived and after being warned several times that you should not leave the writing of your speech to the last minute, or you will regret it, we ALL left it to the last minute.

We had a series of nervous breakdowns and made our way down town to have something to eat to calm our nerves. We got some weird looks from the other customers - it's not every day you see three women in blazers and skirt in the middle of winter, writing speeches on scraps of paper and serviettes.

It was time. None of us thought our food would stay down for the entire debate. It was long and torrid, and we wished it would just go away. Finally it was over and we faced an anxious wait. The adjudicators emerged to announce that Grammar had won the first debate on "Accidents in the Workplace are Inevitable".

Public school pride looking wounded, we began our research for the second debate with downcast spirits. By the next Monday we again had left our speeches to the last minute. This debate was held in the Bunbury Tower. It was every bit as gruelling as the first one.

The adjudicators retired for a nerve wracking fifteen minutes, only to emerge and announce the triumphant comeback of Bunbury Senior High School!

The series was tied at one all. We were back in the running and we decided to give it our all. We were going to make sure that we had our speeches written and practised before the day of the final.

Did that happen?

No. Dressed to the nine's and with the determination of a steam train we again nervously entered the auditorium. The third and final epic debate stretched forever. But finally it was over, the adjudicators left the room. It was the longest twenty minutes of our lives. Well... that's a bit of an exaggeration - but it was up there.

We're eternal pessimists. We were certain we'd lost. We could tell....."Oh my god, we have lost, I know it"

The adjudicators were back and they talked on for five minutes, congratulating both teams on their performance. The standard fare of 'you're all winners, there are no losers'.

But we knew differently. When the judge announced Bunbury Senior High to be the champions, winning by a total of 1 point, we were filled with a soaring feeling. There was hugging and kissing, and a lot of thanking the invaluable Mrs Dykstra.

WORKSAFE DEBATING COMPETITION

COUNTRY WEEK REPORTS

Speech Team

I would like to open this section on Country Week Speech by thanking you. Yes, thank you for taking time to read about how this year's speech team were so successful!

We had nine fit players who were in top form, the junior debating team included Danika Potter, Deanne Jones and Louise Owen. The upper school senior debating team had some great full forwards - Michelle Walker, Kristy Mitchell and Gemma McLean.

The lower school prepared talk entertained with their intriguing talk on Bob Marley and his effect on music and the world presented by Tarryn Phillips, Danika Potter and Deanne Jones. The upper school senior speech team consisted of two competitive players both in fine form and with skill to die for, they were Phillipa Chandler and Steven Milne.

Our Coach, Mrs. Dykstra was fantastic. She helped us all out with her knowledge on defence and attack with either debating or speech. As with every year, the rest of the Country Week team was enthusiastic with their support, they would cheer "go speech team you'll kill em" then whisper under their breathe, thinking we could not hear them, "Thank God I'm not in speech. I've heard you have to actually write your own!".

However, after a debate watched by many football and hockey boys, the topic of conversation on the bus changed from "Alright guys, we have to watch the defence down the right wing" to "Don't you think the second speaker had poor rebuttals and no convincing arguments".

This year was on of the most successful years with the combined teams finishing second overall

Phillipa made the finals for the upper school speech prepared talk with her excellent speech on the triumphs involved with the school ball, this rightfully earned her second place.

Steven Milne was fortunate enough to make the finals in two sections and came third from reciting a different type of "Goldilocks" in Oral Interpretation of Text, and won the prepared talk section. His prepared talk was how hard it is to study and how easy it is to get distracted.

Country Week speech was a lot of fun and is recommended to anyone who doesn't know one end of a hockey stick to another or who cannot kick a ball. The benefits of speech are endless - no pulled hamstrings or drenched clothes from the rain to name a few, as the guy in the "Dilmah" tea ad, would say "Do try it".

Football

Country Week finally arrived, everyone was pumped. We left with large numbers and high hopes. As the first game approached the injuries started to rear their ugly little heads, even before the first bounce we had seven injuries:

Adam Morrison -Knee during warm up
Adrian Barrett - over enthusiasm caused ankle sprain

Matt Bailey - serious cork from previous game
Shane Soulos - injury from previous game
Daniel Della Franca - Hamstring injury from previous game.

Grant Potter - Knee injury from previous game.

Our first game was against Katanning. The boys were all fired up, ready for a tough game – filled with lousy umpiring decisions. Fortunately, the umpires were not as bad as we expected and we came away 6 goals victors. Unfortunately another injury arose in the form of Bruce Pannuccio's broken toe.

With the boys all fired up after a convincing win, the double header against North Albany and Collie, unfortunately no-one told North Albany or Collie and we narrowly lost both games, and yes, more injuries with Peter Doherty and Jason Gerde out injured.

On the third day the boys spirits were on an all time low, it was up to Mr.Powell, our inspirational leader to get us fire up with a few repetitions of "Texas Ranger" and other songs within Powelly's repertoire.

The game was against the best side in our grade and after more running in the "warm up" than on the ground we had a narrow loss to Pinjarra. As you should expect by now the team had yet another set back with Ben Taylor tearing a hamstring ruling him out for the rest of the week.

Day four brought better tidings for the football team with a convincing win over Northam. By this time Mr. Powell realised that by washing the socks and jumpers the side played brilliantly, unfortunately every time he washed them, you seemed to have to try on a larger sized jumper to fit you.

The finals finally arrived, the boys were playing for third position and were all ready for a great win over Northam who we had beaten the previous day. We went out a little sure of ourselves and got a nasty shock when they scored the first few goals, luckily we pulled the margin back and won by 4 points.

Thanks to Mr Powell for coaching the 1998 footy side, the Year 10's for showing their true colours when it really mattered and the Year 12's did well by injuring themselves and allowing the Year 11's to get a game.

Girl's Basketball

The ride up to Perth proved uneventful except for Lisa Cartwright's comment, when she looked out of the bus window and exclaimed innocently "Look at all the birds". We were actually passing an airport (Silly!!)

The first night at the hotel we all crammed into one room for our team meeting. As we discussed team tactics Mrs Walker silently stressed over how she was going to sub ten girls on and off the court. Her system must have been good because we ended up winning Monday's game against Morawa. Feeling totally confident and pleased with ourselves we then went ahead and lost the next game.

The rest of the week went by in a flash. Smiles were never far away when Andrea was around with her 'Teletubby' impersonation and not to forget her mean rebounding. Christine and Marella graced us with their singing off court and playing style on court. We would have been lost without Dimity "energiser girl" and her boundless energy.- She kept going and going.

Alana and Marissa were only identified as "6" or "7" on the court and we'll never forget Alana's searing retort to her identical twin "Shut ya fat ugly head up!"

The two Lisa's, (Collard and Cartwright) fantastic passages of play will always be remembered, especially the way that Lisa Cartwright 'mopped' the boards after every foul with her bruising falls. Overall it was after an enjoyable week of basketball. We ended up as 7th out of 9 teams. Not a bad effort!

Most importantly everyone gained experience and team skills that they can use for future basketball.

Thanks for a great week girls and special thanks to Mrs Walker for coaching us.

Netball

The girl's Country Week netball team went away this year with only one aim in mind; to beat last years team's phenomenal record of one win.....and one win only. Early on in our training schedule, we discussed what was necessary to conquer this seemingly unbeatable feat, and decided that the team would be better off if we dropped a grade to C Grade.

(There is nothing wrong with C grade, you damn hockey boys!!!!)

Bolstered by our coach's improved coaching techniques that last year consisted of enthusiastic cheering and dancing on the sidelines, but now actually included coaching tips, the netball team set off for Perth in a little yellow bus named Buttercup. Captained by the two remaining players from last years team, myself and Mandy Sheehan, our team looked set for a good week of competition. We were aided in our cause by a brand new ball, one that was actually round, and a new set of uniforms. (Finally Benno!!!)

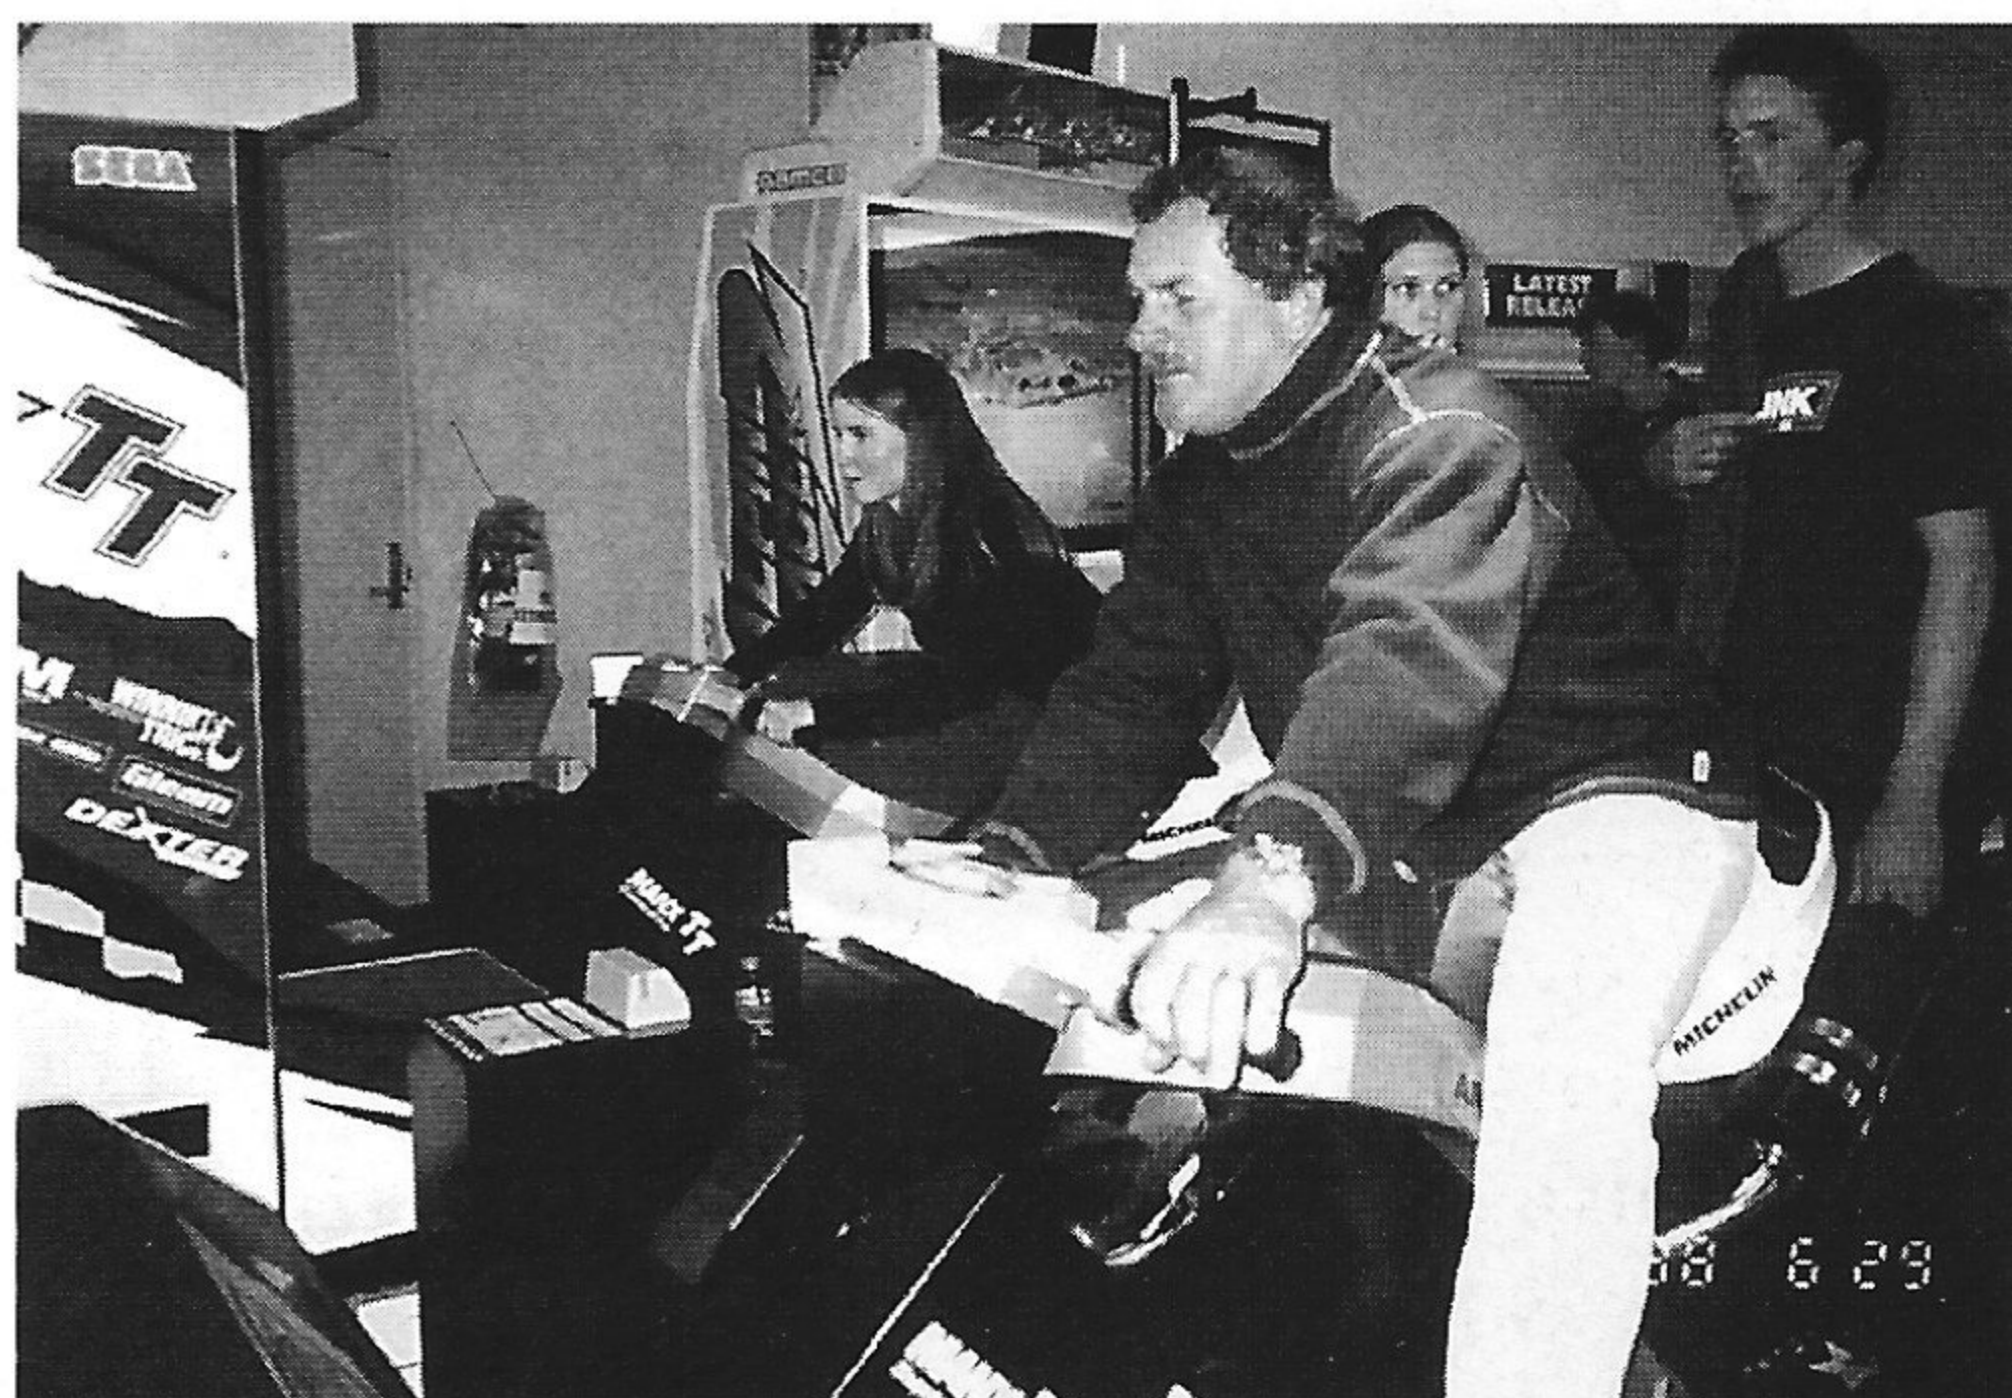

However, our strong beginning was hampered by Erin's visit to our room early Monday morning, looking tired and very very green. "I've been up all night throwing up," were her words, and the team was subsequently down one player, as most of her week was spent sleeping on our sidelines under a pile of jackets and jumpers. Despite this catastrophe, the team went into our first game very determined to defeat last years record. And defeat the record we did.....in the first game, and every one after that. We pulverised the opposition (I'm obviously writing this well after the week and have no idea of the names of any of our opposition!!) into submission by breaking yet another record from last year - the one for highest score. Mandy and Jonesy were fantastic in defence, keeping the other team to less than 5 goals a quarter, a feat they were to repeat in all but one quarter of all our games.

Our shooting forces of Elyssa, Angie and Christie kept our scores well above those of our opponents, while Jonesy and Mandy kept up their superb defence. Innes belted her way around the centre court, letting everyone know who was in charge, whilst myself, Rhiannon, Cara and Erin (when she finally made her recovery) ran up and down the wings helping in any way we could. However, in no way can our netball team be called a team of wimps and wussies. In a game in which Mrs. Sanders came to watch, Nines scored a yellow card....something almost unheard of in netball!!! Then, five minutes later, Rhiannon scored one from the same umpire. We suspect she was feeling a little power hungry and just got a little over anxious with the whistle and carefully cut piece of yellow cardboard. Despite these minor drawbacks, we went on to the grand final undefeated, our closest margin being one of 10 goals. A very close and rained out grand final saw us win the shield as premiers over Mandurah. (See, I remembered one name!).

However, probably one of our most enjoyable moments (excluding the final presentation ceremony) was when, while waiting for Miss P, we decided it would be fun to take Buttercup for a spin around the carpark. Mandy took the driving seat ready for a spin and proceeded to drive Buttercup 5 metres forward and 5 metres back again. The netball team would like to thank Miss P for coaching us, and all the people who came and supported us throughout the week. Oh, and yeah, a special thanks to Full Frontal (The TV show) for providing us with our theme song for the week.....

Netball, makes me want to pash the blokes,
Netball makes me want to tell dirty jokes,
Oh what a name, Oh what a game

Girl's Volleyball

Sunday: After weeks of rigorous training and practice, the time had finally arrived for the girls' volleyball team to test their strength at Countryweek. Teamed with the hockey boys for the trip to Perth and primed after achieving second place in a local competition, we were ready to go and conquer all that stood before us.

Monday: After an enthralling opening ceremony, we headed over to Challenge Stadium. With the games that afternoon, the announcement of our starting six was greeted with enthusiasm. Our first game against Esperance was a veritable thrashing, us winning both sets comfortably. We didn't want to tire ourselves out in our first match. The second game against Hedland was much like the first, as we knocked them into submission with our intimidating bandanas, our sheer talent and Kylee's unrelenting serving.

Tuesday: Shock! Horror! Amazement! We won again, coming from one set down to regroup and dominate the second half against North Albany. Dee's vocal slaying of the North Albany footy team was a highlight, as was Jodie's sensational spiking and Sarah Mc's dedicated dives.

Wednesday: Still dumbfounded by our 3 nil win/loss ratio, we went into our next game perhaps a little unprepared, or cocky. With the court surrounded by Bunbury High Supporters, our new look starting six just didn't gel and we couldn't do anything to quell the force of the Newman side. They handed down a humiliating loss but the disappointment was eased later in the day, when we cruised to victory against the Collie girls, winning 2 sets to 1.

Thursday: With 4 wins and 1 loss, we were all suddenly aware that victory in our final game against Karratha would ensure a grand final berth. The pressure was on. Our spies told us Karratha were good - indeed, they proved that in the first set. We went down 15-12. The stadium, filled to capacity with Bunbury High Supporters was rocking. Powelly's attempt at marking was greeted with cheers and loud whoops and was enough to inspire us to greater things. True to form, we pulled off another come-from-behind victory. Jubilation followed. We were through!! Our wonderful inexperienced side had amazed all with its talent and fighting spirit. Now our final hurdle - our nemesis Newman in the grand final.

Friday: A late night for some did not affect our hunger for victory. Newman were the clear favourites - undefeated all week and definite "A" grade contenders. We weren't deterred - the 'underdog' tag merely enhanced our desire to win. We went out firing, playing to the best of our ability. But so did they. We lost the first set 15-8. We knew we could regroup. We were the comeback Kings. We threw everything we had at them in the second set but credit must go to Newman, they held out against our onslaught winning 15-12. There are no second chances in volleyball but we were far from disgraced.

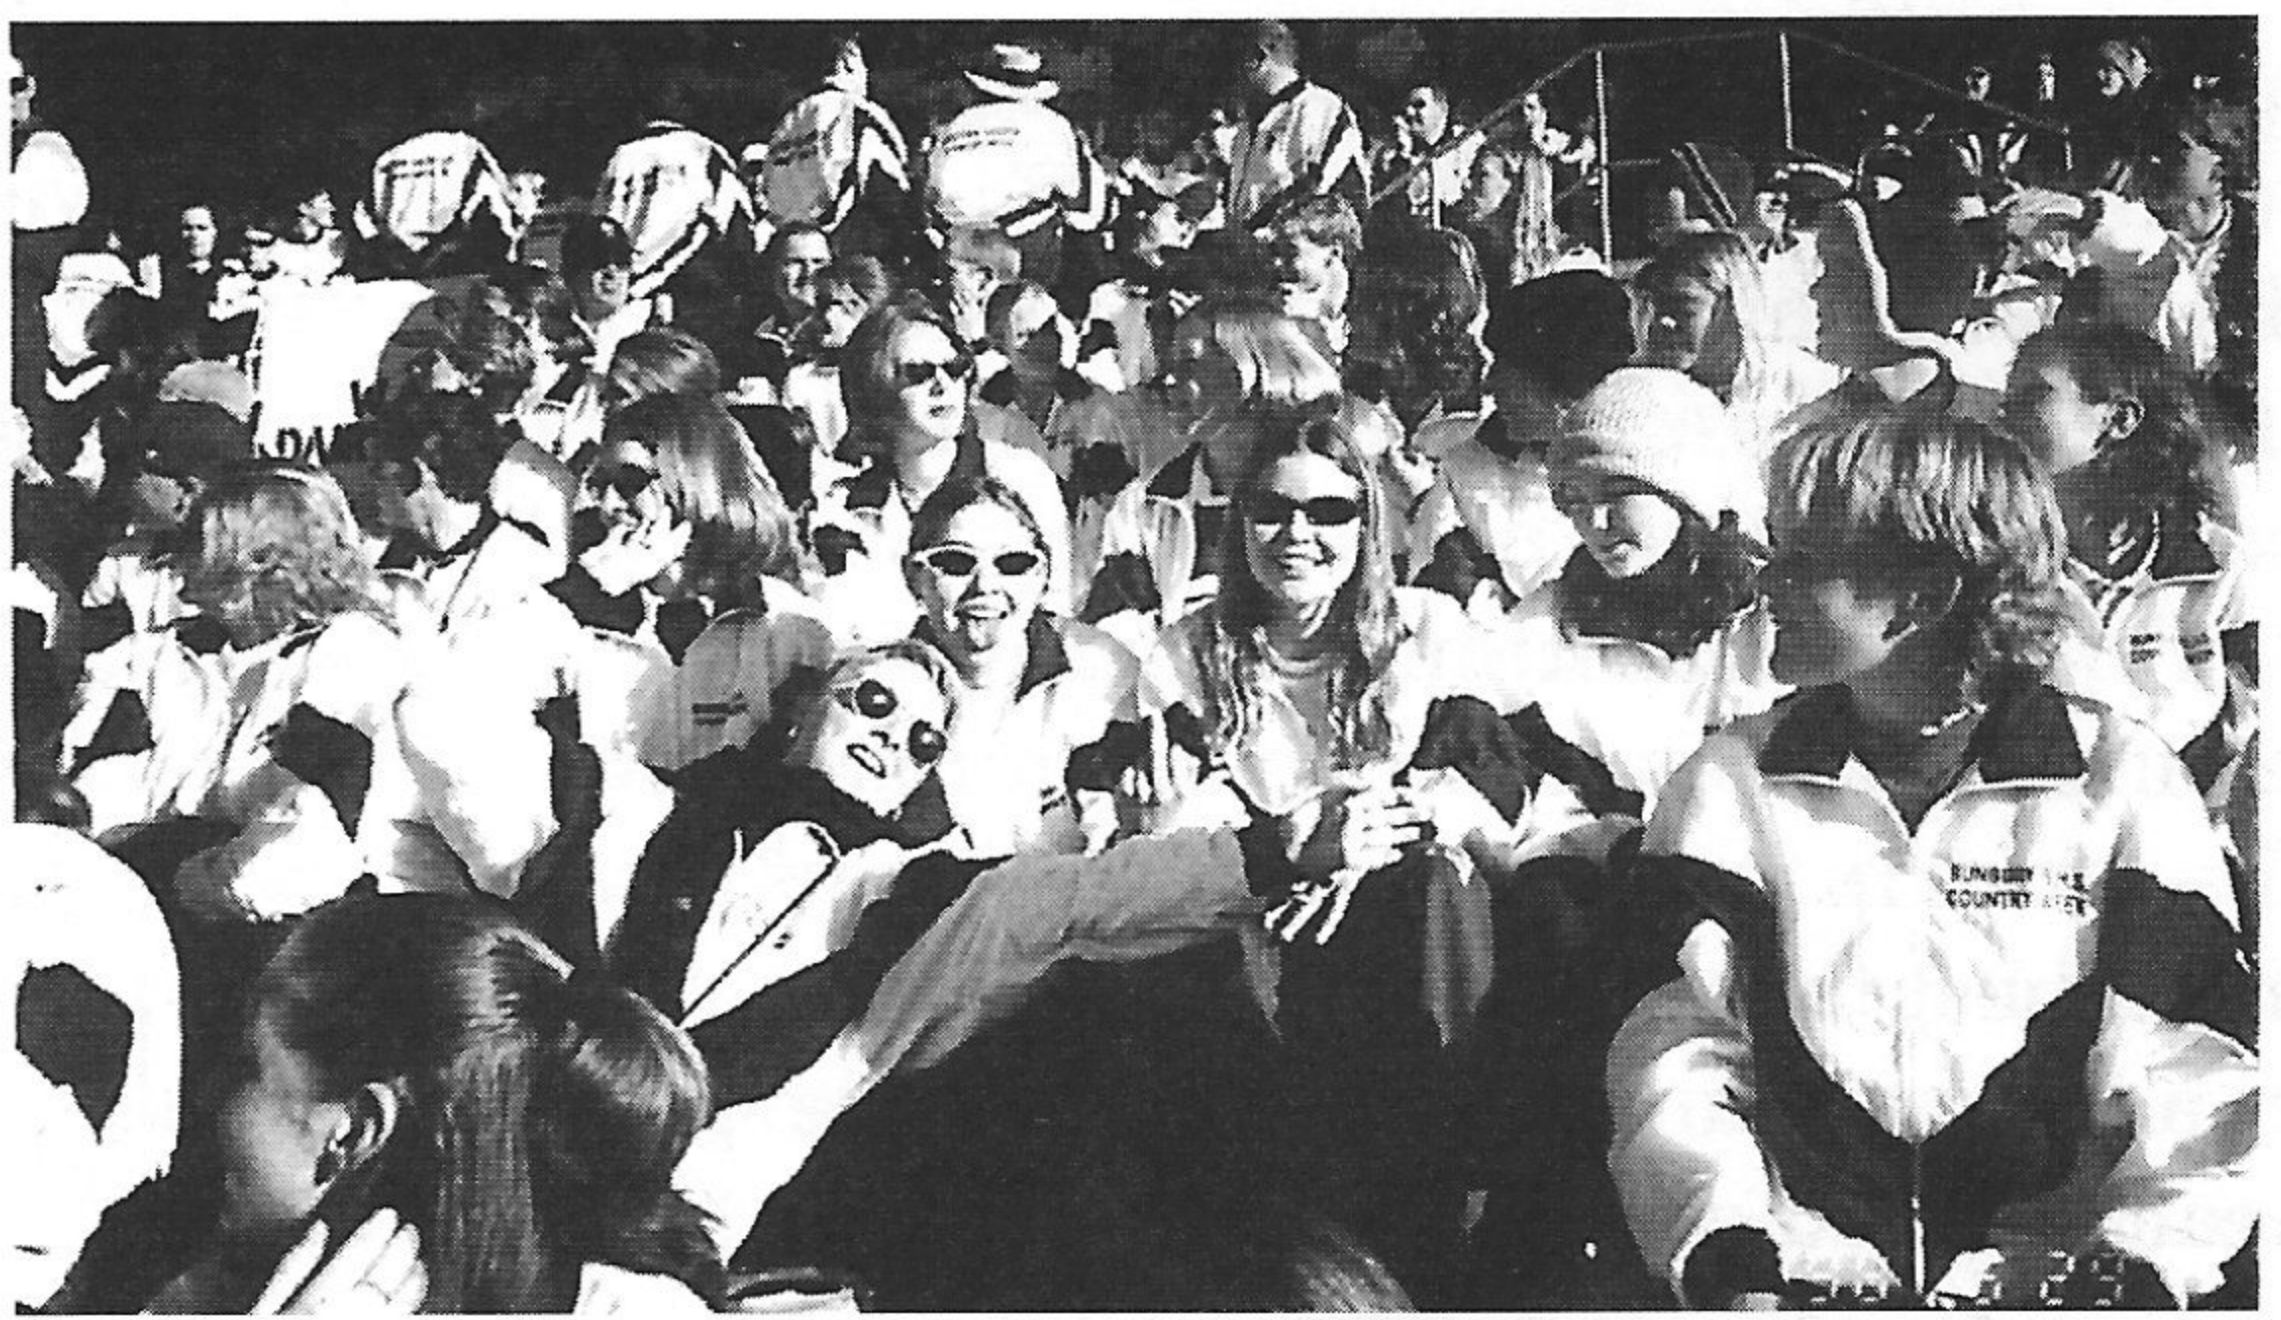

The trip home was an eventful one, as we were all swept up in the euphoria of the hockey boy's victory. Our loss was quickly forgotten as we celebrated with them.

Reaching the grand final at Countryweek is an achievement that cannot be discounted. Although we lost, everybody played their hearts out and we should all be really proud of our efforts. We certainly proved ourselves to be a real force.

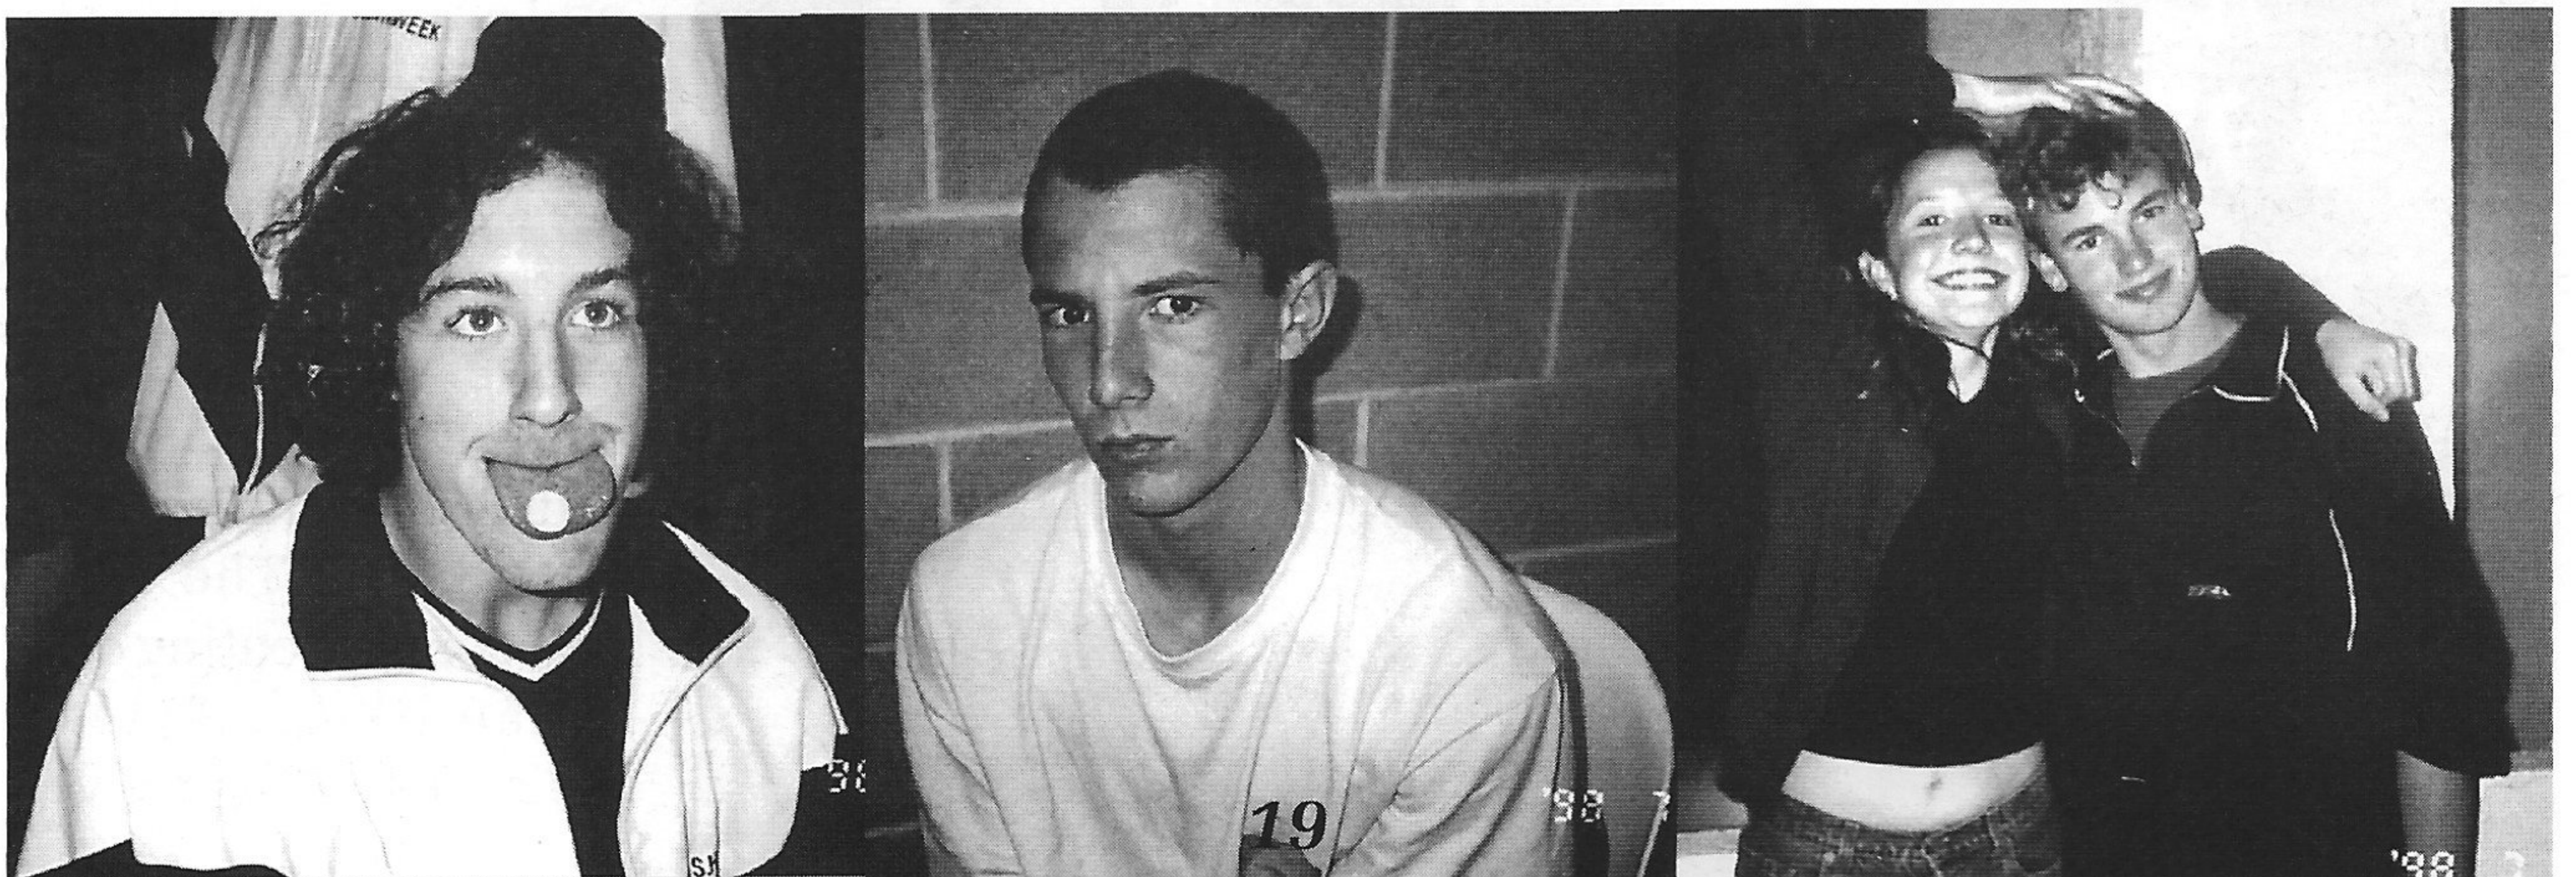

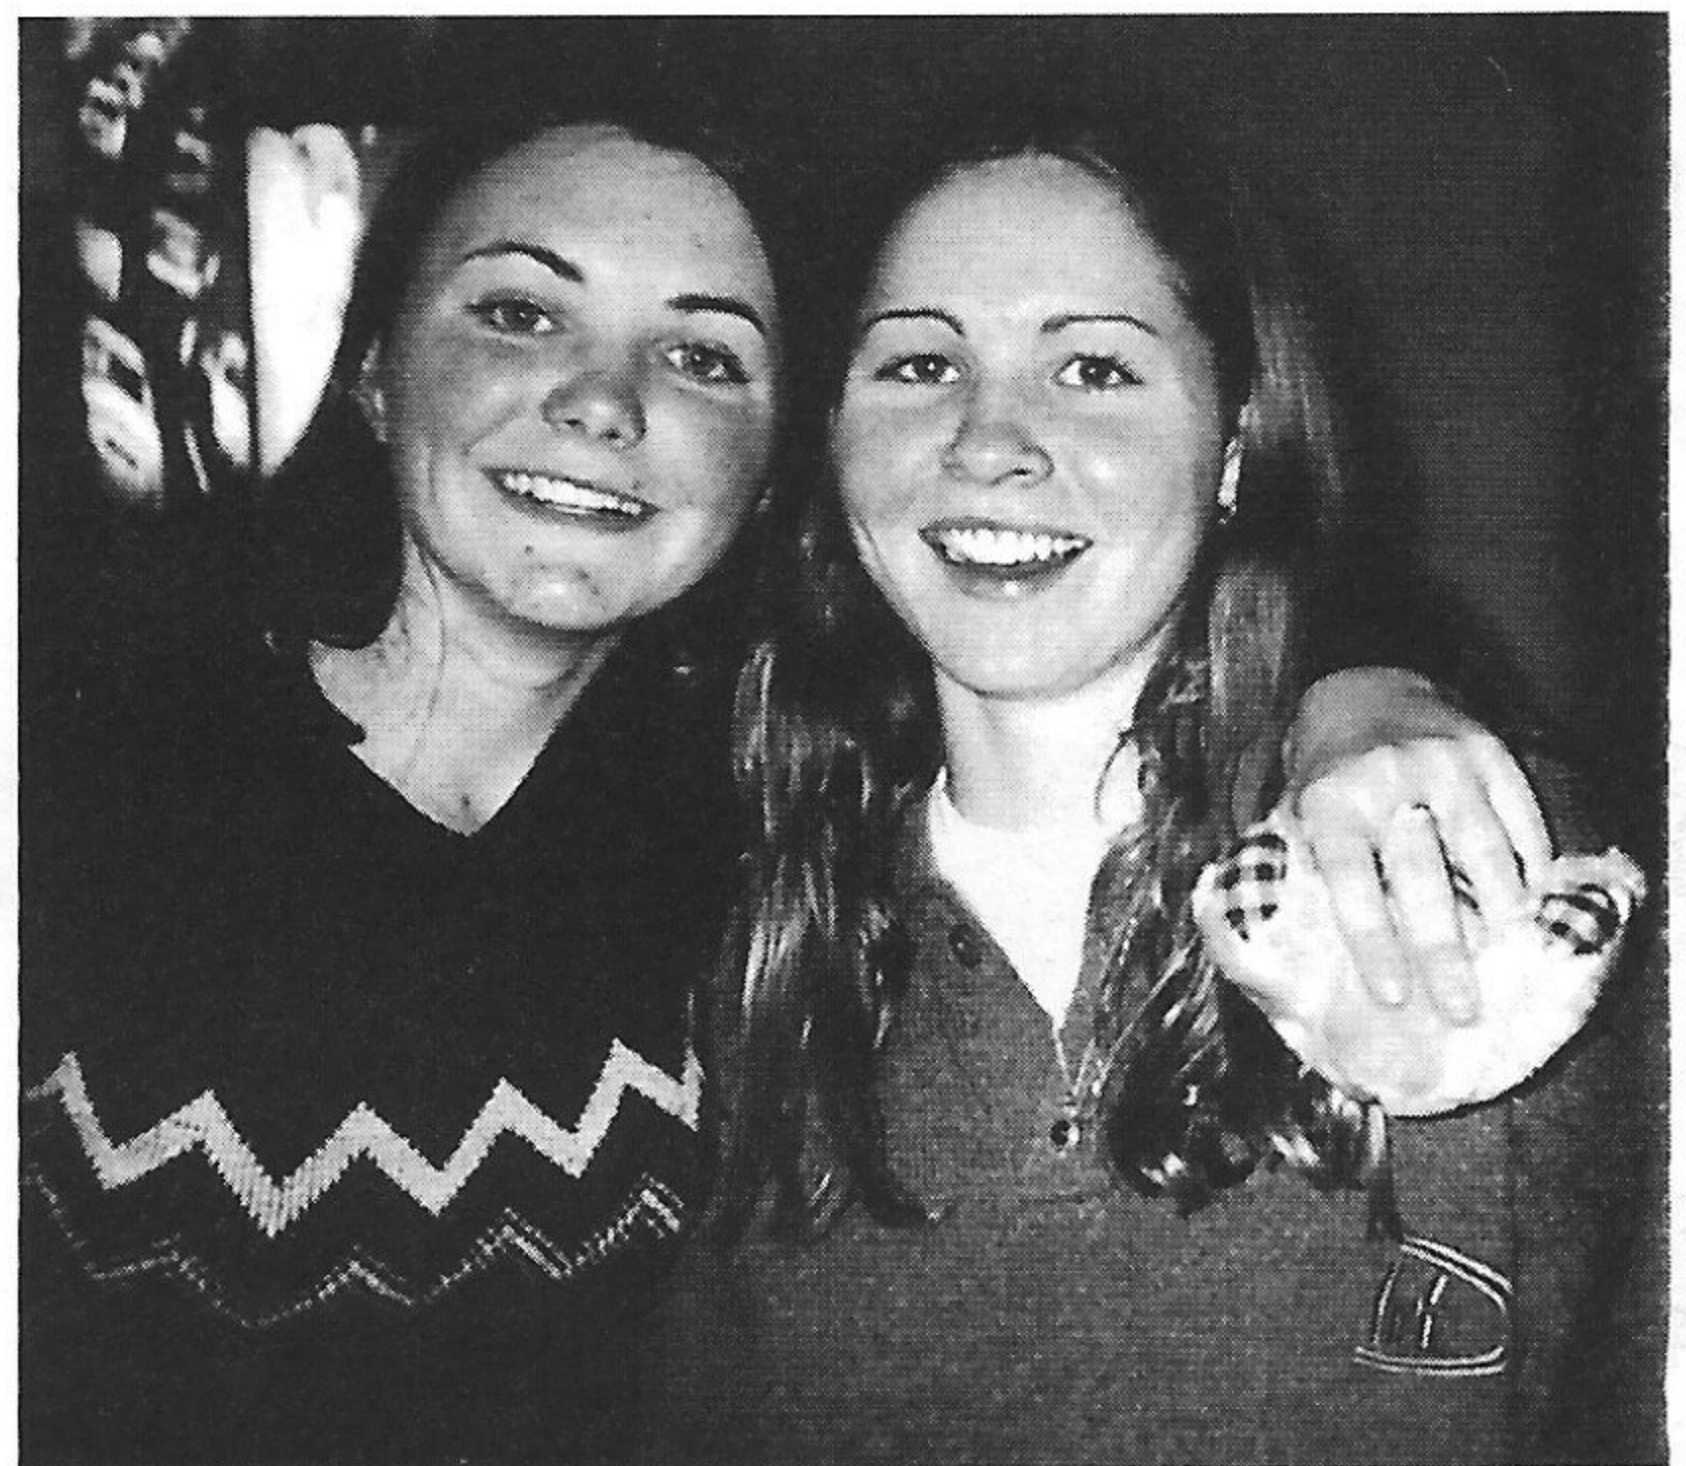

It was a week that will not be easily forgotten!

Back to back Champions - Two Premierships in a row

Day 1: Our traditional companion, the speech team were unable to accompany us on the bus trip, though we were graced by the next best team the volleyball girls. After a brief team meeting orders were 'get to bed early - Two games tomorrow'.

Day 2: With limited sleep we fronted up to the opening ceremony and then to McGillvray Oval to thrash Narrogin Ag 7 -1. After attempts to catch up on sleep, we beat Collie 5 - 0.

Day 3: The Geraldton game - which we treated cautiously for the first ten minutes. We beat them 9 - 0.

Day 4: Today saw some members of the team wake with illness and not playing at our best, beat Narrogin 2 - 0.

Day 5: With three team members sick, volleyball's Tegan King stepped in to enable us to rest 2 players. We beat Newton Moore 3 - 2.

Day 6: Finals: Being undefeated we were reminded that many an undefeated team has lost grand finals. Our instructions from Oracle Ozi were 'back to basics boys' and 'don't play like millionaires'. Oz left and Powelly came to inspire us with a motivator just before we took to the field.

Thanks to Oz for coaching us again and all the support we received from the Bunno spectators, especially at the Grand Final.

Note: Illness within - the hockey team was contrary to popular belief NOT alcohol inflicted but caused by Smithy.

THE TASTE OF LEMONS

School yearbook reports are tame distortions; basically, you can't tell the real story so you have to invent a reality.

My reality is lemons and volleyballs.

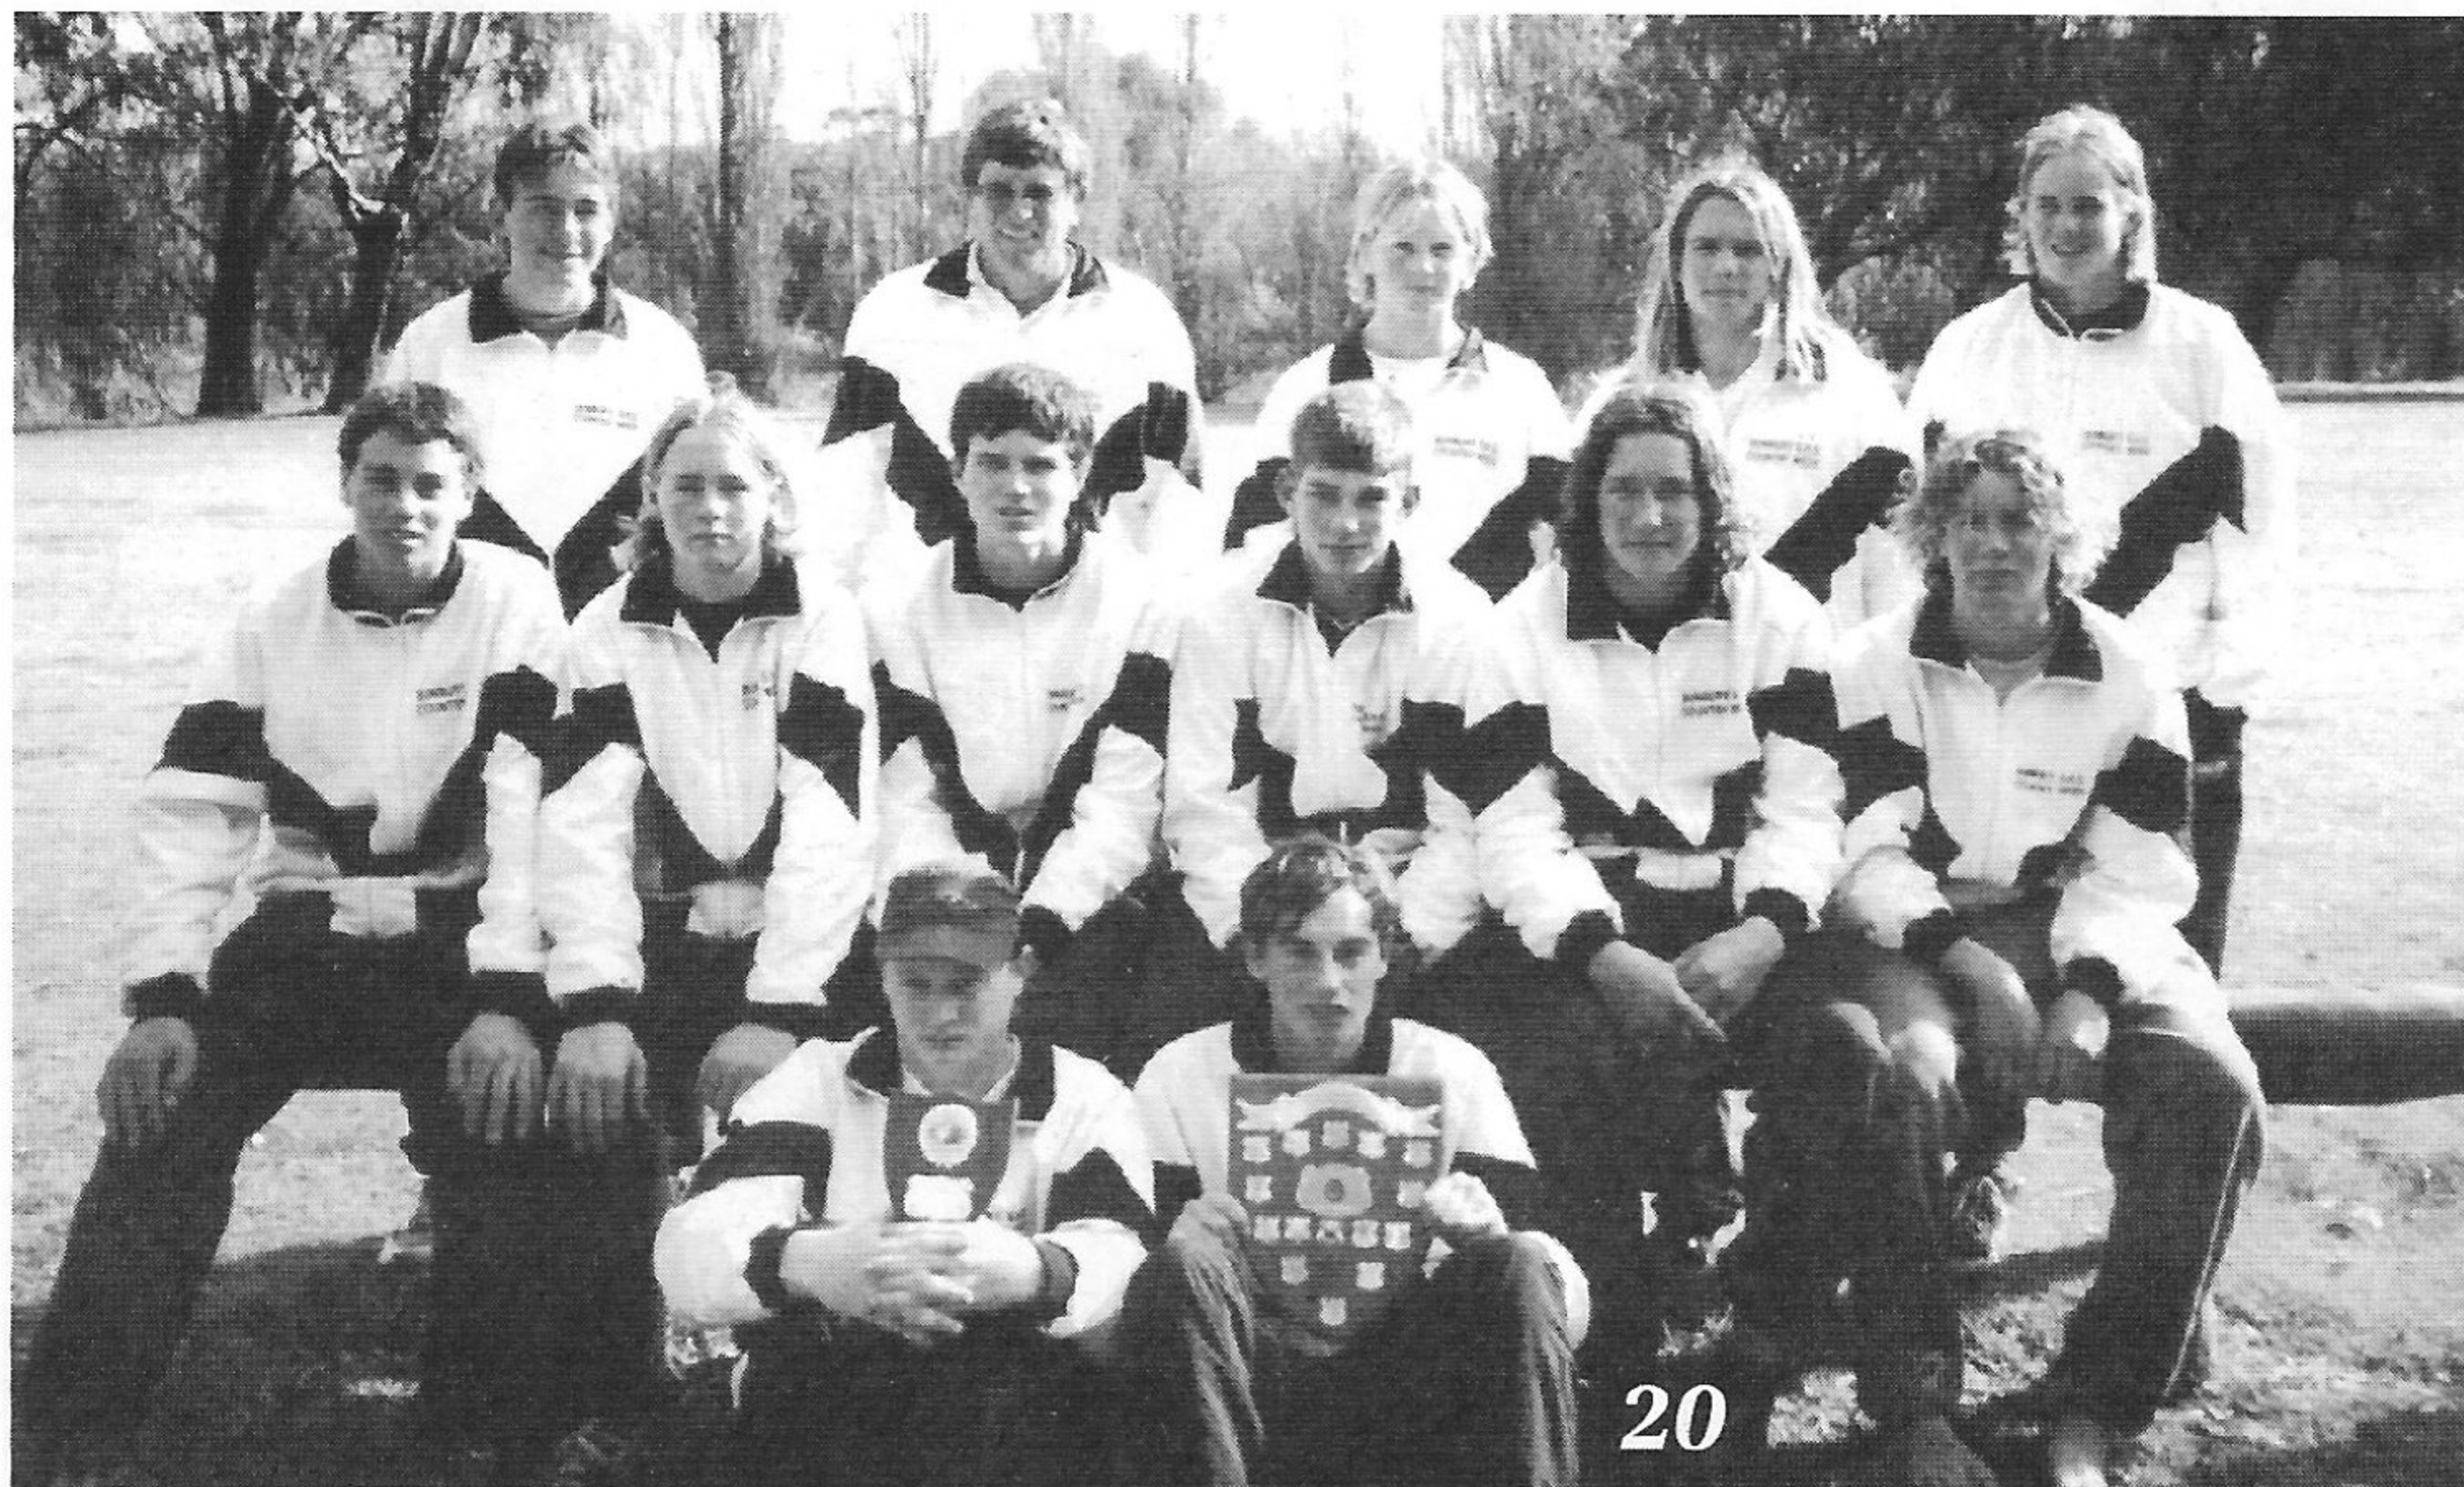

There was no room at the West Beach Lagoon for us - instead, we stayed as far away from everyone else as we could, in the Bronx of Perth - Elsinore Holiday Villages. Ours had a lemon tree, blood stains in the wardrobe, a food spattered microwave, wild animals, and all the other trappings of one star luxury. We're not bitter or anything.

Wednesday's heroes are Thursday's coodabeens.

Wednesday, we had the entire Bunbury Country Week squad packed into the tiny second arena cheering us on against my old school, Collie, who had five supporters. Flying on adrenaline, we spiked in their faces and crushed them into submission. We were walking on air.

And suddenly it's Thursday and we've lost one game and won five and we've got a good chance of making the grand final. Except we've been holed up in squalor for five nights, eating

McPoo burgers and we've had approximately twenty hours sleep in that time and only one member of our team hasn't got captain Christian's wog. So I'm standing in the middle of the Challenge Arena with its 8864 seats and I've had too much caffeine and I'm panicking. The white ball comes floating over, dreamlike. A team we're better than gives us a pounding and suddenly it's all come crashing down.

We played four games on Thursday. We missed out on the grand final by one point. Exhausted, we faced the play off for third as best as we could. Everyone had gone home. No-one was watching us save our coach, Mr Giles, ever patient, ever reassuring. A hostile crowd, yet we won the first set, 15-0. Estatic, we let our guard down, and like a slow nightmare, they stole third place, winning the next two sets 17-15, 16-14, as I watched helplessly on, detached, distant. I shook their hands, avoided their smiling eyes and kicked a volleyball into the wall. It flew off and was caught by the opposing team's coach, who captured me sheepishly in my tantrum.

On the bus, we screamed to Metallica all the way back to the motel, as if it could make us feel better. We got lost that night and drove surreally through the suburbs, trying to find the Karrinyup Shopping Centre. We came home and stripped the lemon tree, hurling around citric acid as if that could make us feel better. One was spiked on the tip of a cactus and in the morning we found it sitting there like a Christmas light.

The analogy is a bad one. Lemons aren't bitter; they're sour. And neither were we, really.

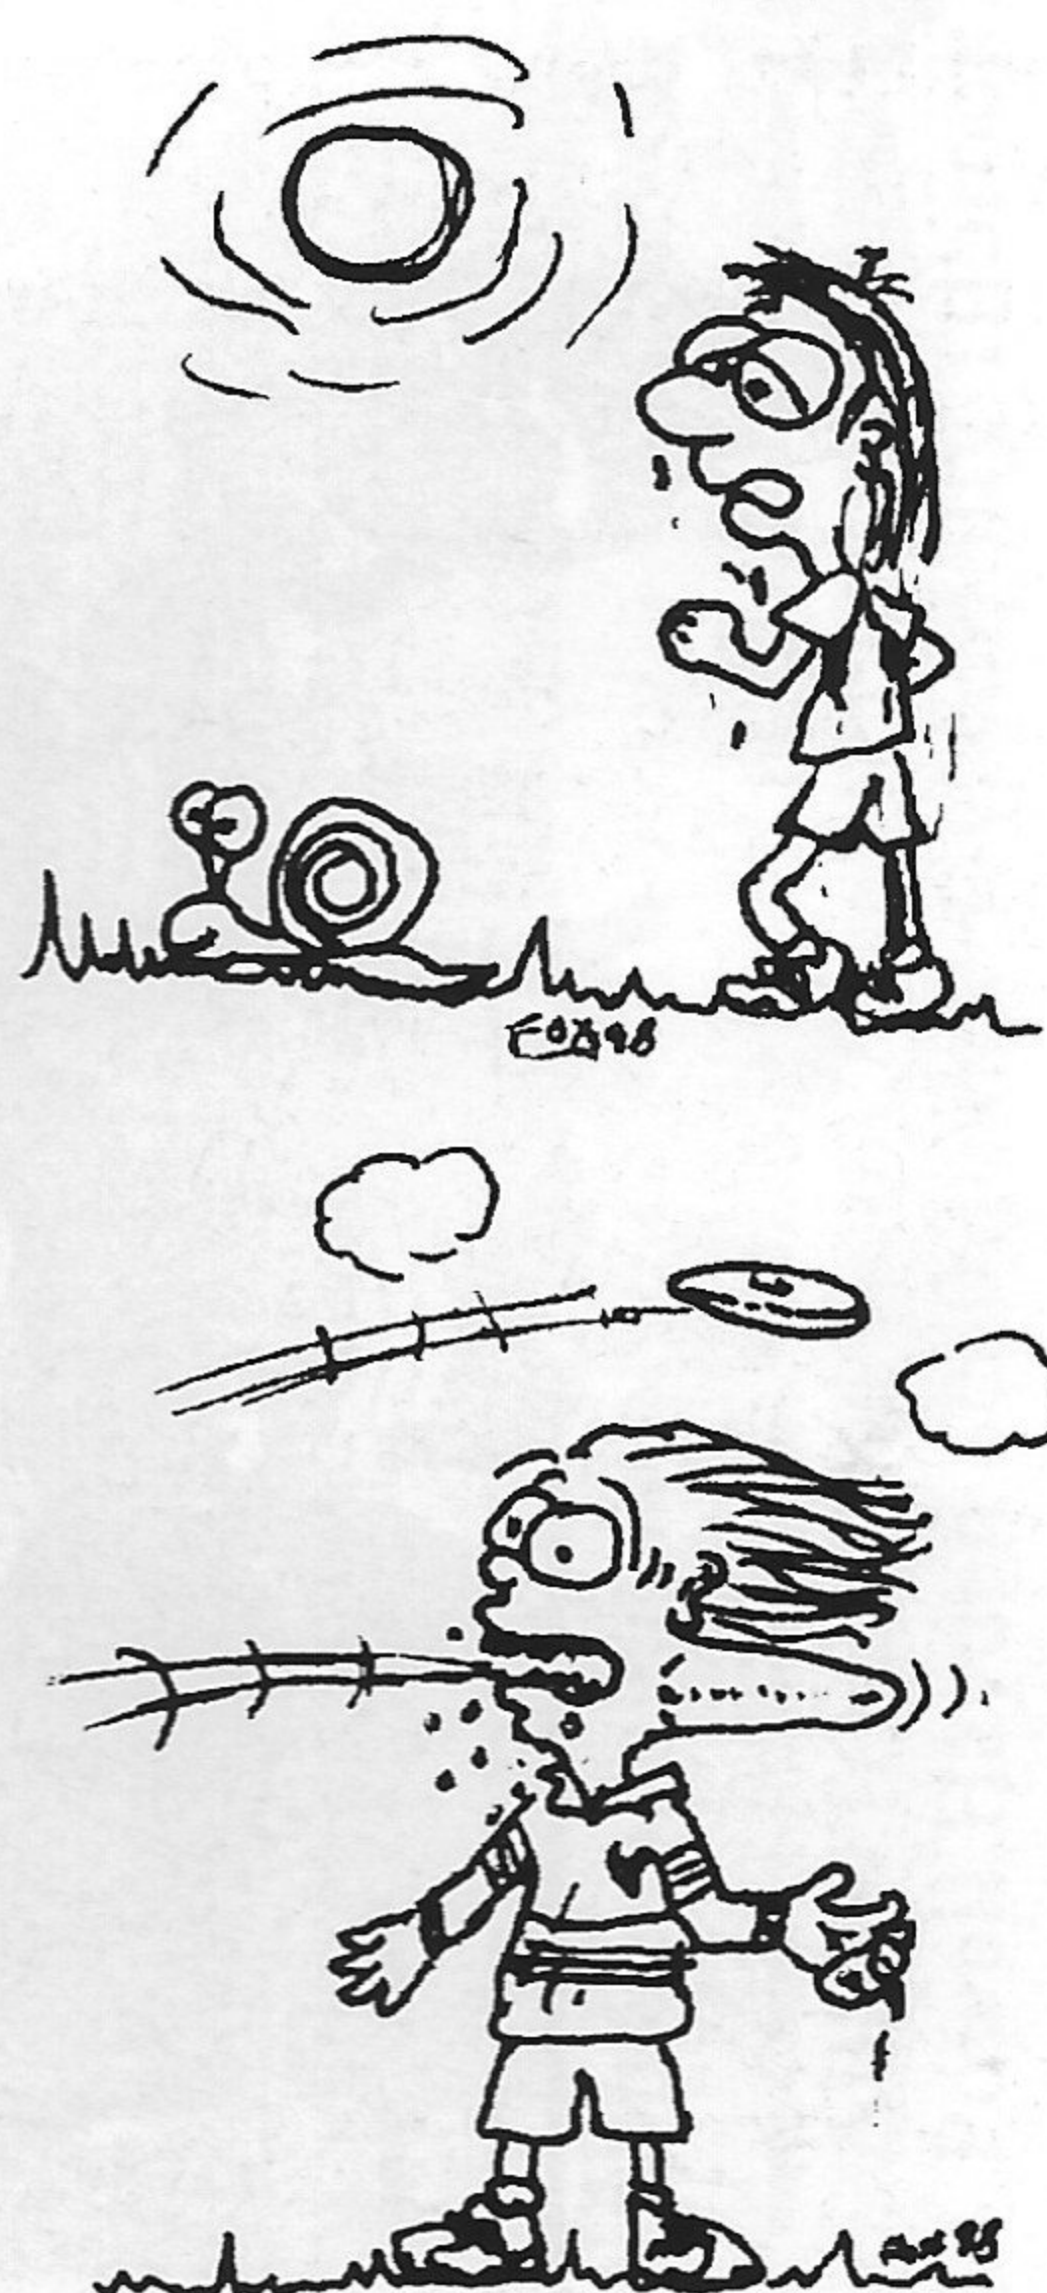

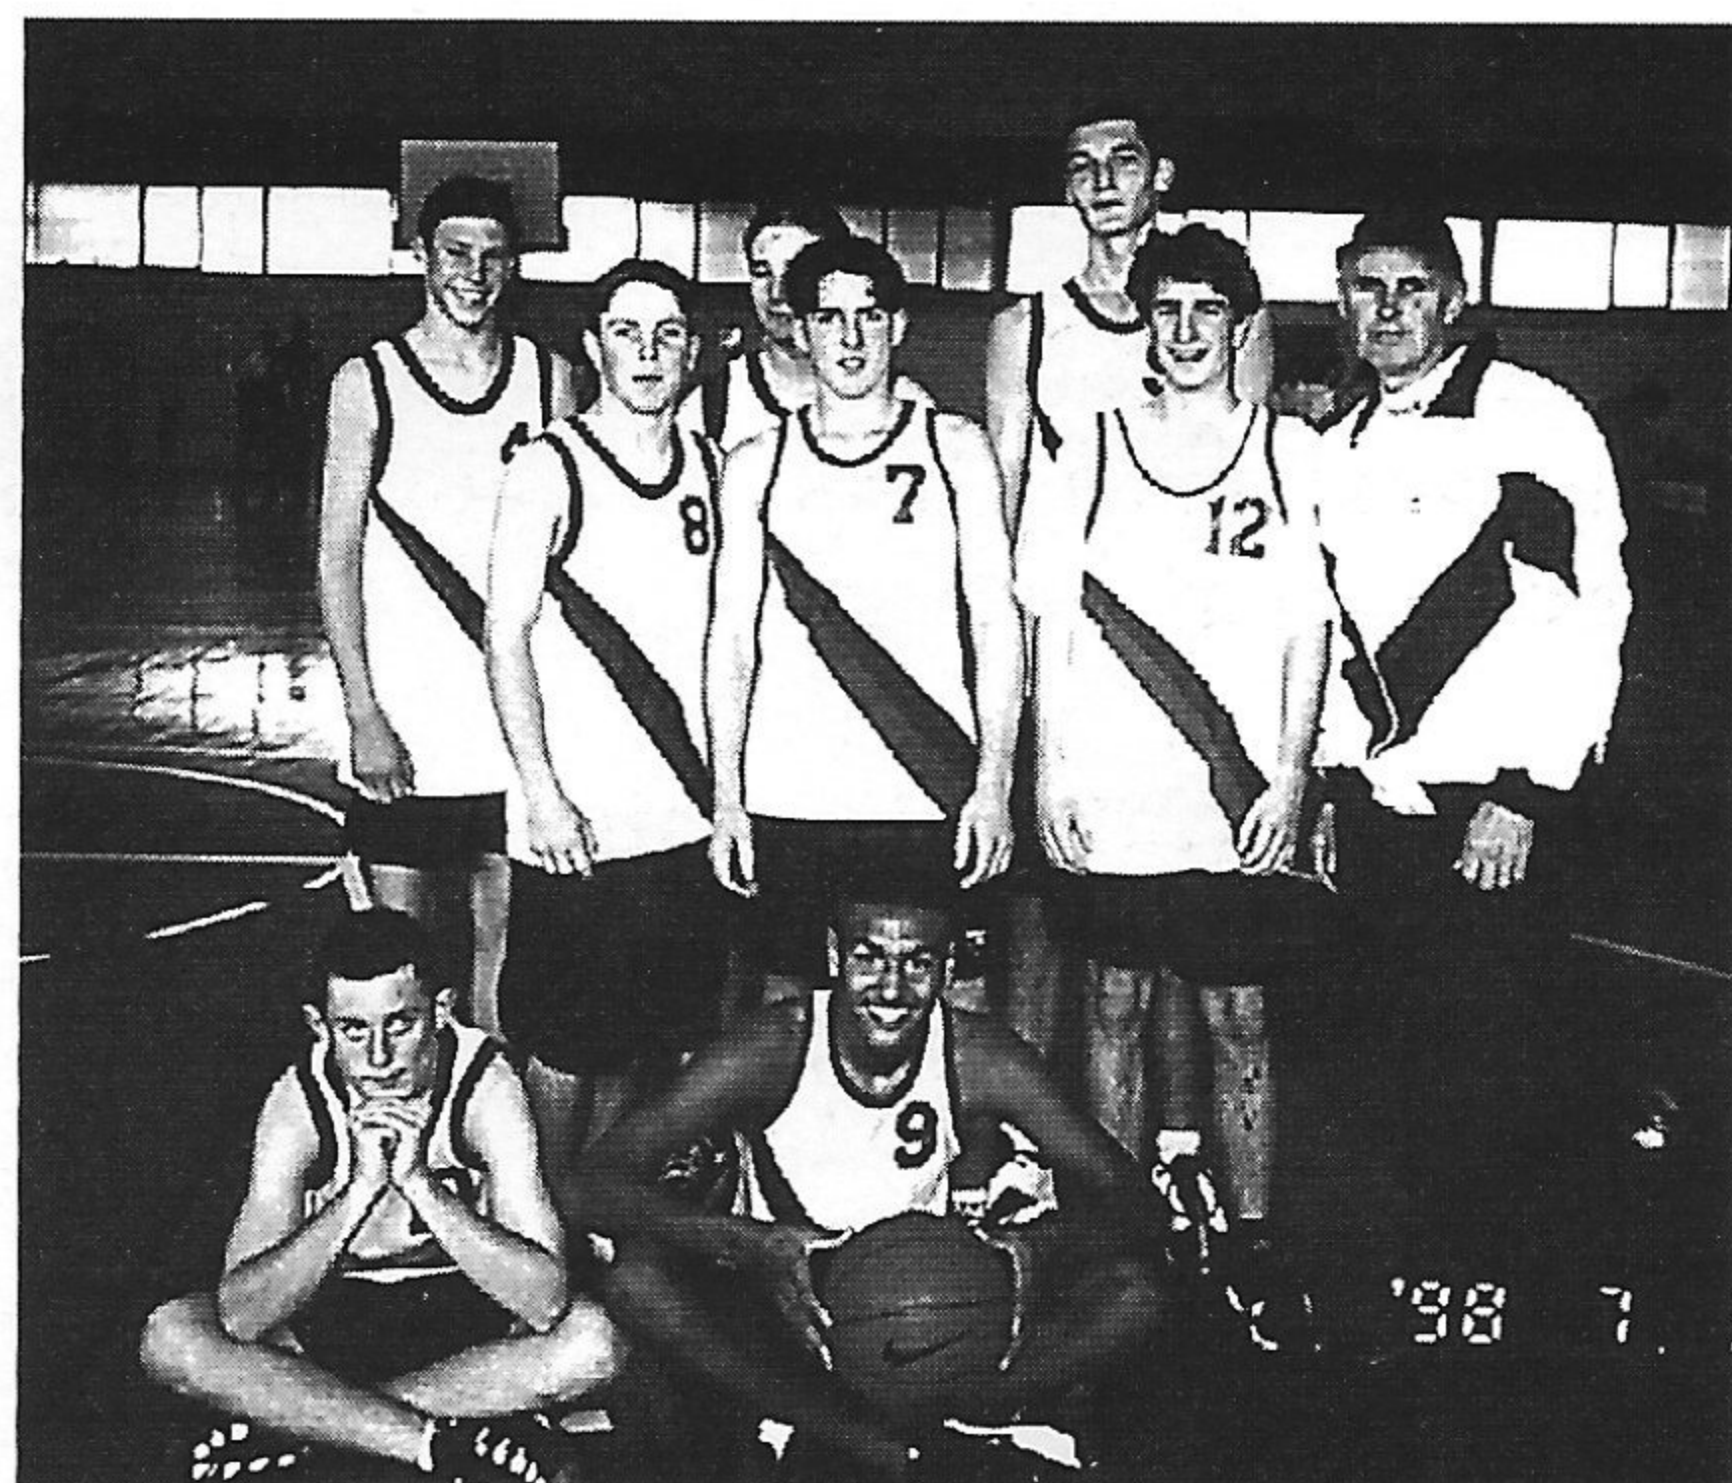

(Nice article but no pic. Maybe next year we'll get 'em all Ed)

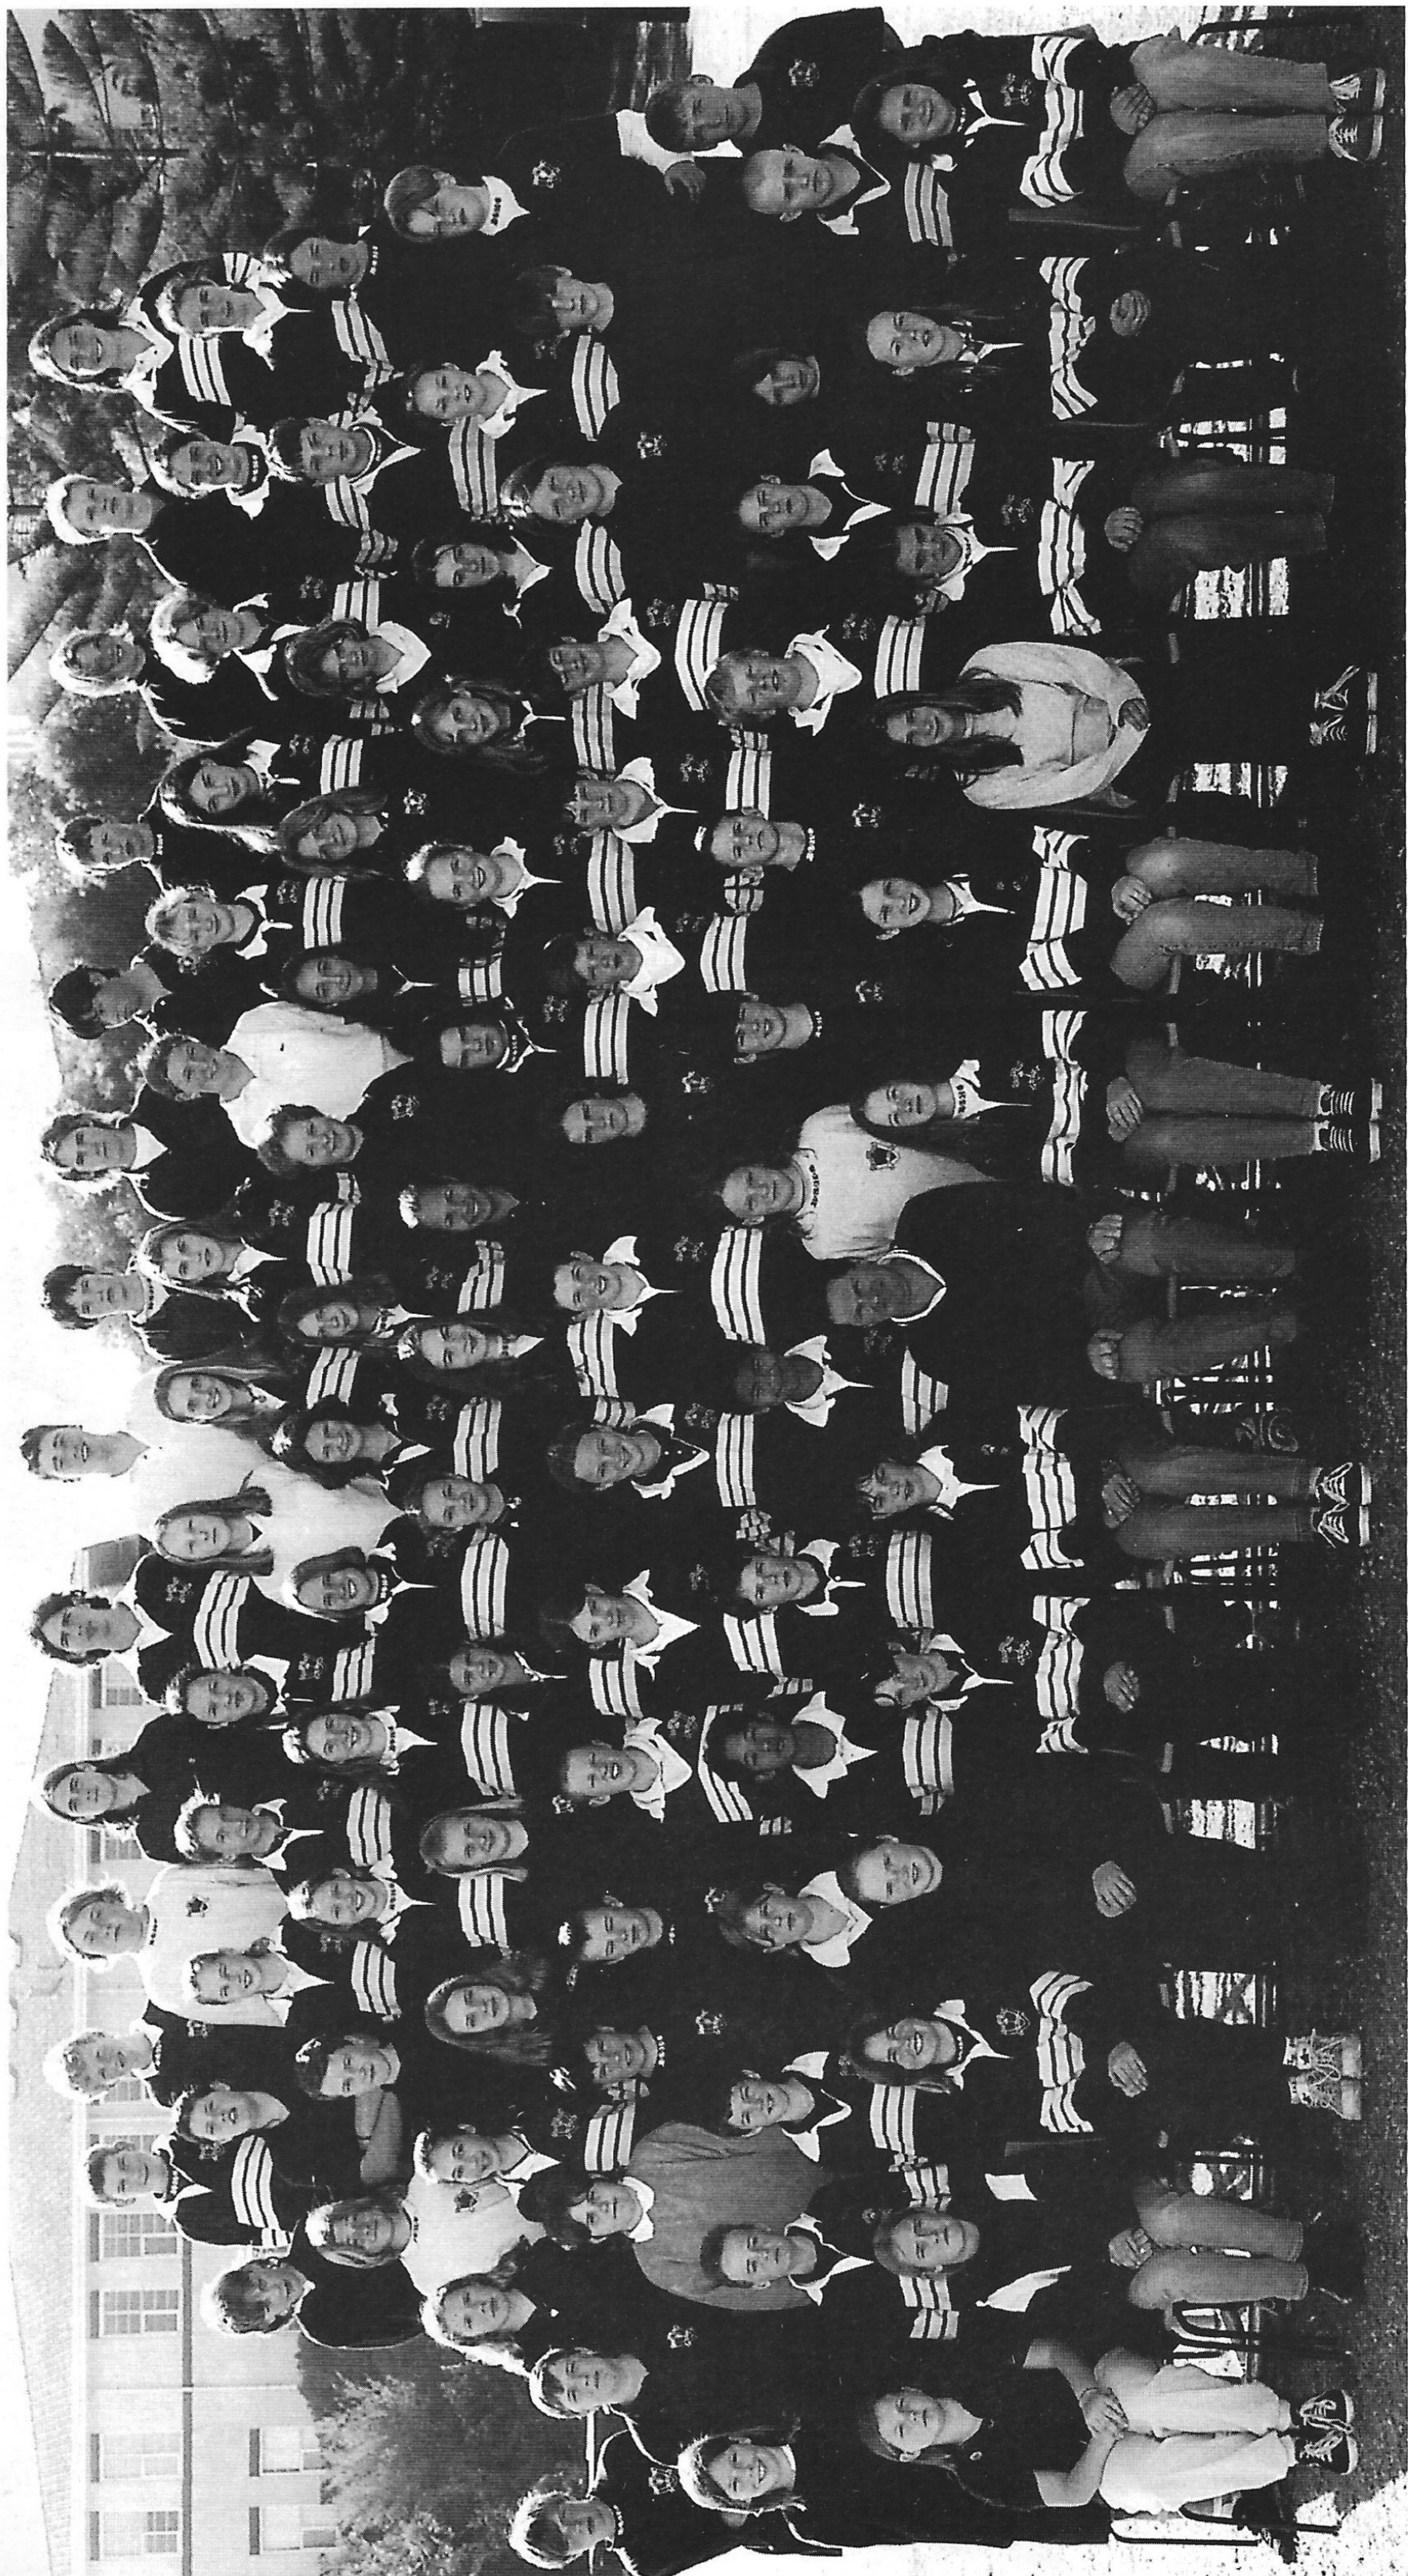

Boys' Basketball

Hmmmm.... was there a boy's basketball team in 1998? There might have been, but no-one remembers them because they were either illiterate and incapable of writing a Kingia article or were VERY forgetful. Here's a hard lesson boys: heroes get remembered and legends never die but slackers just disappear.

(Mr Bennetts coached them and they played well but didn't win)

At least we got a pic of them (Ed.)

NOTES FROM THE MUSIC DEPARTMENT

1998 has seen some changes within the Music Department. This year saw the final resignation of Bunbury High's musical guru of the last 13 years, Mr Ray Risdon. While Ray has gone on to pursue his interests in music through his family's Risdon School of Music, his influence on the school and his achievements will remain for many years. Ray's special contribution has been to bring the Music Department into the world of contemporary music so that students are able to learn to play and perform music which is as current as today's charts. Who else would have been bold enough to tackle the classic 'Bohemian Rhapsody' with Year 12 singers? With a personal talent for singing and encouraging others to sing at a professional standard, Ray was able to take singers from the school out to such prestigious venues as the Lord Forrest Hotel, where they were much in demand. We wish Ray all the best for the future and thank him for his time and energy over the years.

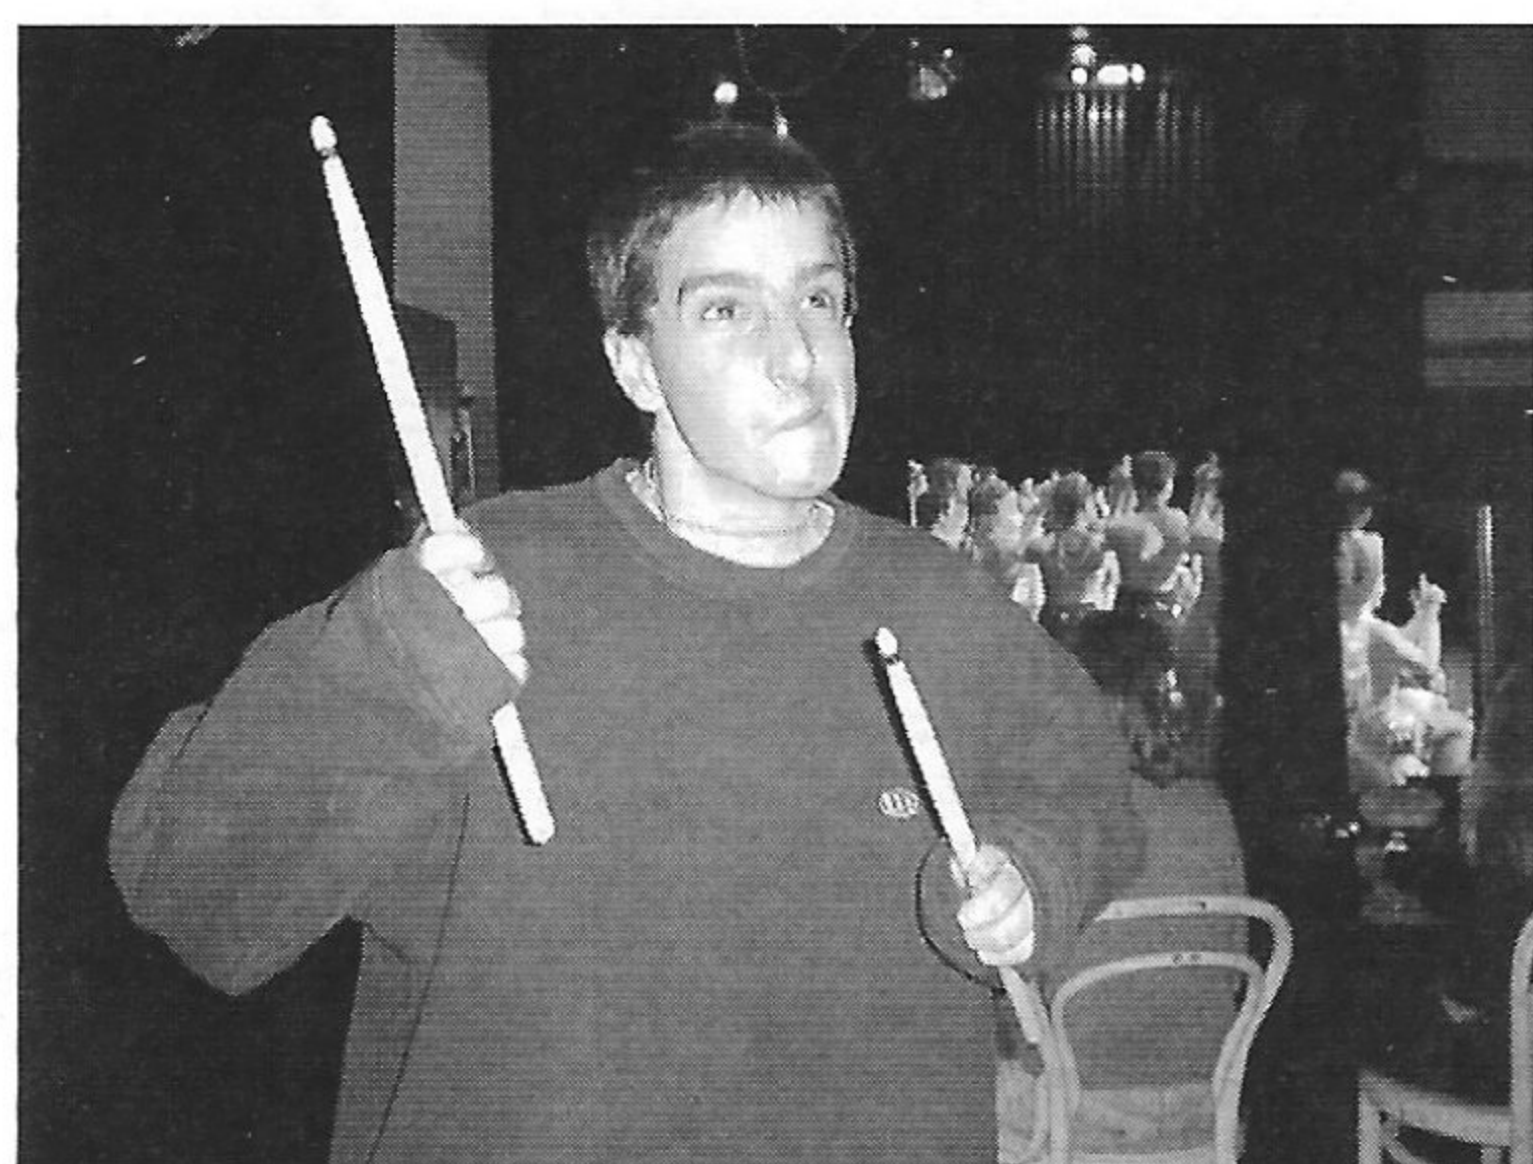

Replacing Mr Ray Risdon is Mr Hugh Ryder. Coming to us immediately from spending time in the music retail industry, Hugh has previously worked for many years as an English, Media and Drama and Music teacher.

Another new face in the Music Department as of August this year is Mr Malcolm Toft who has taken up the role of Woodwind and Brass Teacher. With a W.A. Conservatorium of Music background, Malcolm has much to offer and is already enthusing students with his prowess in the field of jazz and contemporary music.

Continuing Music Department staff are, of course, Ms Melissa Spencer (Guitar and Popular Band) and Mr Geoff Ogden (Brass, Percussion and Concert Band)

Students represented the school throughout the year, polishing up performances for various occasions. Earlier in the year was the Anzac Day Ceremony while this year's Soup and Sweets night gave the Concert Band students a chance to perform with special guests from Collie Senior High School under the direction of Mr Geoff Ogden and Mr Bill Curtis. It was great to see the ease with which these students, some still in primary school, were able to join together to play music. The two school bands combined again for a performance at the Schools Concert Band Competition at Perth College in July, achieving excellent results. This was the culmination of a three day camp which gave students the chance to 'busk' in Fremantle and visit the WA. Conservatorium of Music where they were treated to brief performances by Jazz and Commercial students.

Other noteworthy bands and musicians include Year 11 band, 'Blindworm' (Daniel Spriggs, Anthony Steele and Gareth Potter) and Year 11 guitarist Rhys Jones of local band 'Sorry' who also entered Battle of the Bands.

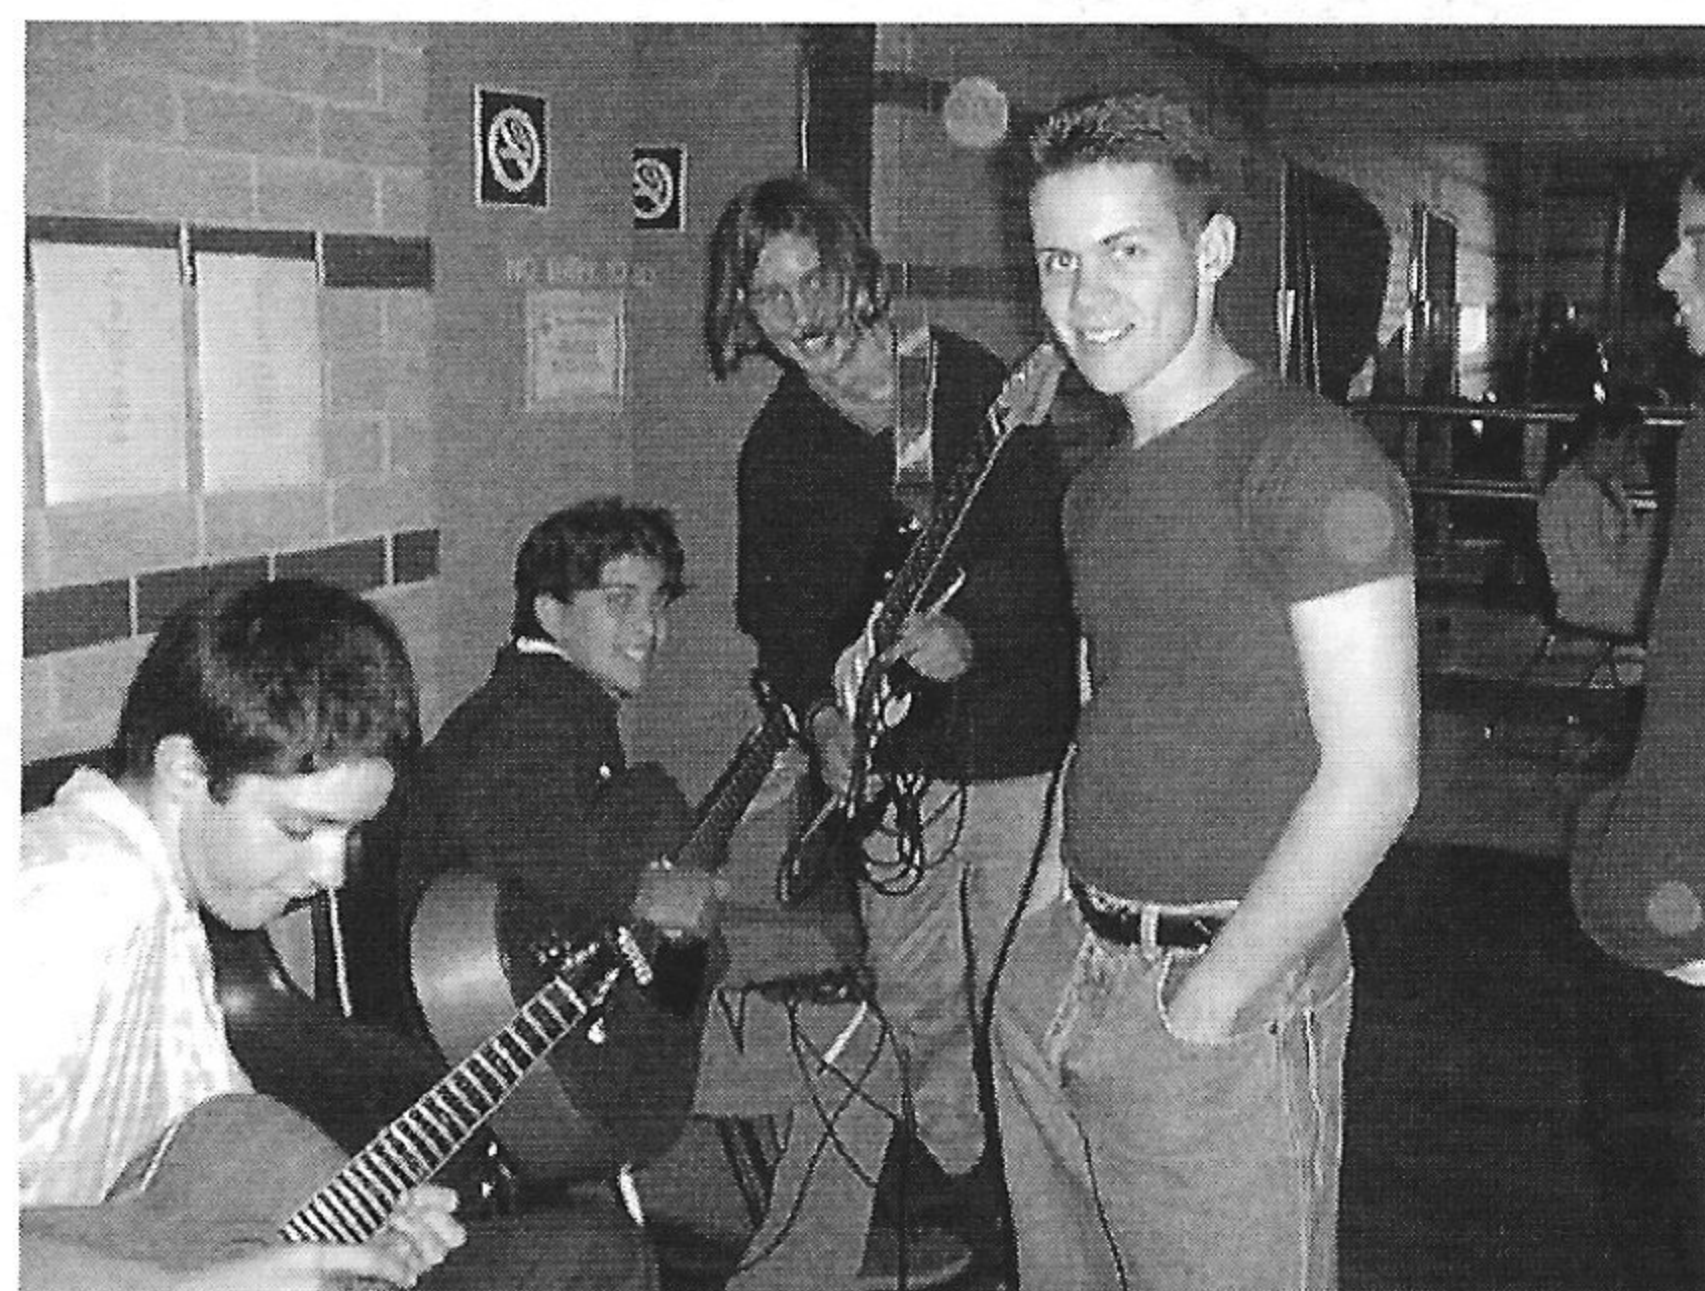

Rising stars of Year 10 shone at the Gala night where Brendan Applebee proved he's got what it takes to strut out vocals and entertain the crowd. Navin Meemeduma and Clinton Ward jammed up a storm while Caroline Bandurski unleashed those amazing vocal chords alongside her well rehearsed class mates.

The Gala showstopper had to be the Year 12 classic 'Bohemian Rhapsody'. With more than ten stunning girls singing in harmony, Jeremy Ryder's standout lead guitar solo and the band's tight precision, it was a fitting swan song for Ray Risdon who arranged the masterpiece.

Other news from this year includes the updating of equipment and resources. The pianos are being replaced by a professional Yamaha stage piano which provides enormous flexibility and portability including being able to be connected to a computer for recording and sequencing purposes. This is a great step forward which could not have been achieved without a much appreciated special grant from the school P & C committee. Together with the provision of a Macintosh computer handed down from the school administration, much can now be learned in this new and exciting field .

As of going to press we are looking forward to a visit from Albany Wind Ensemble under the direction of ex-Bunbury teacher, Mr Peter Rasmussen. This will enable our students and students from our feeder primary schools to form a big band performing before parents in the last week of term in the new Performing Arts Centre.

One thing remains unchanged this year: the abundant talent of BSHS music students!

ANZAC CEREMONY

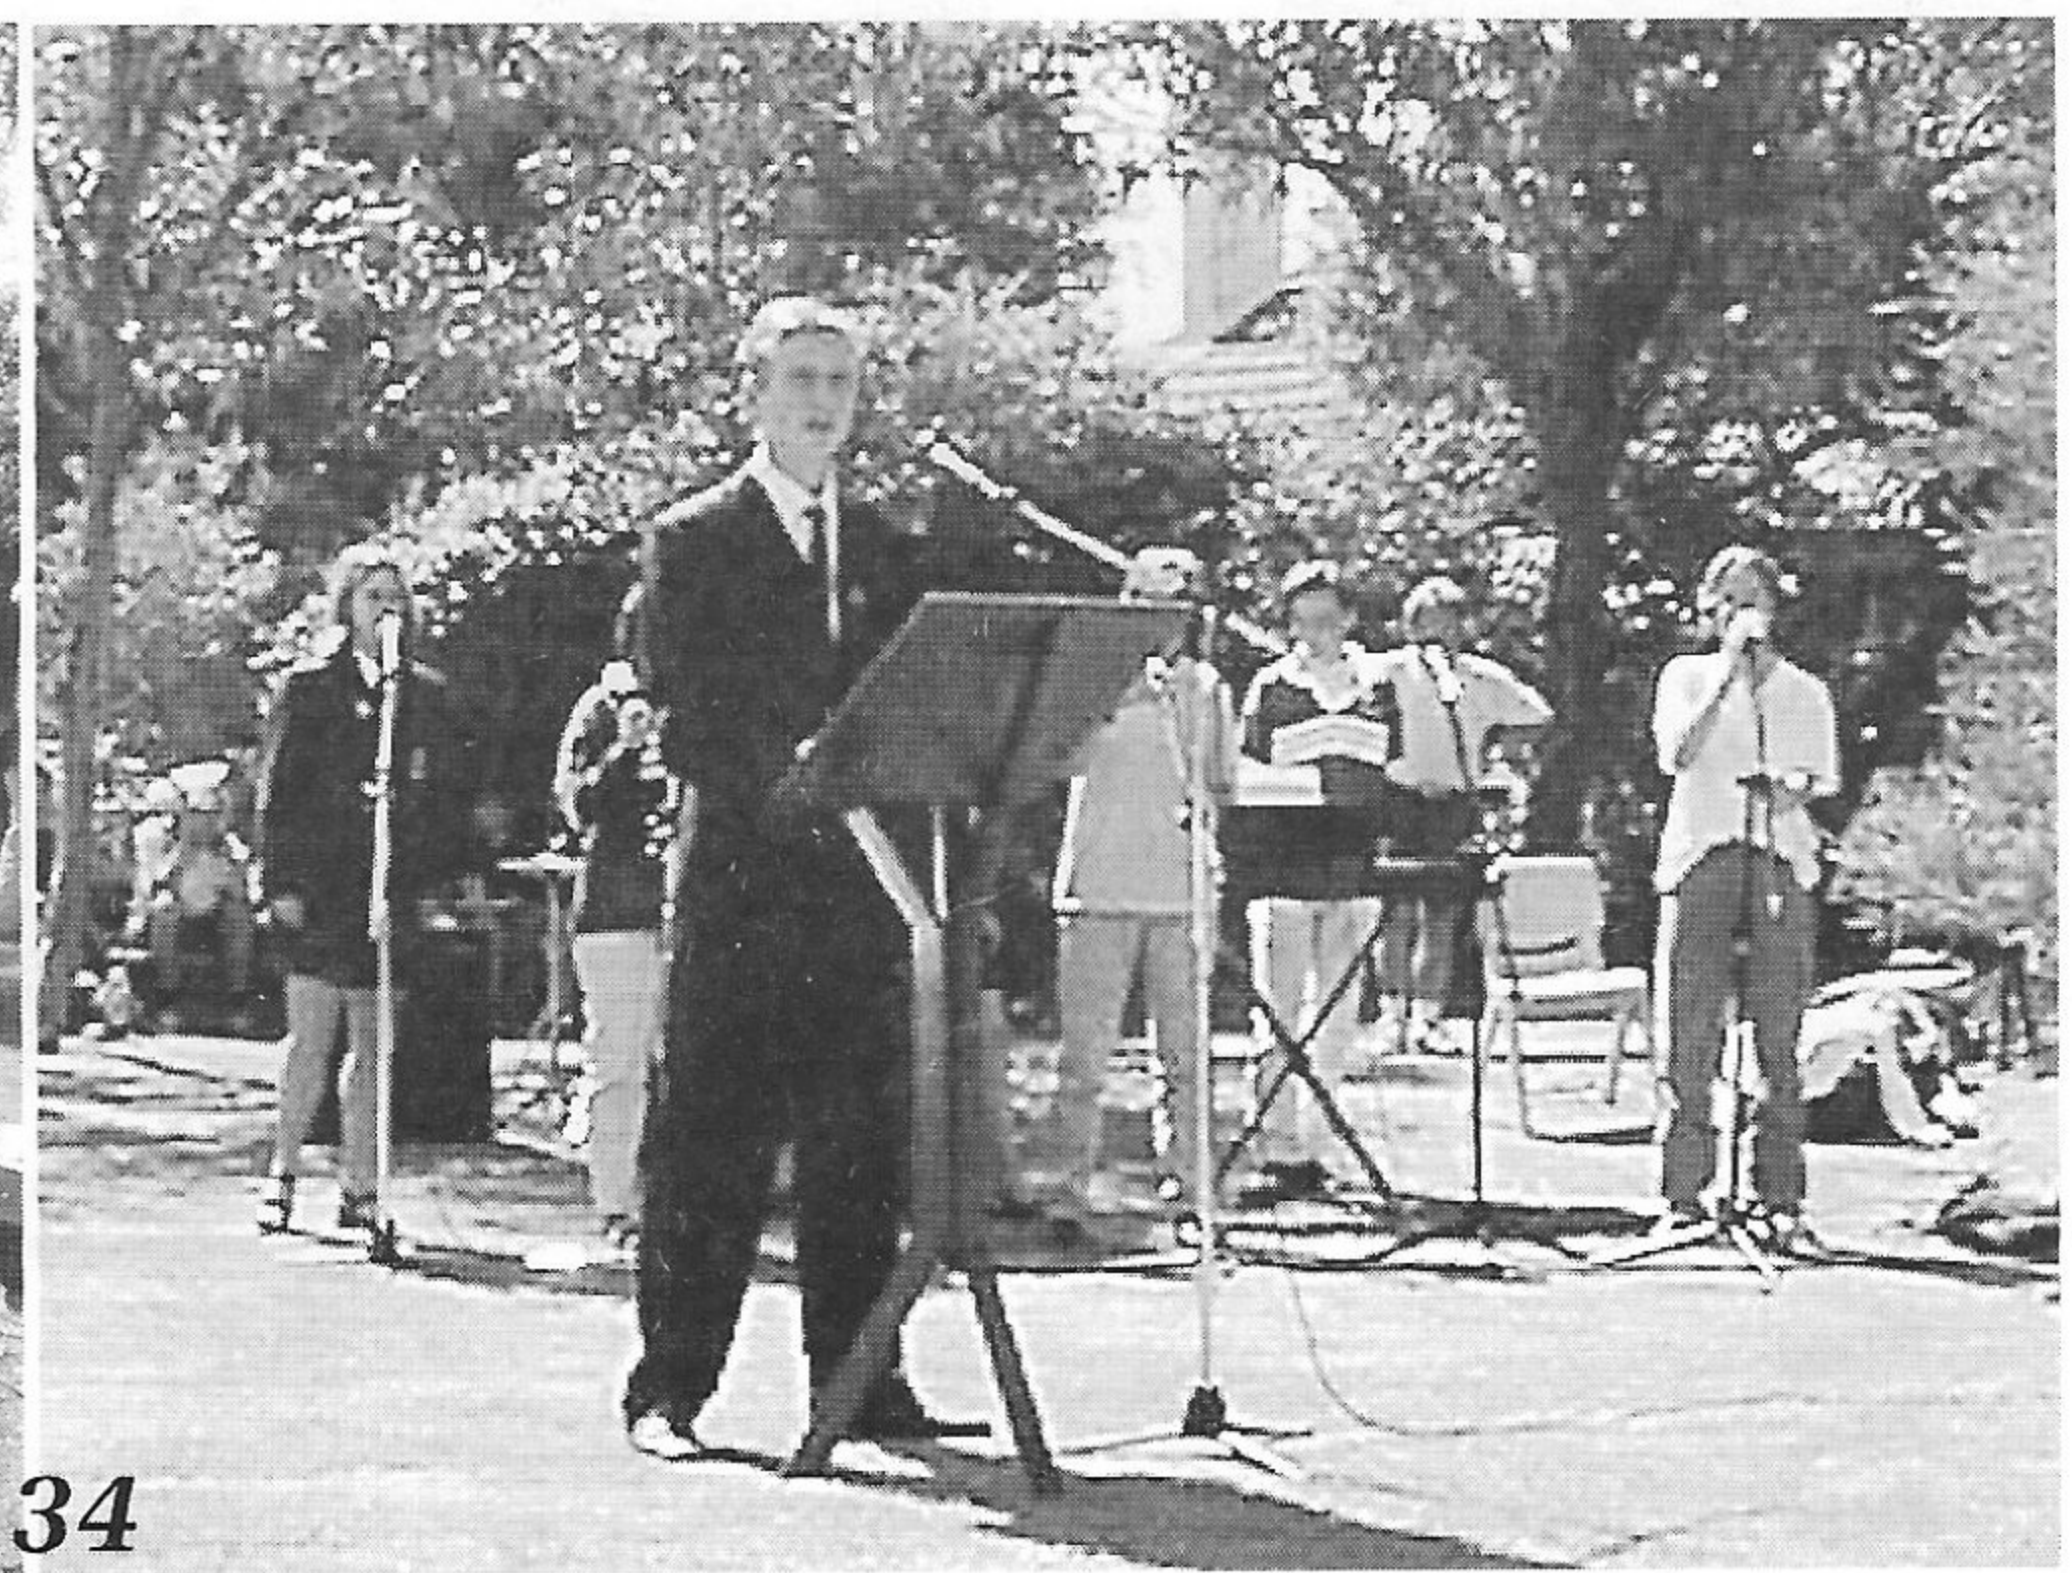

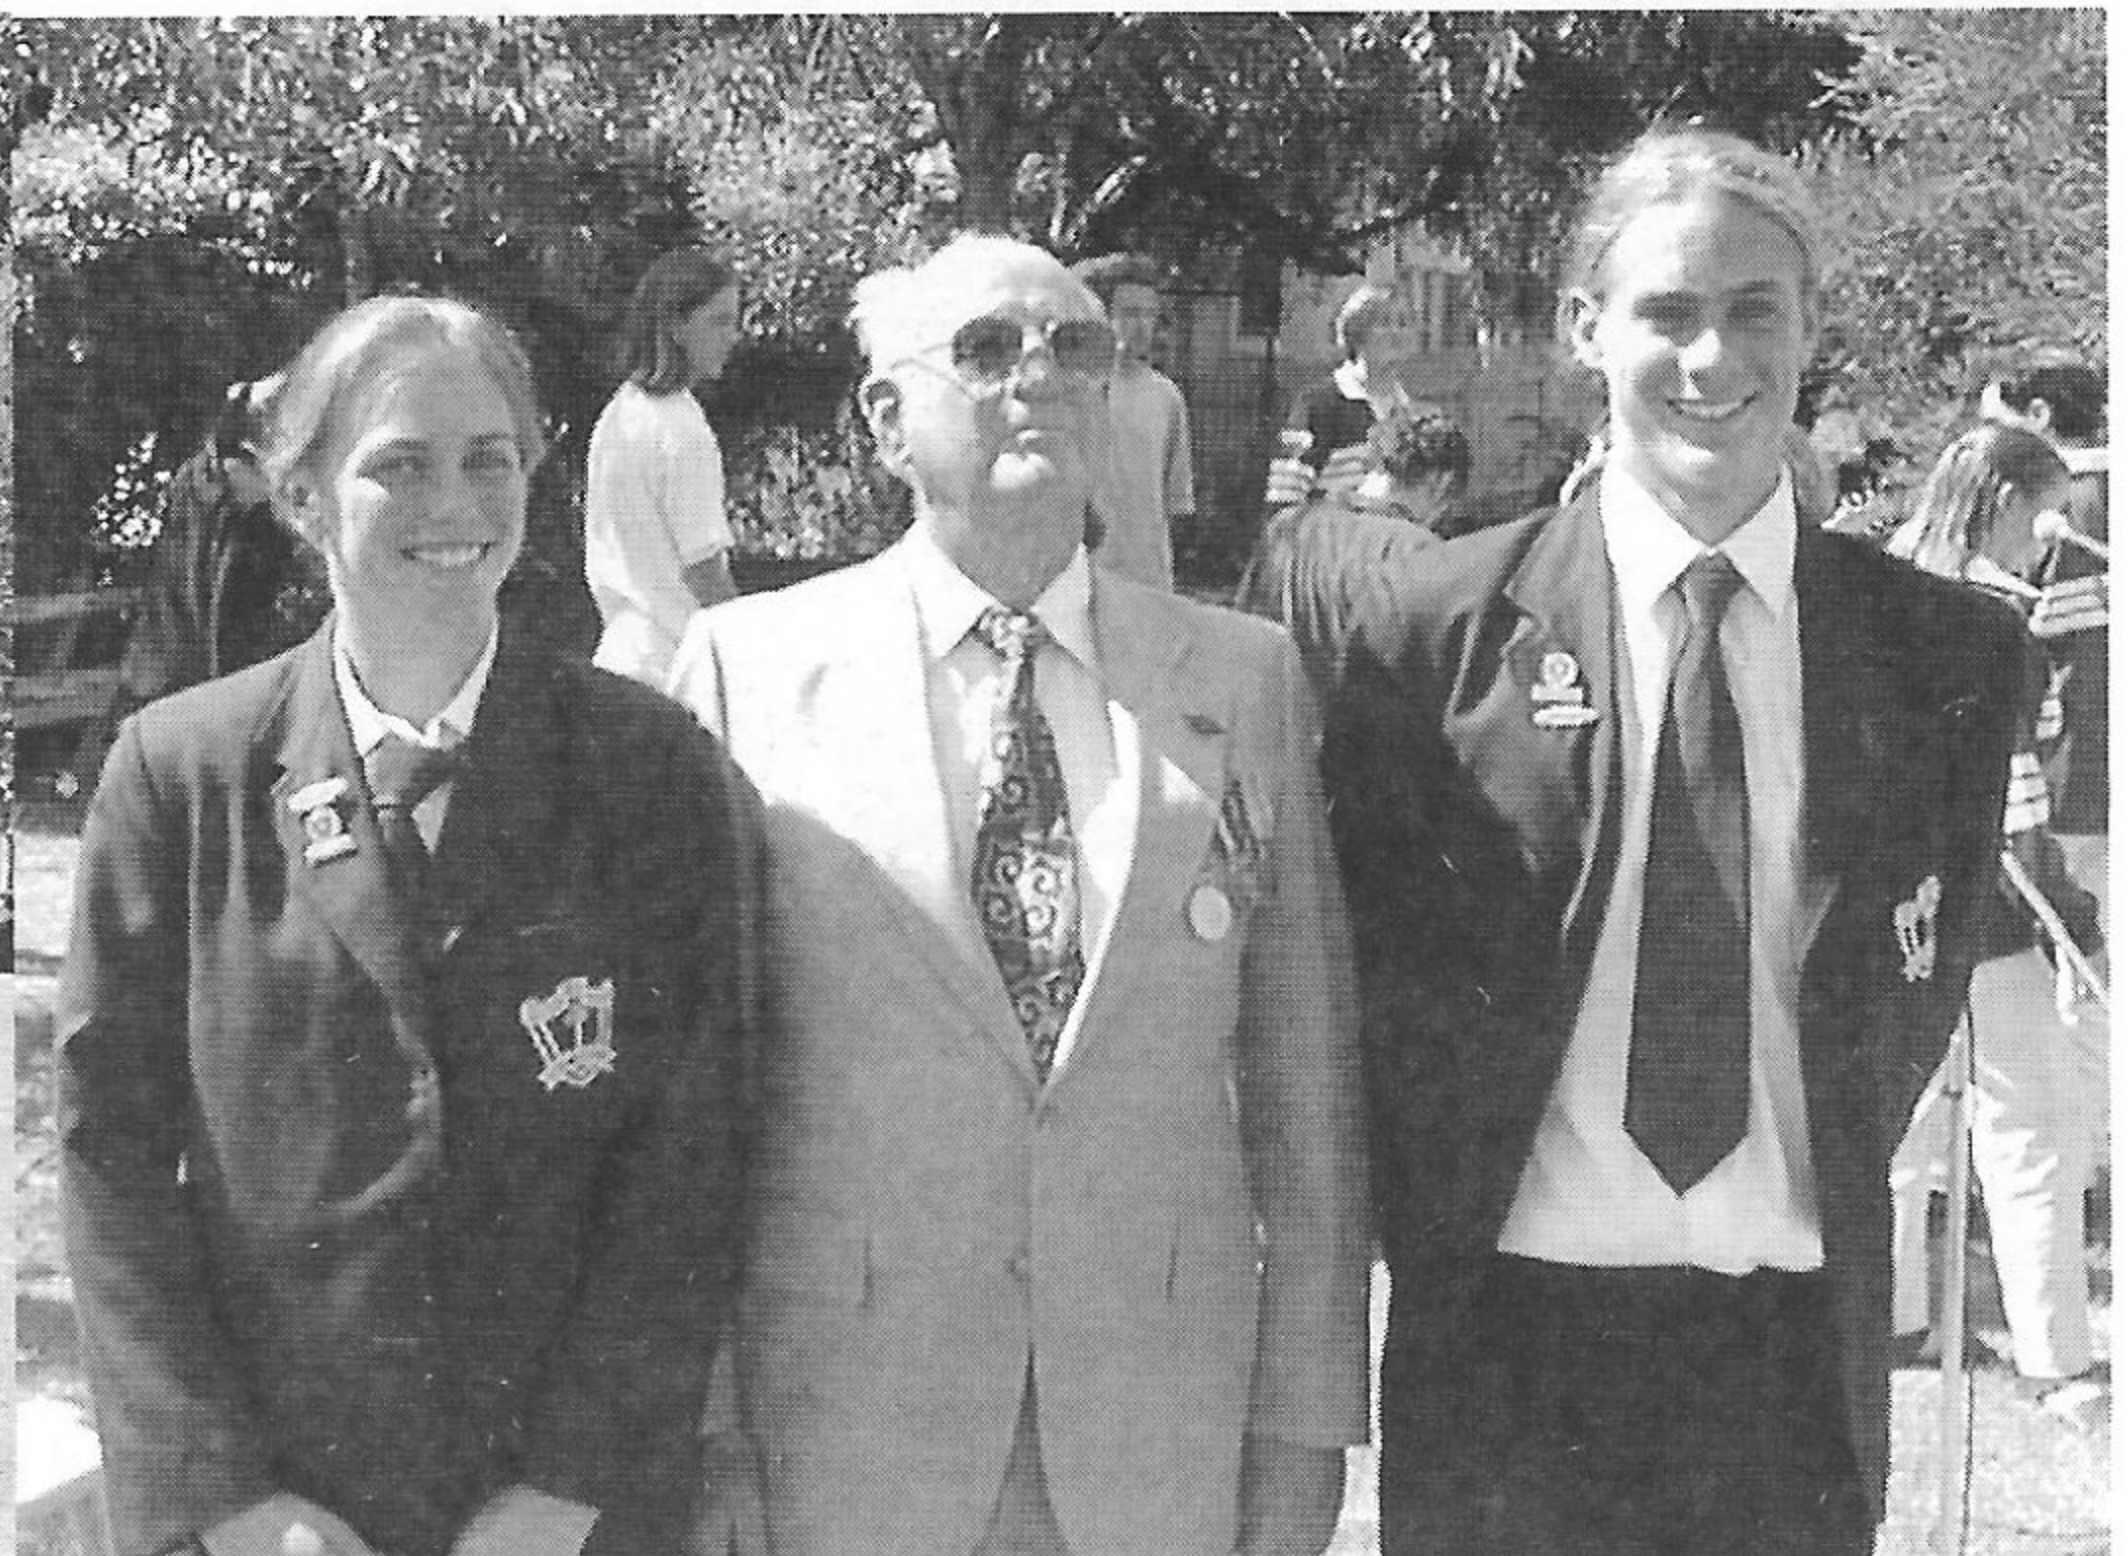

The Anzac Day Commemoration Service was coordinated by the Prefects on the 9th April.

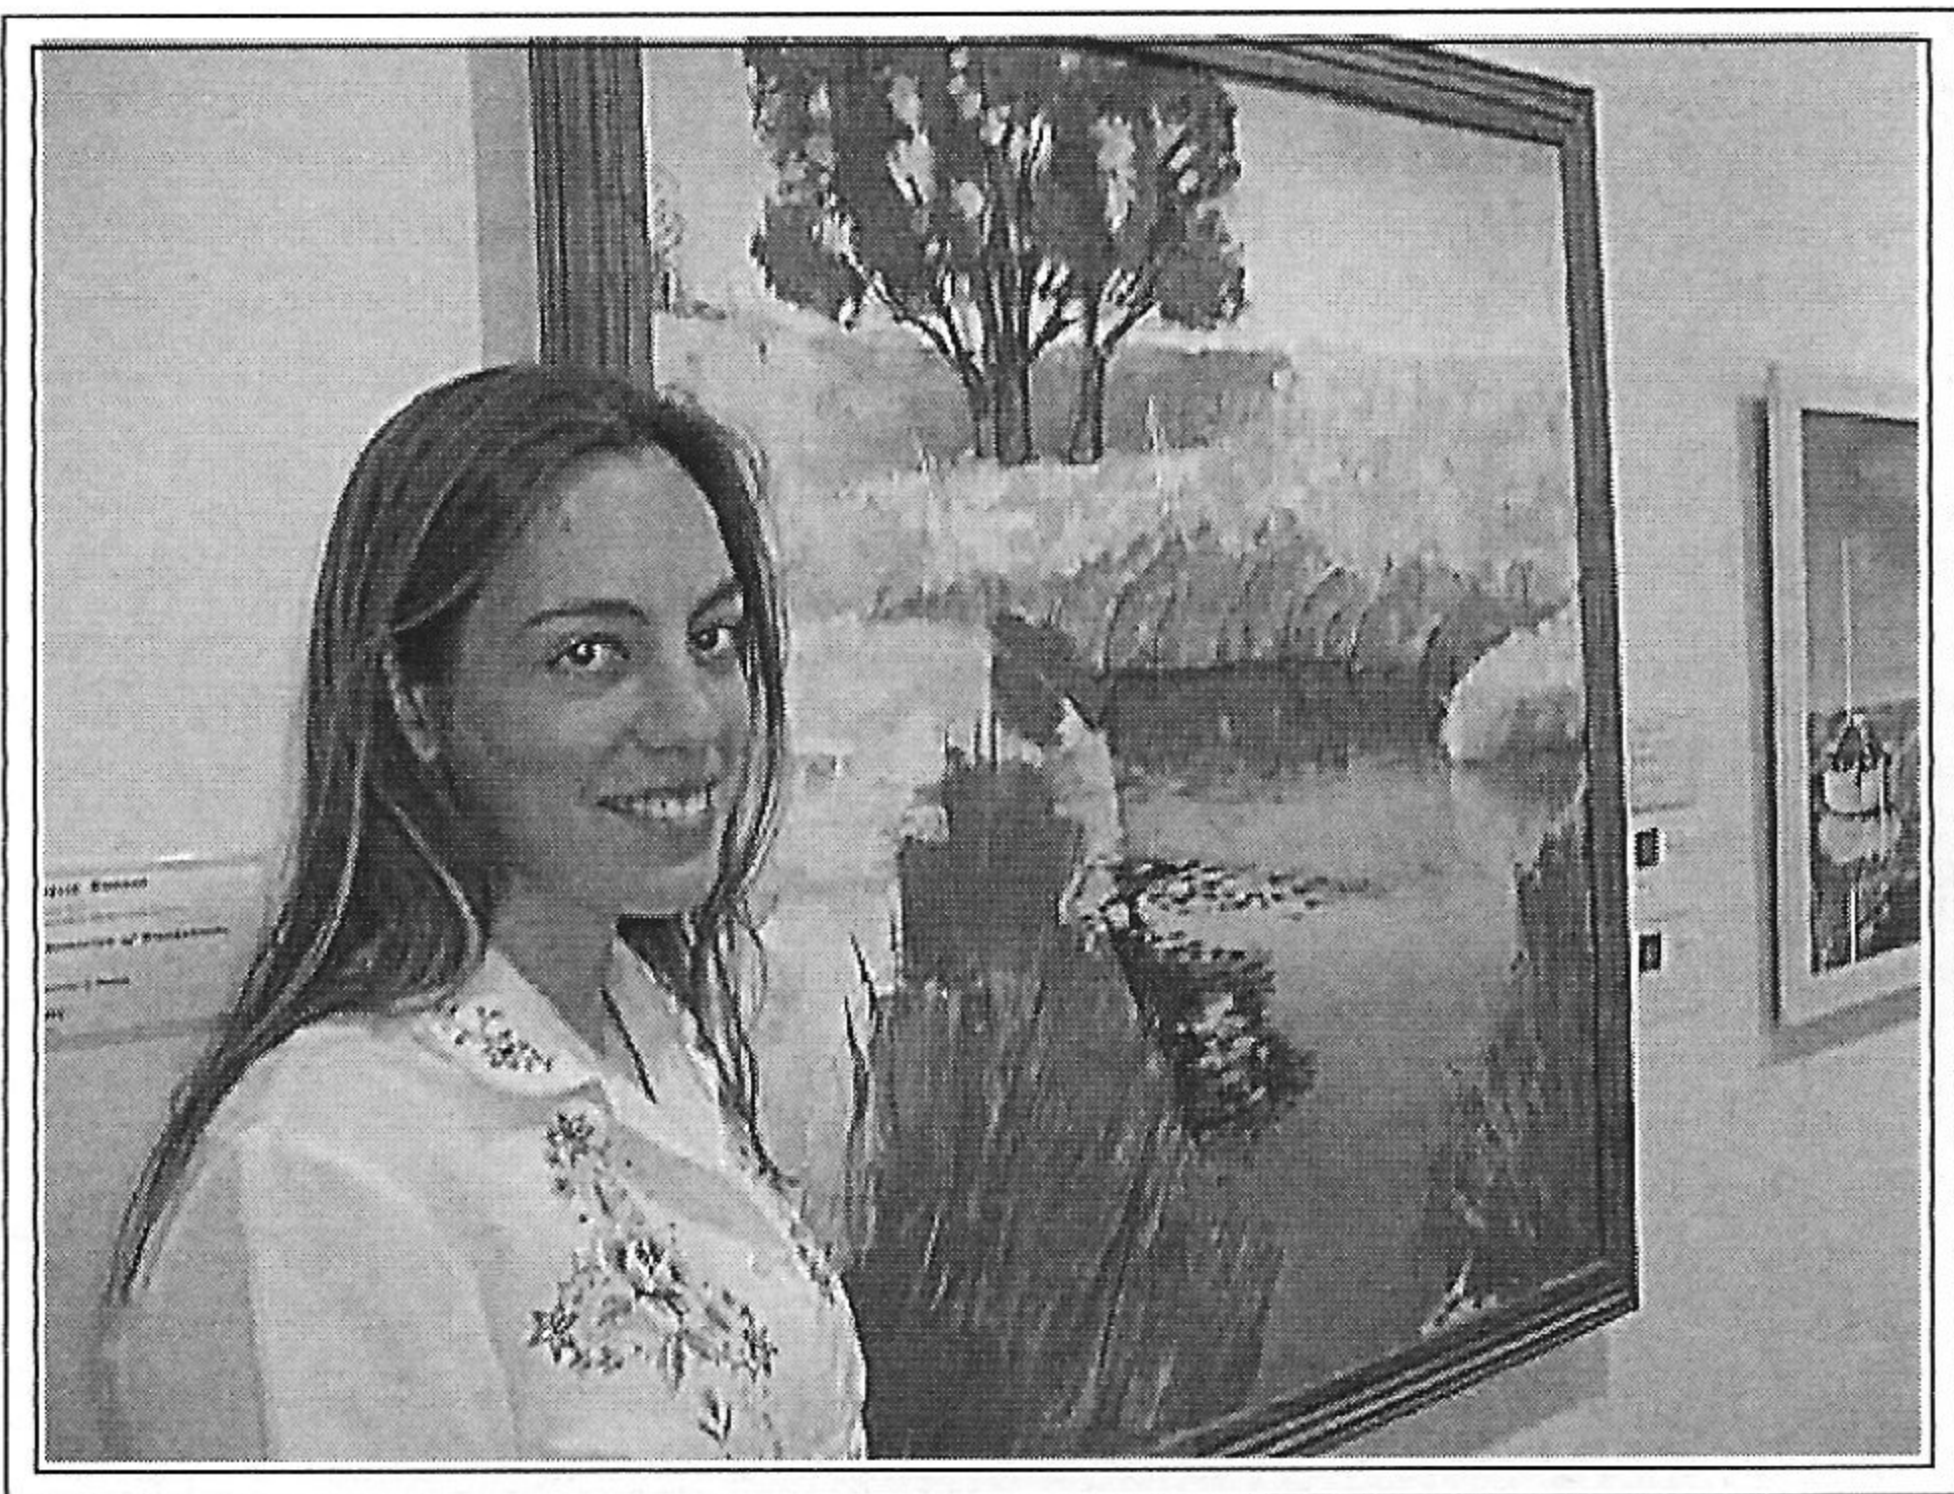

The service had the privilege of being addressed by John McBeatty, who enlisted in the Armed Forces of World War Two when he was only seventeen. Other highlights included the school band, which performed "Sunday, Bloody Sunday", and the Year 12 singers, who presented "Advance Australia Fair" and "Amazing Grace".

Ben Tayler and Leah Upson laid the wreath, followed by the Last Post and the raising of the flag.

The service continued Bunbury High's tradition of remembering the horror and sacrifice of war and commemorating the courage of many Australians.

Amy Della-Sale and her winning painting

The Visions Art Exhibition is an annual event that takes place in the Bunbury Regional Art Galleries - some 23 schools participate covering the whole of the South West.

Competition for awards is intense and to win an award is a true acknowledgment of excellence.

This year Amy Della-Sale of Year 12 won the prize for the best upper school painting and the prize for best overall work in Upper School. A great achievement Amy - Well done!!!

As for those students whose work has not been selected, well that is something to aim for next year and the selectors look for not simply excellent art work, but work which has lots of impact and is already well presented.

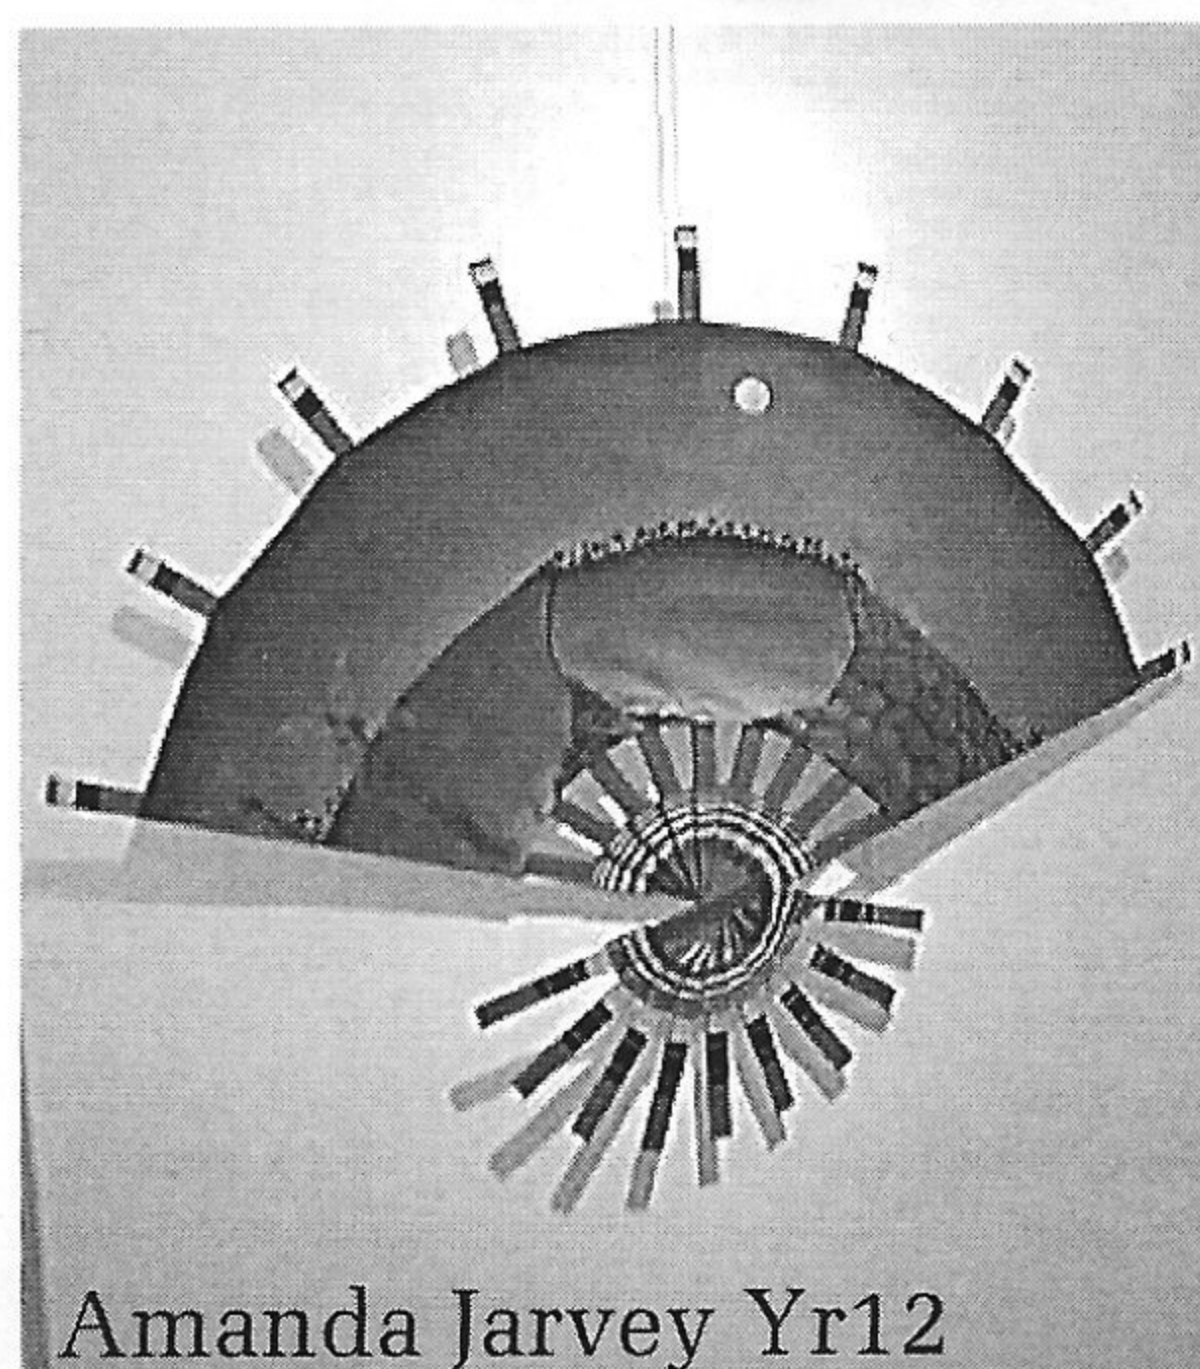

So finally, we have produced some truly excellent work in the Art Department this year.

Congratulations go to all those art students who worked hard to polish their talents and brighten our art rooms and our lives.

A Schizophrenic's Story

- or, for the non-dramatically minded, 'an account of the 1998 Athletics Carnival'

JERRYLL (... or a glorified melodramatic look at events)

It's as close as most of us will get to the Olympics. The buzz of expectation, the healthy hostility. We arrived on the morning of Friday April 3rd, four streams of colour, ready for battle, hungry for glory. For that one day, strangers united in colour, in spirit, in shade covered bays as they cheer their team on.

We had our champions, our record breakers, our heroes. Tim Howe's amazing jump, clearing two metres. Emmanuel D'Cress, Dimity Lee Duke's wonder run, almost lapping the rest of the field... many others. I felt honoured to have raced beside them, to have been a part of the glorious event.

It was a smooth carnival. My eighteenth, if I've been counting right, and last. Memorable for Powelly's lively commentary, Forrest's victory, the great Freddo sell and the relentlessly happy April sun shining on us.

HYDE (...or a cynical and bitter look at events)

You probably haven't even read this far. There's nothing new or exciting to say about athletic carnivals. Red wins, or Green wins, or Blue wins, or... what's the other colour? If that's what you want to hear, go read last year's report and change the names.

Forrest was winning all the way. You other losers didn't stand a chance. That's all there is to say. And didn't I feel proud as we stood there, the greenies, the shield hoisted triumphantly above us? Yeah, hugely. But it was 3:25 and I was itching to get home.

(NOTE: to all the psychiatrists reading this, I know schizophrenia is a much more complex and serious disease than a simple split personality but I needed a cheap, slightly funny headline (and so did I))

ROCK EISTEDDFOD

Overview by the Revered Leader

It's Wednesday afternoon and I'm sitting at home. Nowhere to be, nothing to do. Wow! For the past 8 months 98 students, 4 staff and over 11 parents have spent Wednesday afternoons in the Performing Arts Centre and gym dancing, choreographing, building, painting, sewing, cutting, ringing, booking, organising, liaising, sweating, laughing and crying.

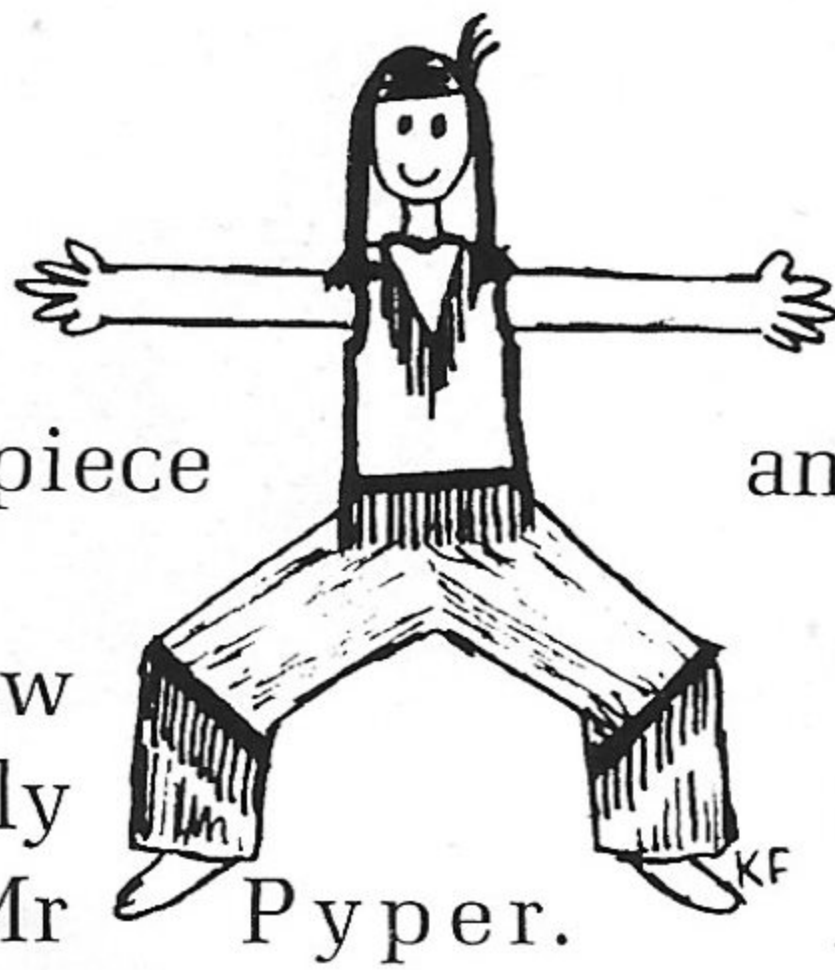

The ten Year 12 and 11 choreographers started discussing themes seriously in Term 1, 1998. They had been toying with ideas since they learnt what a Rock Eisteddfod was in 1994.

After discussing several themes, the girls and guy, settled on The Wild West. The original inspiration came from a photo in the photoroom (thanks Mr Muir) of a man's ankle and a toy train. The journey across the Wild West was born. After much discussion on how to give this a theme 'leaving home and facing life's challenges' the hard work began.

The gala was our first test and staff and audience.

Most people really enjoyed the piece proved to be a great preview for cast, crew, and could see how great it was going to be.

Finally our heat day arrived. A few students turned up bright and early backstage crew Mr Muir and Mr Pyper. left to have a shower, rest and get some tea.

bleary eyed but mostly bushy tailed for the bus trip to Perth to meet our After a fantastic run through, the students

I was waiting at Burswood for the cast and crew to return by 5.30pm to get ready for our performance in the number two spot. One bus arrived, the other was bogged. Thanks to the friendly staff at McDonald's who allowed our kids to do their hair and makeup in the middle of the restaurant.

The performance was fantastic and we picked up 6 awards that evening: Choreography, Drama Skills, Performer's Choice, School Community, Lighting and Technology and Engineering Innovation. We waited eagerly for the announcements of the grand finalists on Friday.

Everyone was so excited to be named and looked forward to the next two weeks of rehearsals.

The finals day arrived!. After drawing number 11 for the final the cast and crew went to get ready for our rehearsals. The students looked very professional and I was so proud of them. Time for tea and then back to the dressing room to start preparing for the evening.

Clips, gel, hairspray, curling wands, eyelashes, face paint, massages, glue, makeup, lipstick, mirrors, tissues. The cast looked absolutely fantastic with beautiful hair and makeup. Our crew also got into the spirit of things with hair and makeup. The interval was over and it was time to move down to the waiting area. Mrs Dykstra, Mrs McGinley, Mr Muir and myself went to the auditorium to watch our little petals. Ms Gibbney was our representative judge.

Guildford Grammar finished their piece and Deanne Richards was on introducing us. We performed brilliantly !!!

Time for the presentations. A total of 24 awards were given out. Bunbury was awarded: Best Choreography, Best Drama Skills, School Community and Excellence and Performers' Choice

Finally the results were given:

- 5th Lumen Christi
- 4th Perth Modern School
- 3rd Ocean Reef
- 2nd BUNBURY
- 1st Mandurah SHS

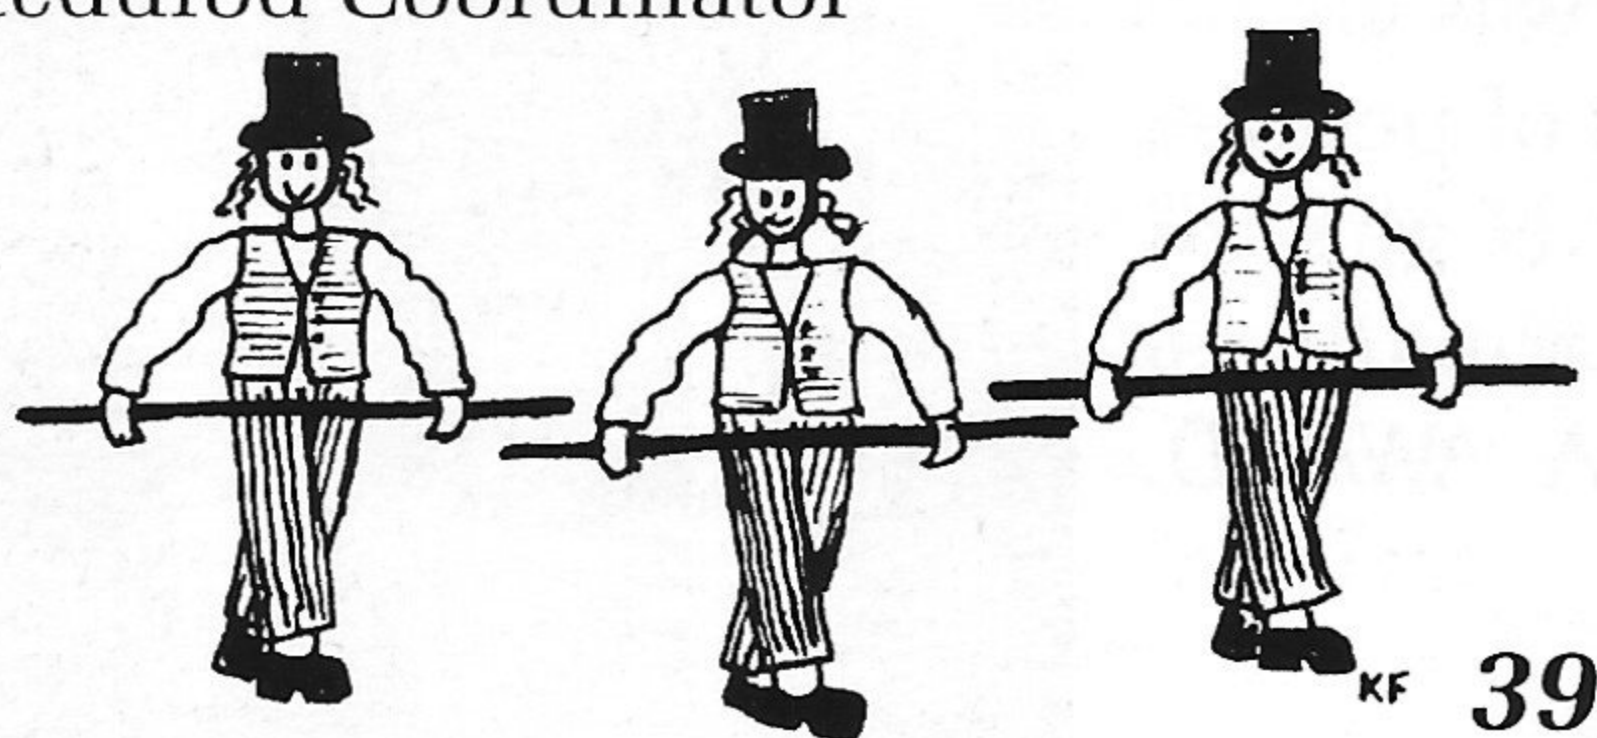

WOW! How excited were we?

I am so absolutely proud of everyone involved in the Rock Eisteddfod this year.
"COOL BANANAS"

Many thanks to: Katie Dykstra, Caz Gibbney, Trevor Muir, Kel Clayden and the Year 12 Woodwork class, Debbie McGinley, Leanne Hadden and all our fabulous sewing mums, Michael Pyper, Suzanne Saunders, BSHS staff (especially Home Ec for their rooms) and students and all our major sponsors.

Down Acting Memory Lane

Ahhh.....what beautiful memories. The long icy nights gazing into Leo's eyes.....hang on that wasn't Rock Eisteddfod, that's Titanic. Rock Eisteddfod, Rock Eisteddfod, Rock Eisteddfod..... Ahhh... what beautiful memories. Let me start from the beginning.

Tryouts - in small groups we were given the scenerio of going shopping at the supermarket. We had to act individually while the Year 12's judged us. We were given various scenarios which tested our ability, then the Year 12's decided who got in (Tip, it never fails to slip a twenty under the table, ha, ha).

Rehearsals. We were told the theme was "Wild Wild West" and the story-line was going to be about this character Jake (Andrea) who leaves his home for a taste of the west by the Gold-digger Express Train. He travels through the Cowboys and Indians of the Wild West and upon his arrival at the saloon, he falls for a show girl (Stacey). The evil villian (David) also has eyes for the show girl so Jake and the villian play a hand of cards for her only for the villian to cheat and take the girl. This leads to a gun fight where the hero Sheriff (Steve) saves the day and Jake gets the girl, and the villian is put away.

We were not given exact characters straight away but had a fair idea of who we were going to play.

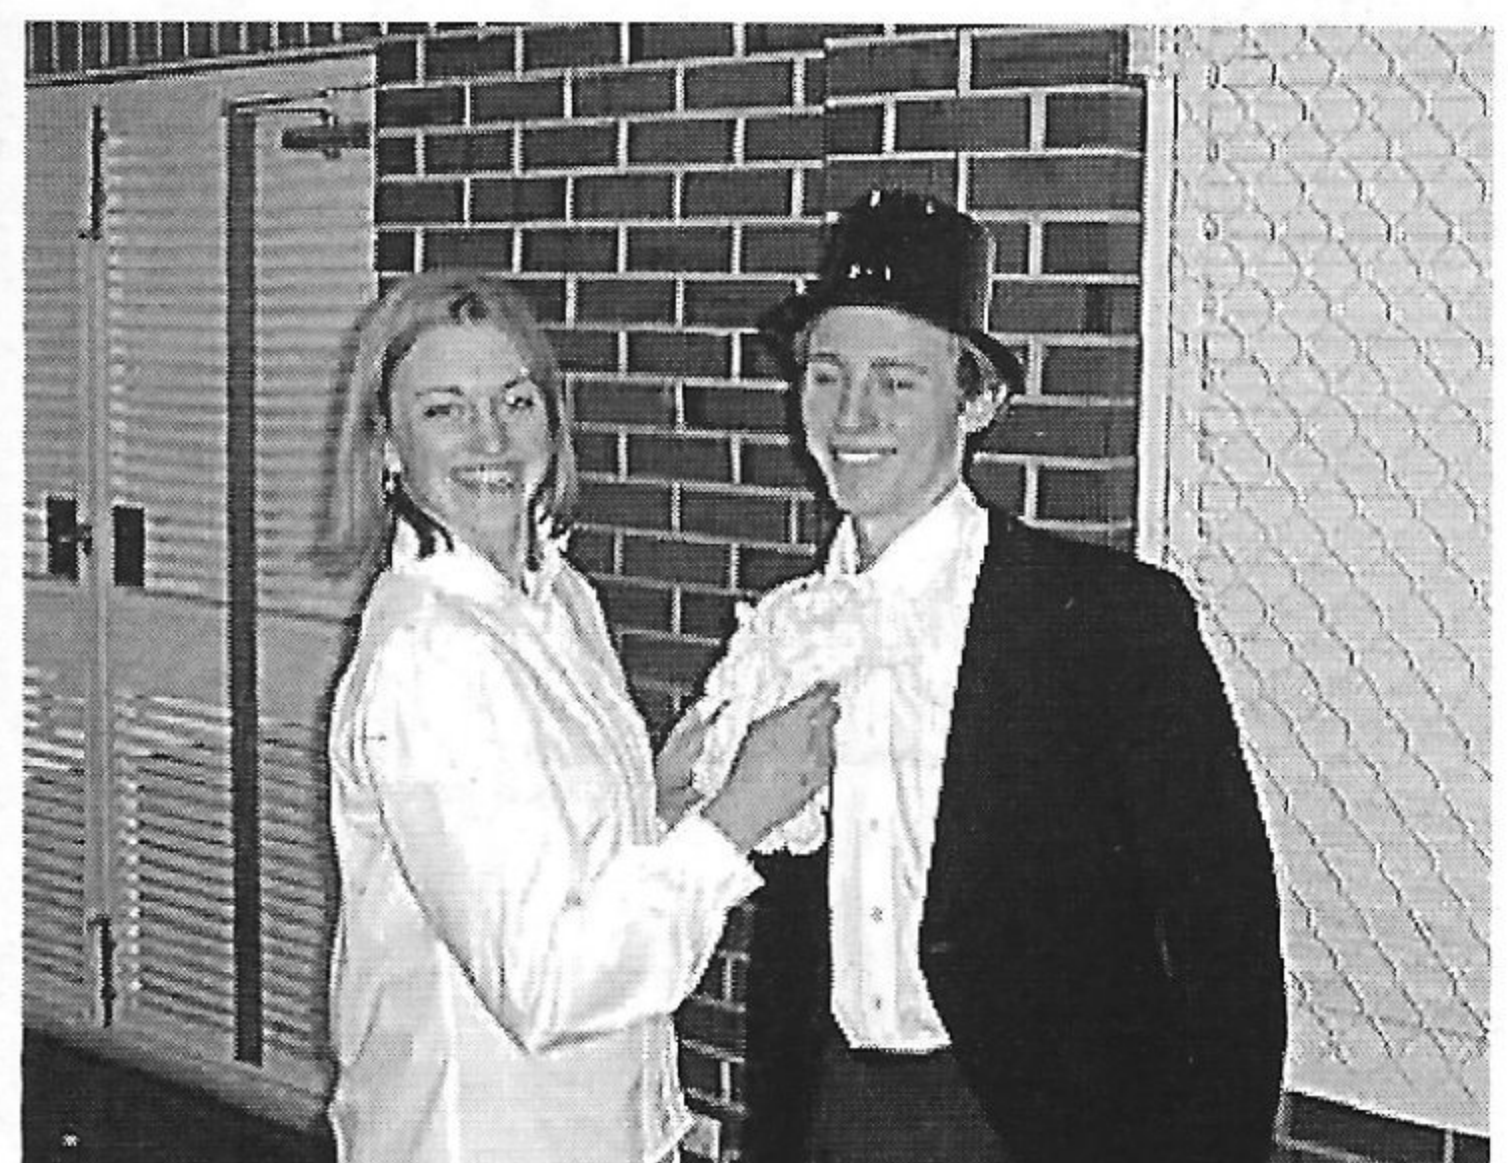

We then got to know everyone through ice-breaker games. We didn't actually start to fully devise our characters and scenes until much later when most of the dance scenes had been thought of and started to take place.

Mrs. Dykstra first helped us on the final gunfight scene deciding on the main characters walk up to each other and then the other characters coming in the back as town bystanders betting and talking about the gun fight that was going to take place. Each actor was given the opportunity to develop their own characters as to how they felt they should act.

Bringing it together for the performances Nothing could describe on how it feels to be up there on stage, it was great!. Every time we performed it got better. I met heaps of people, but best of all we showed Perth what Bunbury High's all about. We collected numerous awards including friendliest school, but most importantly the BEST DRAMA AWARD. YAHHH!!!!!!!!!!!!

Amanda Bolderoff

Rock Eisteddfod Dancers ~ The Road to Stardom

It was that time of year. A time when all dance hopefuls were warming up and showing off while the choreographers were stressing about who they would pick - yep it was that time - the dance tryouts!!

By the end of the learning week, I think Aqua was implanted in everyone's mind and those steps in everyone's body. Lunchtimes were no longer social times, but chances to score extra brownie points with the choreos. At last the tryouts were on, it was finally time to strut our stuff. The next week all through the school you could either hear screams of delight or uncomfortable silences.

It was ROCKO time and we would soon be looking forward to "lunchless" lunches and "Sundayless" weekends.

After a "settling down" period, the Bunbury Senior High Rock Eisteddfod began to take shape.

After many weeks of learning and practising, came the showing of the dances to the other groups which was met by many enthusiastic Oohs and Aahs (and the teachers' "Goosebumps")

It was now only about a month before the Gala night and after many threats, the inevitable occurred - Sunday rehearsals, followed by the sleepover. We found out who the morning people were and who were not, but it is hard to be cheerful after 8 hours of dancing, 1 hour of sleep, 4 hours dancing the next day and waking up with someone walking all over you. But we were all happy to have finished learning the dances.

The next big event for Rocko was now the Gala night, and it wasn't only the dancers and teachers that were stressing, but also the sewing mums, actors, backstage crew and especially the choreos.

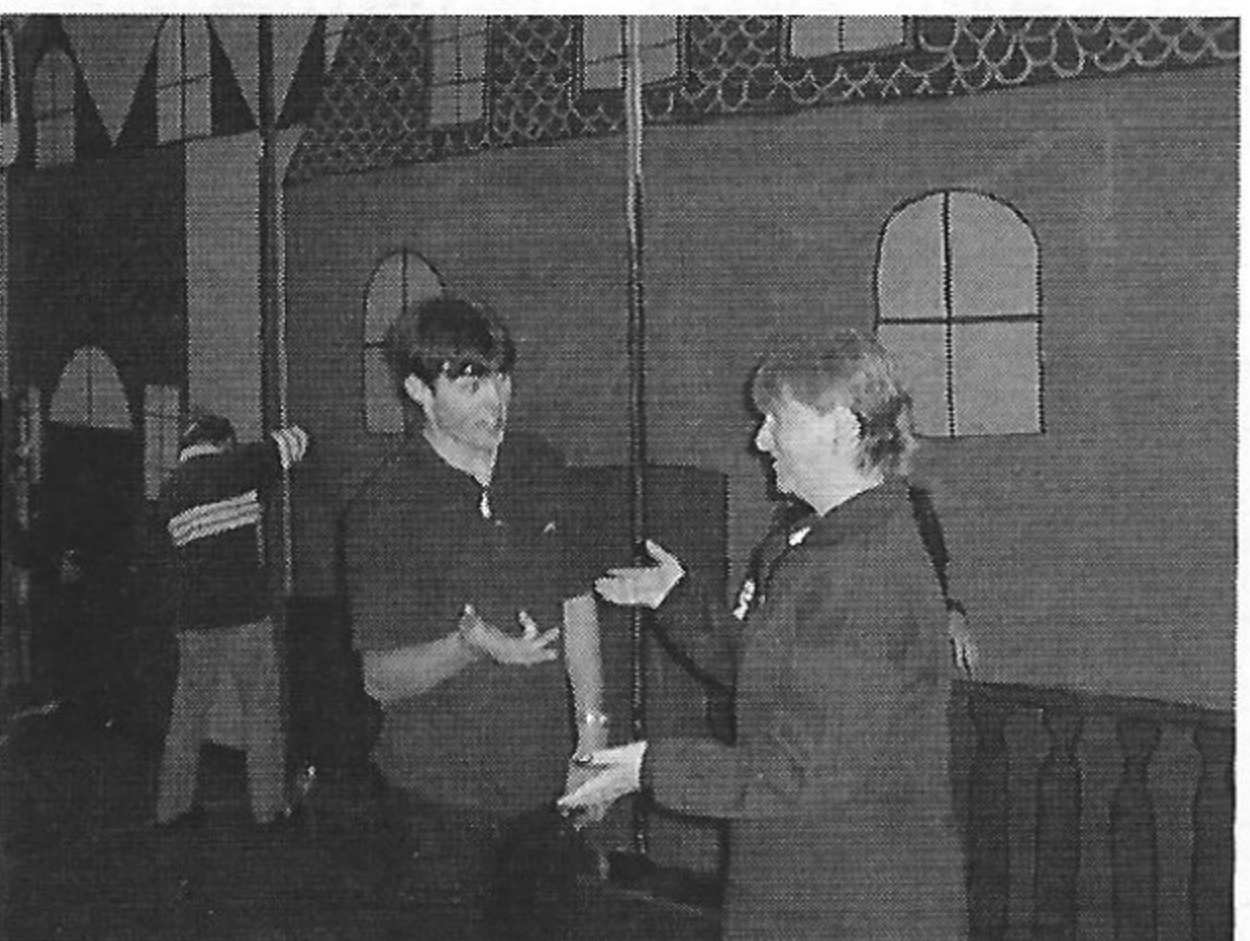

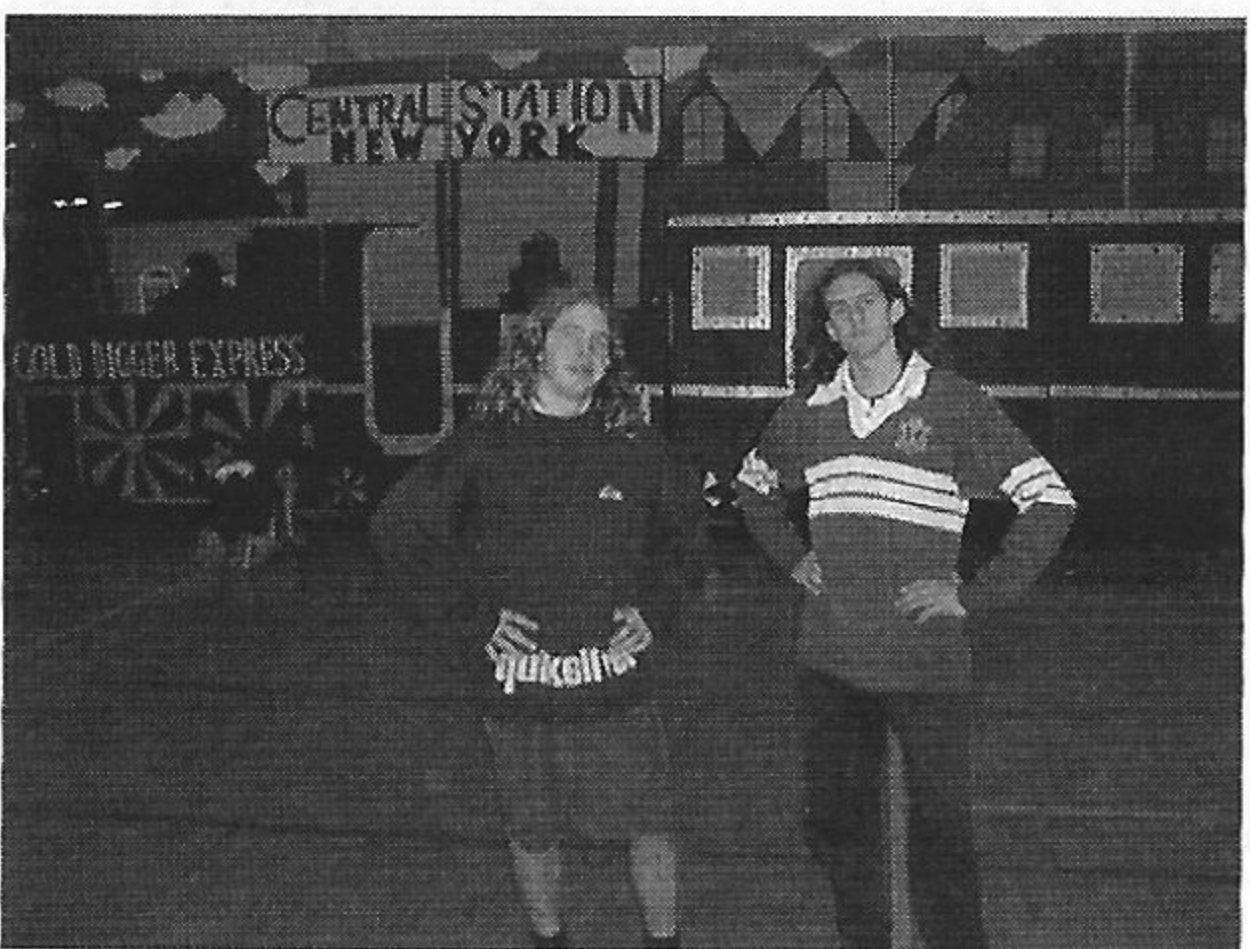

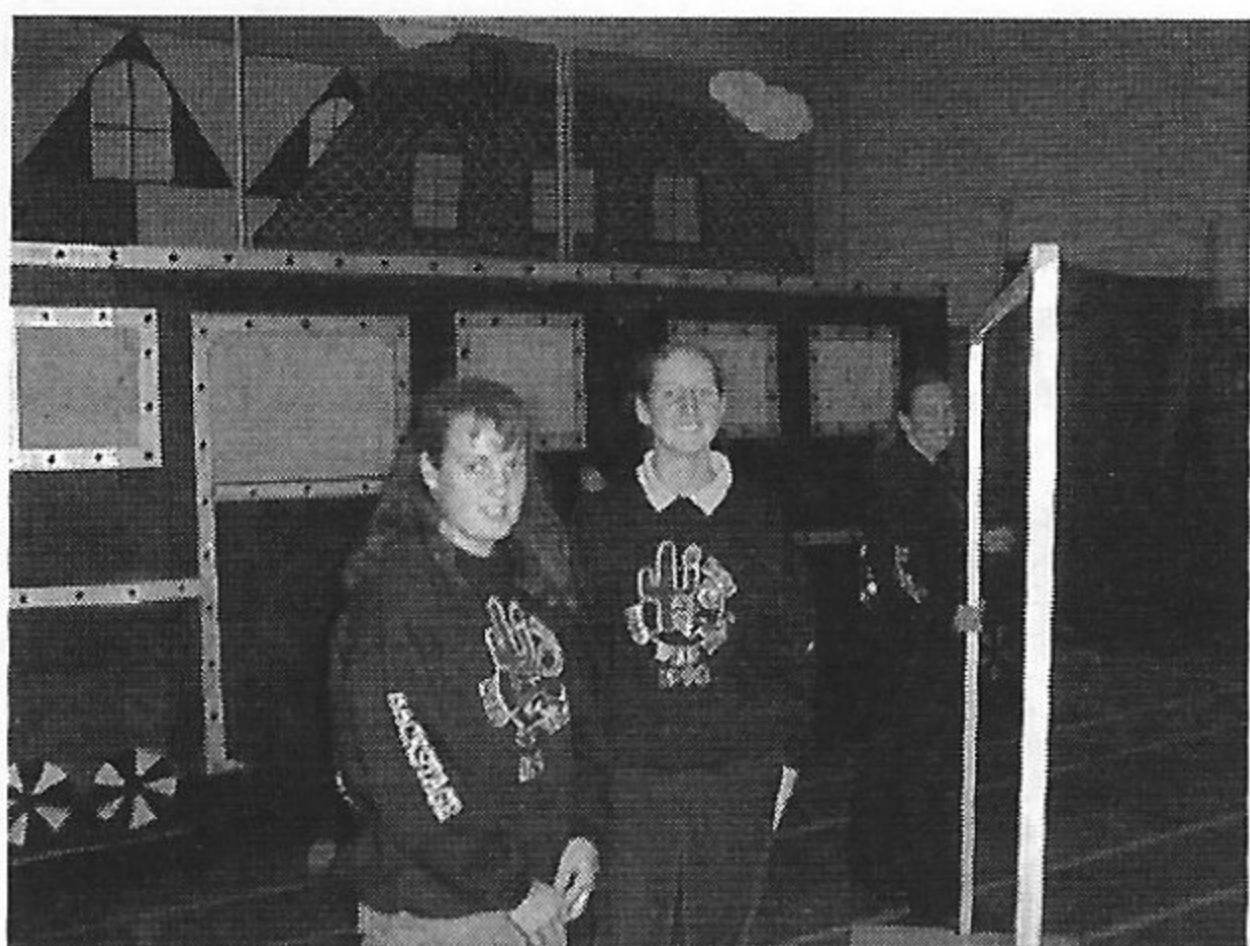

After the Gala night, which was interesting, came the finishing touches, last minute changes, lots of rehearsing and then, the big event.....

(Have a look at Miss P's page for the lowdown on the big night)

Sharon Ferguson

Rock Eisteddfod - Backstage Report

As many of the backstage people would say "being in backstage is a long and tedious process". Even before we were a part of the backstage we had to write a "suck up" letter to the teachers. (It was an application letter..... Miss P).

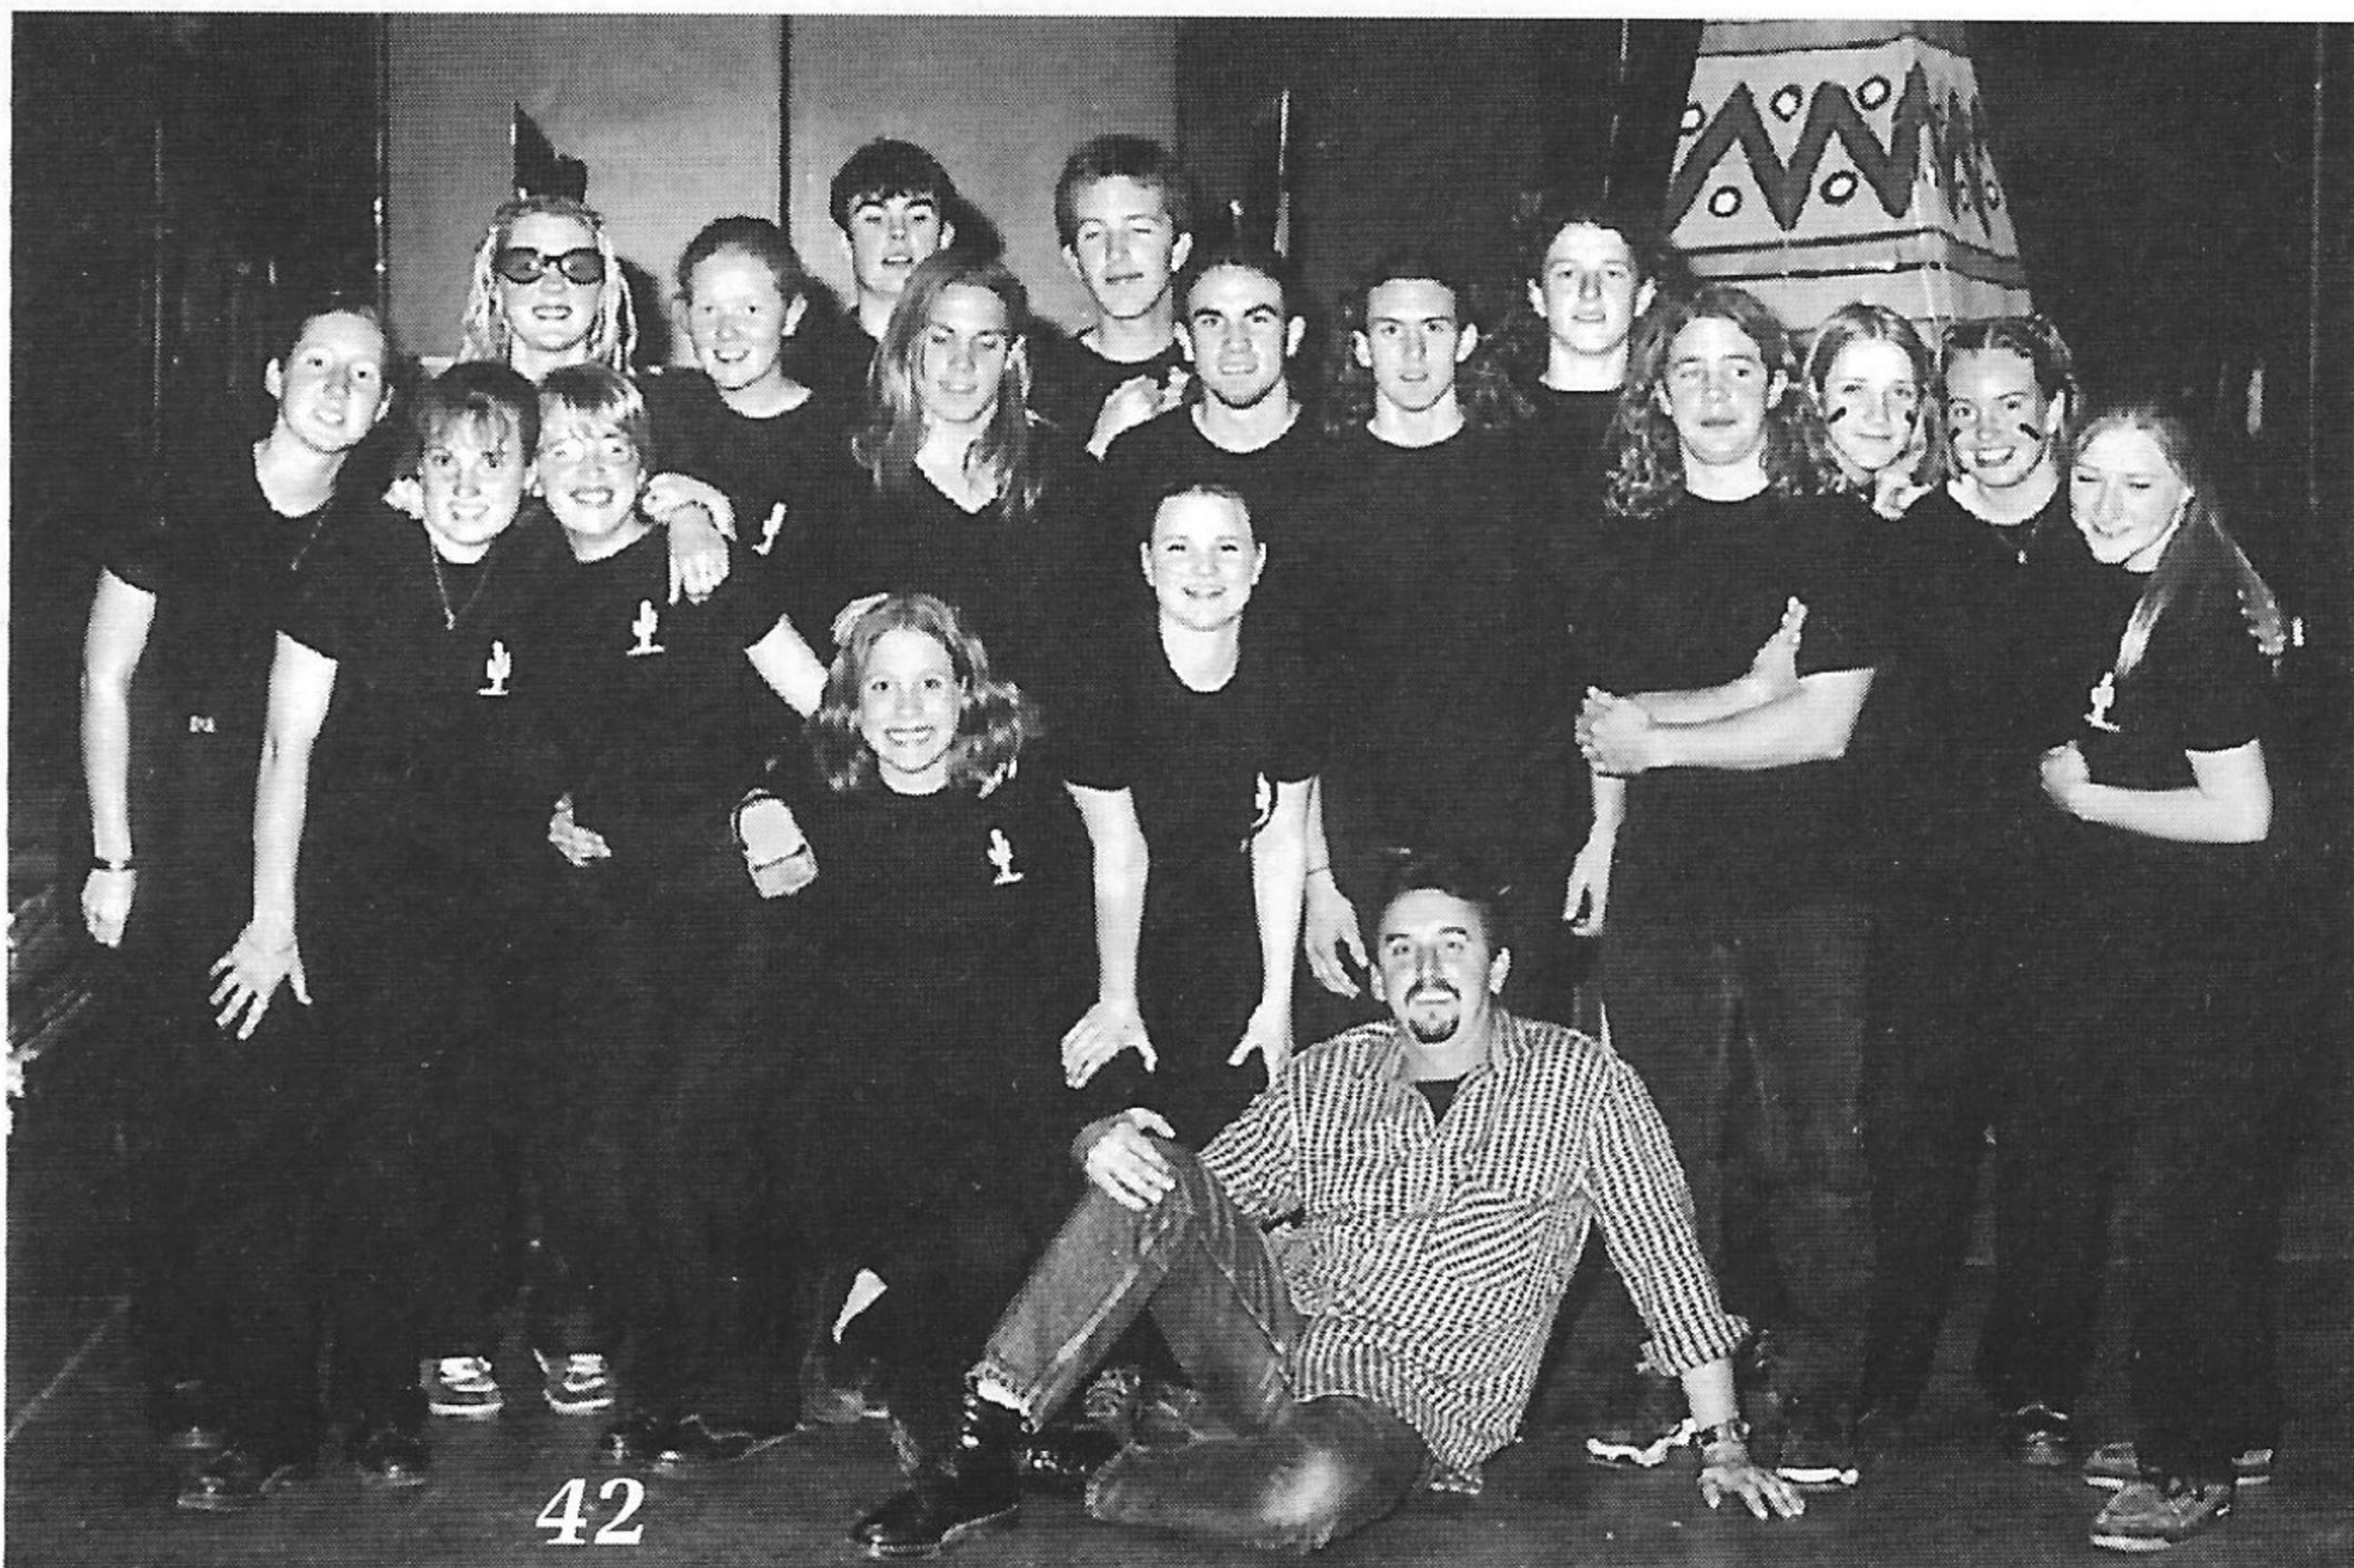

Once we were chosen the lucky 20 were told that it was a "Wild Wild West" theme, and ideas were given from the choreographers. We had to decide how to make the best set we could out of the ideas and after a lot of negotiation between everyone it was decided that triangles would be used as the flats at the back of the stage as well as a full length train and other smaller props.

We gave the basic measurements to the woodwork people under the tireless direction of Mr Clayden. They did a lot of hard work putting it all together, and once their hard work was done it was our turn. As the production came together some of the backstage people started on other jobs such as lighting and costumes.

All the props were ready for painting and the pictures that were going on the flats. We got our old clothes and paint brushes out and started on everything. After many afternoons, Sundays and lunchtimes painting and preparing the props, everyone was pleased with what we did. The time had come to start practicing, so we all got our jobs. We practiced and practiced and practiced some more. We worked together as a group and learnt a lot about teamwork and organisation. All the preparatory work meant that we were really well prepared and the performances went very well.

A big thank you to Mr Muir for all of his hard work with this year's backstage crew.

Two Italian Exchange Students! Wow!!

This year, in a first for Bunbury Senior High School, we played host to 2 Italian Exchange Students.

Thanks to the generosity of the Barton-Harvey and the Marino McCaughan families Giulia Rafaelli and Maura Cravero were able to spend 2 wonderful months in Western Australia. With hopes of seeing Kangaroos, touching koalas and swimming in the Indian Ocean the students arrived in June and spent 8 jam packed weeks in Bunbury.

While here they: went whale watching in Augusta, river cruised in Perth, visited schools in Boyup Brook, stayed up all night watching the World Cup Soccer, kicked up their heels at the Gala Night, lunched with the year 10 Italian class at Nicola's restaurant, cooked up a storm in home economics and were exceptional bingo callers at the Lower School L.O.T.E. Bingo Evening.

A message from Marian Mauriello

G'day mates!!! I may not say it properly like a real Aussie but I can write it "Perfect".

Well I'm Marian Mauriello and I tell you again: Not Mariana.

I come from Venezuala "The country of the Beauty". It is just known because of its beautiful women, other ways everyone ask you where is that??? ??? in India or Africa??? No, in South America and sometime there is one dumb that ask you where is South America?? I'm not good in geography so I just don't bother with that.

Anyway keeping going, I'm an exchange student with AFS and bla bla bla... I get sick seeing the same in all those speeches that an exchange student has to do as a part of a lot of embarrassing things but anyway I'm not that shy. So many things are easy for me, few people of this school has told me that I'm not shy at all, even when a normal Australian or maybe any nationality must be shy for anything. That's the way of different cultures, and we are here to learn that sometimes we fall off but I get up again and that's the best way to learn, making mistakes.

Well I think that I'm getting to long writing, Mr Davis told me to write few lines but as I talk tooo much I may write tooo much as well.

I just wanna tell that this year has been the best in my whole life. I just have 2 months till I go back and I don't wanna think about it coz I don't wanna leave Australia but however wait for me in Year 2000.

If Australia wants me and there isn't anyone like the "legend" Pauline Hanson I'll be here maybe to live in this crook, wicked, filth, beautiful, crankin' and no worries country, just at the beach!!!

Catch you later !!!

Kristina Linder

Hi! I'm Kristina, an exchange student from Sweden, "the land of blond hair" and I have been here about 4 months now. I like Australia heaps and I am going to live here forever. Ha ha, you won't get rid of me that easy!!!

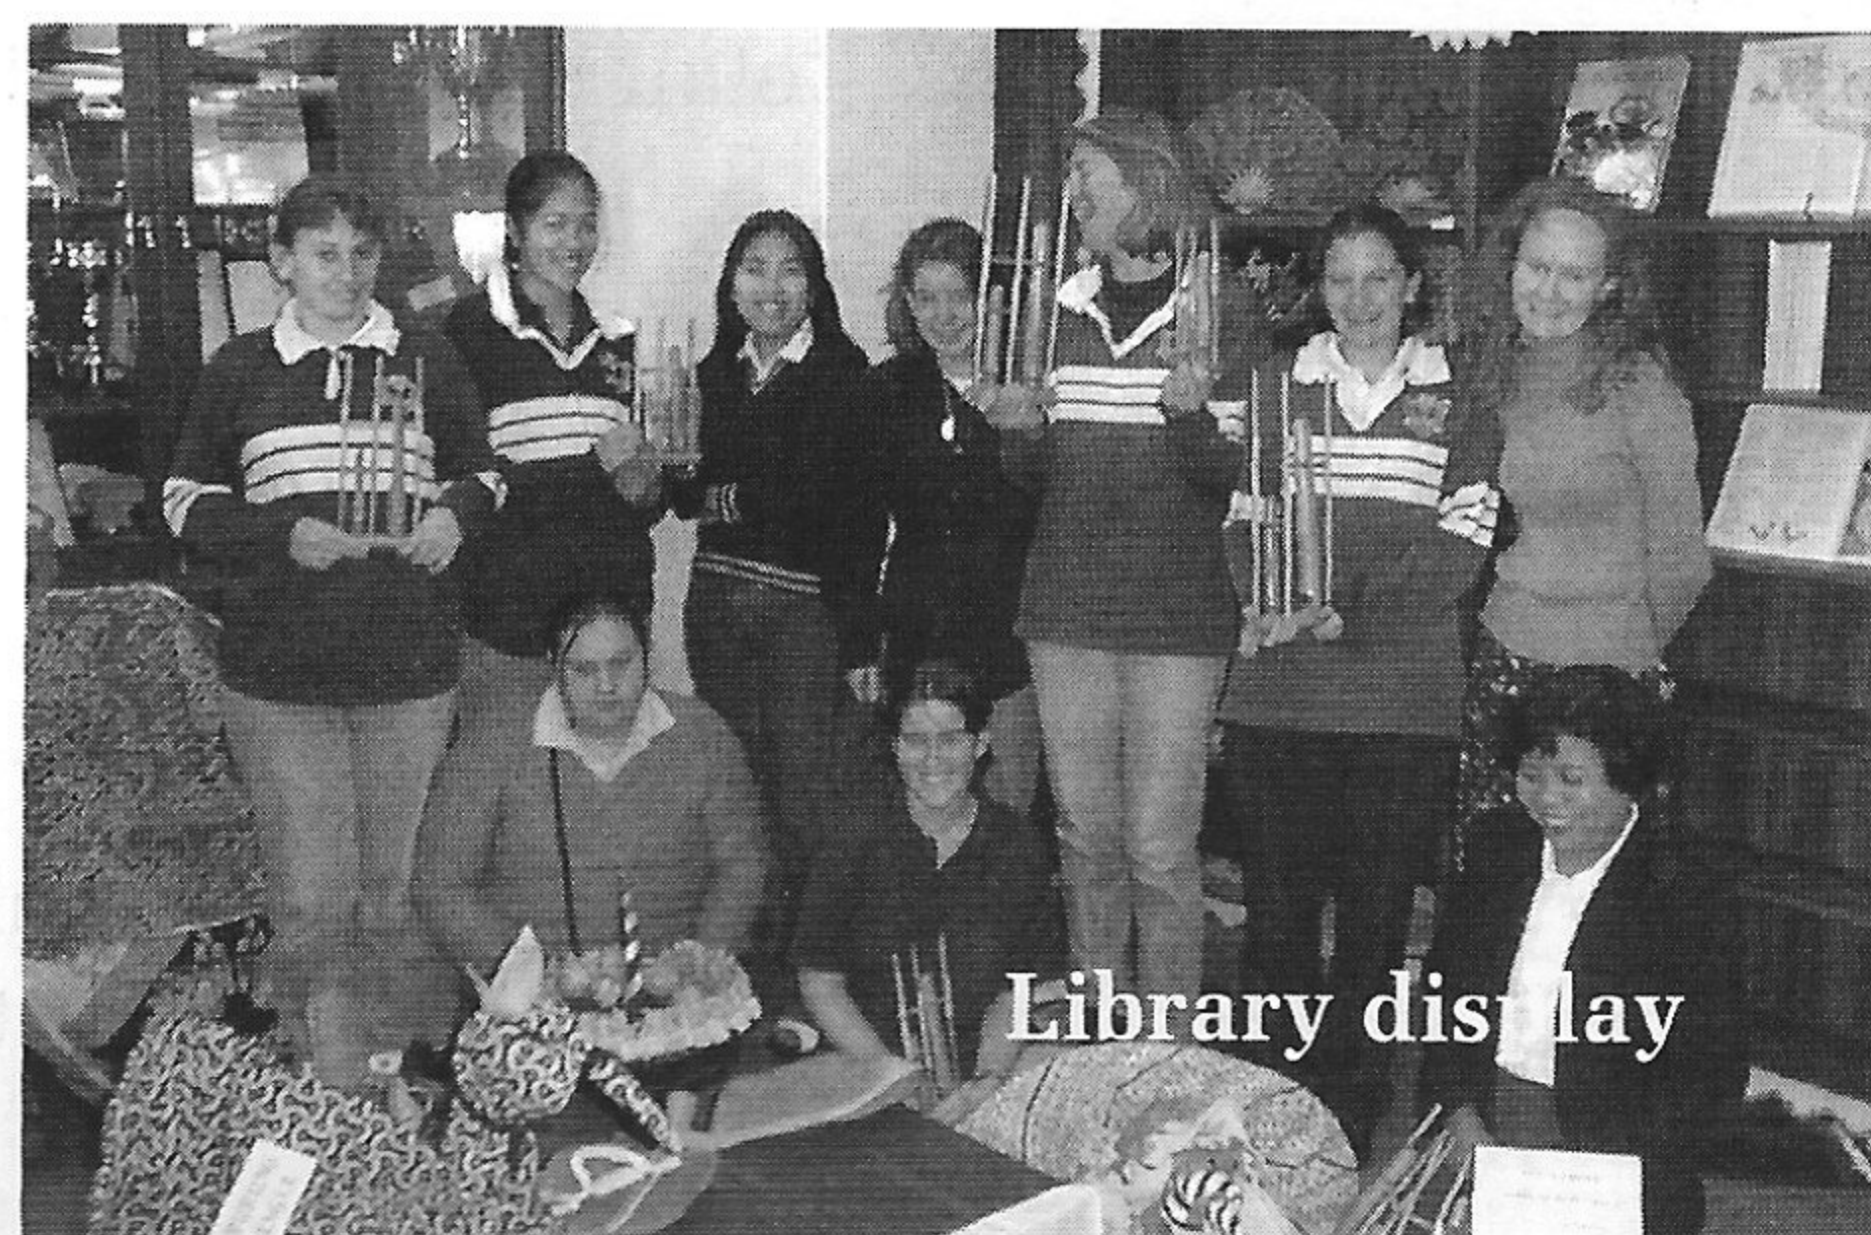

As some of the teachers might have noticed I haven't actually been studying, only interrupted the other hardworking students, but at least I've had FUN!!!. Thank you Kristie, Rhiannon, Sam, Bo-Jaye and Stacey for being really kind and thanks to everyone else that made me love Australia.

Of course a special award to Cory and Jeremy for making Senior Science to my funniest class. I will remember you all and everyone who wants to visit Sweden can stay at my house.

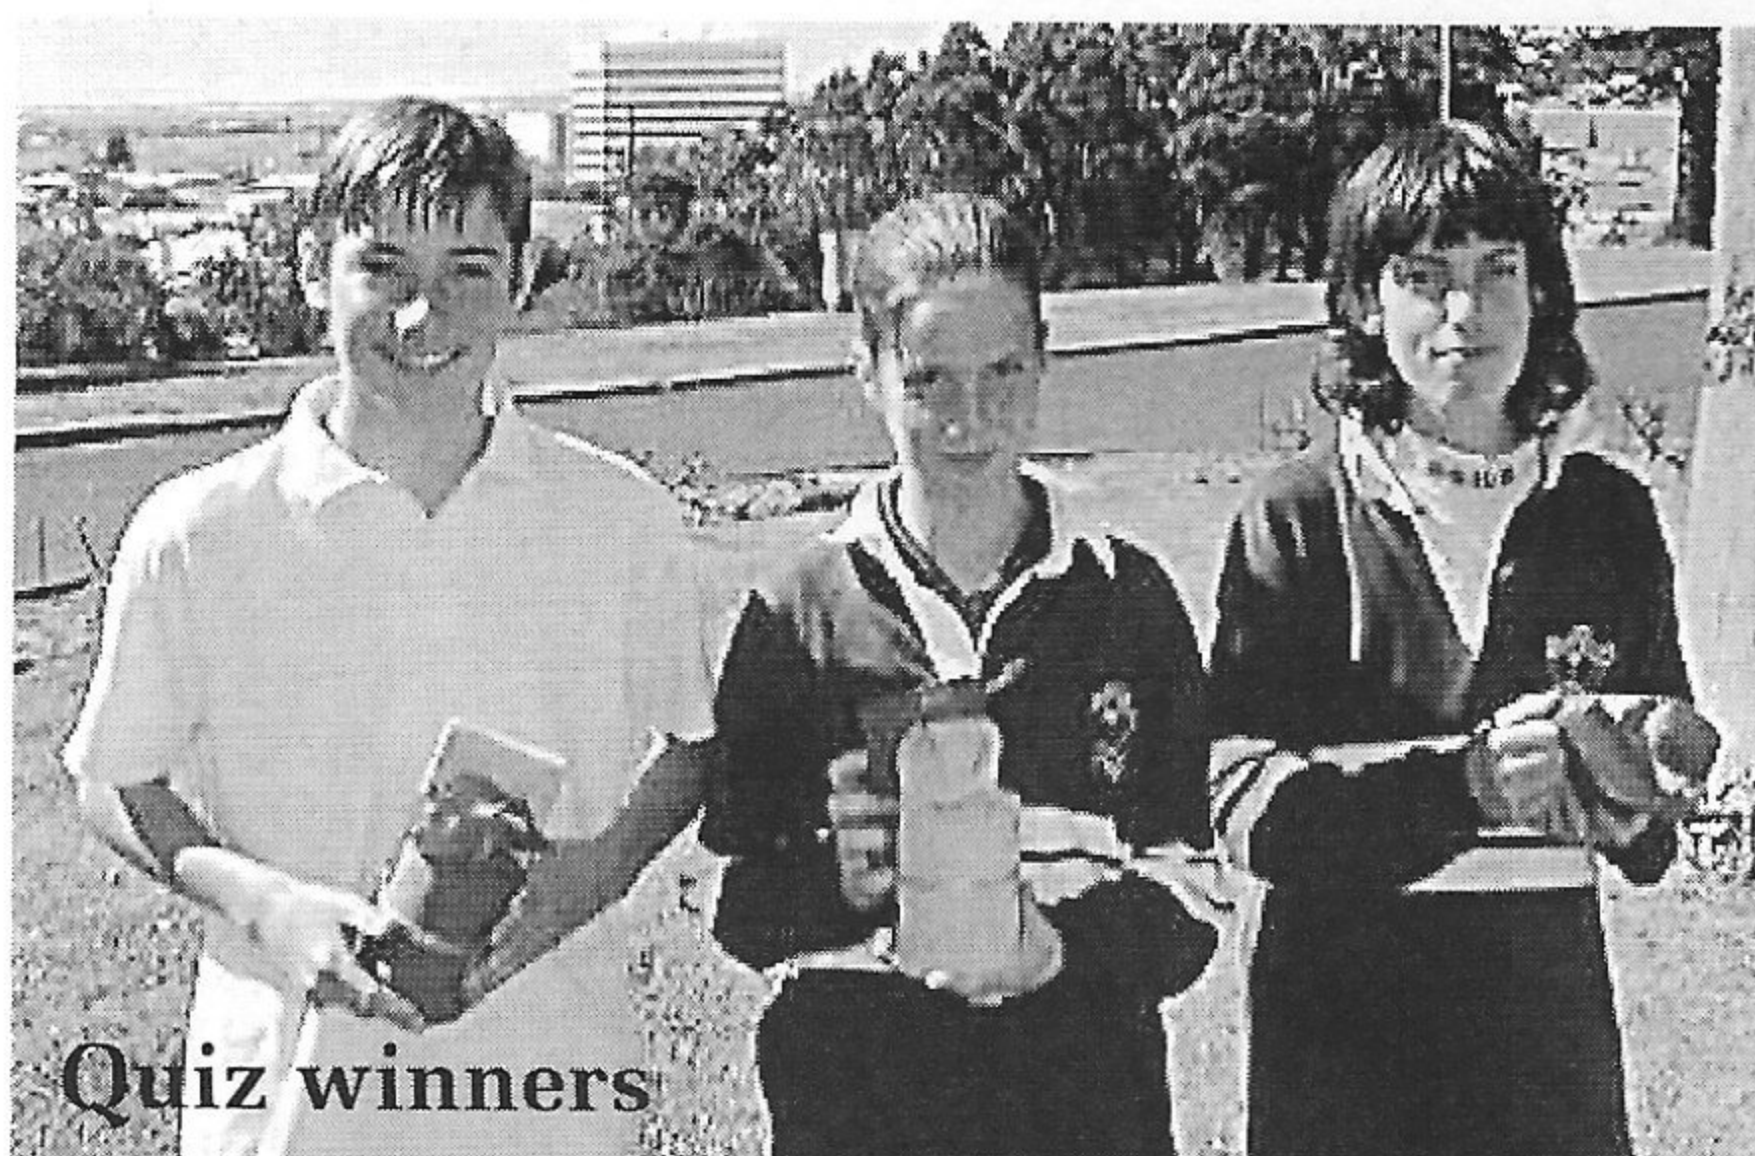

I lied - you cannot because I will not live there, but please come and see me here in Australia!!!!

Indonesian

Indonesian 1998 has taken a huge leap for mankind. We can now write stories and essays, sing traditional songs, conduct role plays and chat about our weekends - all in Indonesian. Thanks to the efforts of Ms Buchanan and Wati Brewer (pillars of strength for us right throughout the year).

Indonesian is a great language to learn.

I look forward to the job prospects an Asian language will offer me and I feel ready to set off backpacking through the thousands of lush, tropical Indonesian Islands, where Australians rarely set foot and the culture and language is so different to our own.

FRENCH LUNCH

On Wednesday the 17th June, 1998, the Year 9 French class went on a mission to eat snails. These are not any ordinary snails, no, these are not the ones which are cooked in garlic, oil and parsley and everybody desired them.

Well they did until they saw them in their little shells cooked to perfection. We all ended up at the "Wine Light Restaurant" formally known as "The Little Frog Restaurant". There we also had many French dishes ranging from Chicken and Beef Kebabs to Emu Pâte, Salmon Mousse and Vegetarian Crêpes for us to taste.

Then for desserts... Mmmmm. We had a choice of chocolate mousse, Cafe Liégeois or Crème Caramel.

With all the drinks, food and talking done we went home to rest our little (well by now BIG) stomachs from our delicious meal. All in all we had a lovely meal and afternoon.

Merci Mme Melchoirre ('était super chouette!)

Multicultural Day

Bunbury City Council held its Multicultural day on 18th October, 1998.

This was an excellent opportunity for the students of Bunbury Senior High School to show off their bi lingual talents.

Together with Mr. Brewer, the Year 11 TEE students and Mariana Di Nucci an exchange student from Argentina, sung a variety of folk songs from various regions across the Indonesian archipelago. The students put a great deal of effort into learning these songs, many of which were not written in Bahasa Indonesia, but regional dialects such as Javanese.

Indonesian people in the audience commented on the excellent pronunciation of the students, and their fantastic musical ability. The students gave a fantastic performance and need to be congratulated for mastering the difficult rhythms and complex vocabulary of the folk songs. Many thanks must go to Pak Brewer, for his commitment to the students.

French Boules

In one very thrilling lesson. Madam Melchiorre's Year 8 French class tried their hand at French bowls. The game is basically the same as lawn bowls, where you have to get your bowls as near to the jack as possible to win the points for your team. Everyone had a great time, French bowls was very enjoyable and is thoroughly recommended to anyone.

French at Bunbury Primary School

Last term the year 7's from room 11 and 12 joined together to cook up a storm. Laughter and excitement filled the room as the students started cooking their fondue.

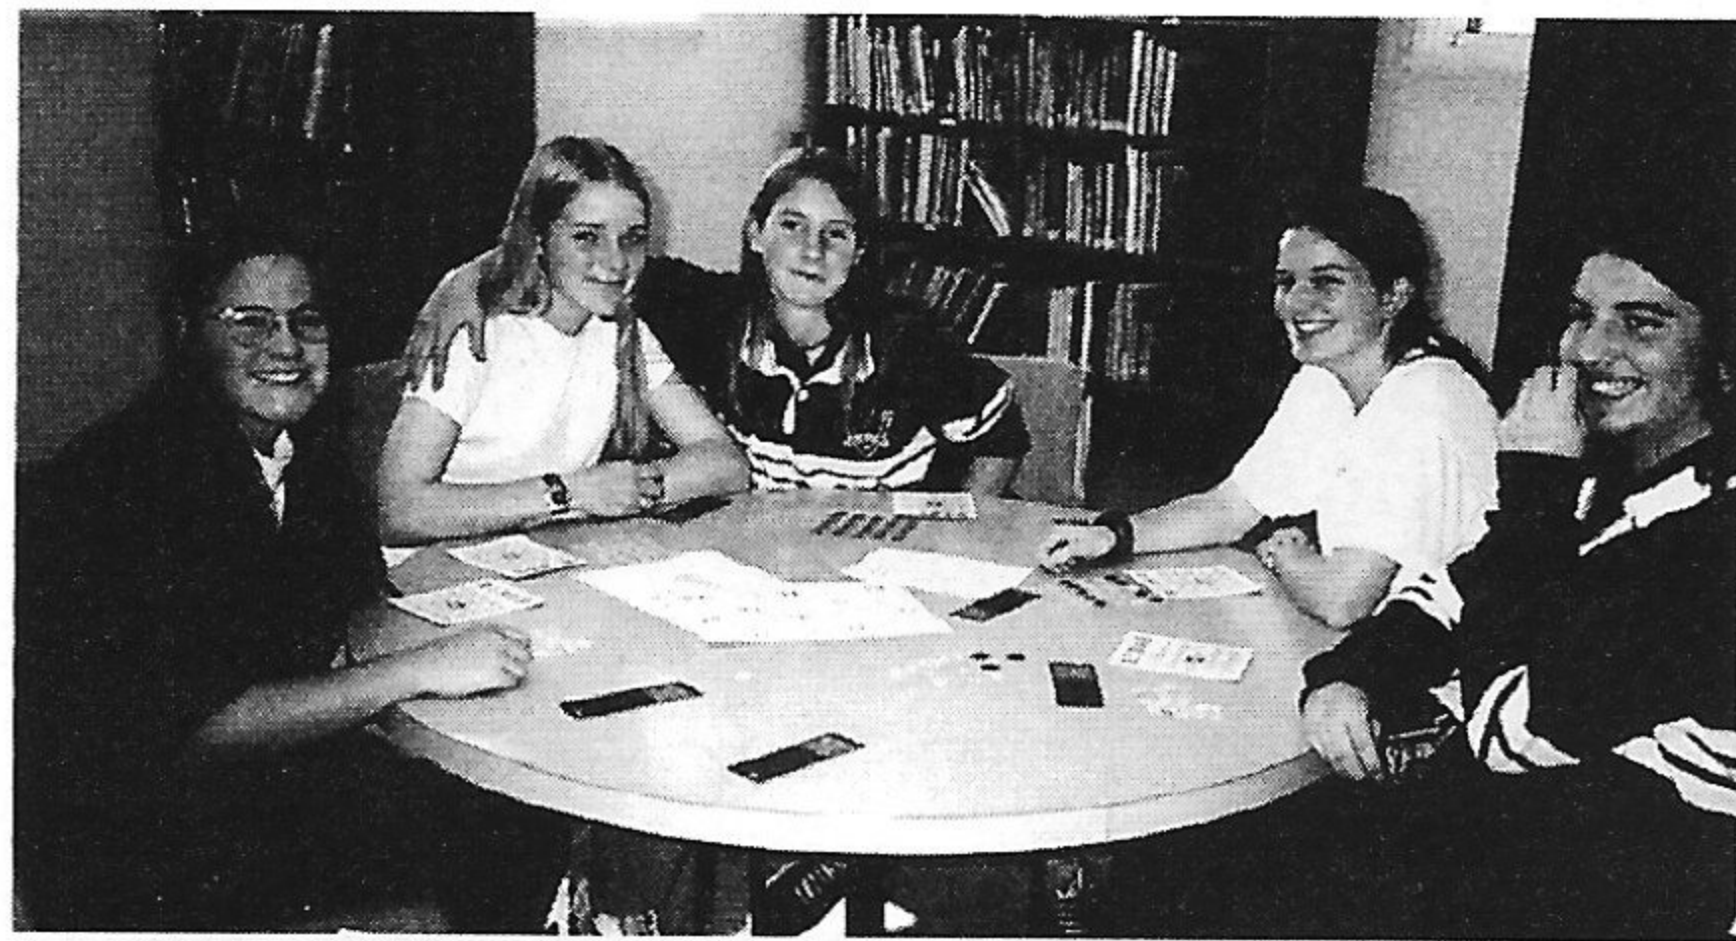

When everybody had finished eating their fondue we all joined in and helped clean up.

L.O.T.E. Bingo Evening.

On Wednesday the 18th October, 1998, language students and parents attended a Bingo Evening organised by the L.O.T.E. teachers.

About 40 people attended a night of fun, food and games.

There were six prizes to be won. We had prawn crackers, pizza, lemonade and connoisseur icecream for supper.

L.O.T.E. at Coinda Primary School

At the end of Second Term, Coinda Primary School Year 7 had a Fondue Au chocolat afternoon. We had marshmallows, lots of different fruits and pieces of sponge cake which we dipped into hot melted chocolate. The chocolate had an orange taste to it, but I really enjoyed it.

As you can see from the photo, we all enjoyed ourselves and we had great fun that day.

To Mme Melchiorre & class

I'm not really missing school. I'm sad, soaking up lots of history & art in Paris, including Rodin's "The Thinker" and Da Vinci's "Mona Lisa". Beaune was a lovely little religious town in the middle of Burgundy country and now we're enjoying the alpine landscapes in Chamonix. Hoig Crescent they won't let you in a téléphérique to see the alpine altitude to Aiguille du Midi. It's really nice the view into a tunnel into a glacier - awesome! Have also been on some lovely walks in the mountains. See you tomorrow.

Bonjour Mme/Moors
(that's what they say here, really fast) I'm writing from Paris where we've been staying for the last few days after our week in Germany and Holland. We're staying in a pretty seedy part of town not far from the Moulin Rouge, but at least we're close to a Metro station and a pâtisserie where we get lovely fresh pastries for breakfast. As well as doing all the touristy things like visiting the famous art museums and monuments, we're spending a bit of time watching buses in the streets and just sitting in cafes and restaurants, soaking in the atmosphere. Au revoir Mme, and salut class!

P.S. I think this picture portrays the real France. We saw some real flowers.

Dear Bunbury Senior High School

I've prepared a collage of my region which I thought would be better than a postcard.

The collage is of Nord-Pas-de-Calais like a state, and the capital is Lille.

My local region is Haut-kritois (like the South West) and the capital is Annas.

I'm staying at a little town called Richebourg which is 12km from Bethune (where I go to school) and 30km from Lille-Lille is an extraordinary city.

I often go there because there is a lot to see and do.

My school is huge. It is 3 stories and has over 1500 students and I've made plenty of friends.

I do not like the schooling system here, the hours are long and tiring and I go to school Saturdays.

The history and way of life in France is unique and each day gets better. I often think of Australia and miss the Oz way of life.

People often ask me about Australia. I tell them it is true - we ride kangaroos to school.

REUNION ISLAND EXCHANGE 1998

In July Leah Upson, Tamasine Ryan, Jodi LeGuier, Mandy McGinniss Madame Melchiorre and 60 other French students hooned off to Reunion Island - a small island off the coast of Madagascar to spend one month experiencing the French language, culture and blokes. The arrival of the airport would have to have been the scariest thing ever experienced - having to leave your English speaking friends only to be thrown into a family who pretty much understand only French, is not the most comfortable thing ever done.

We were then chunked into a car with people we did not know and had the chance to experience the absolute shocking driving that goes on on that side of the world first hand.

Passing the cops at 140km/h in a 110/h zone means absolutely nothing to the driver or the cops - the cops just smile and wave. Seatbelts are almost non-existent on the freeways and hitting 80km/h before changing to third gear is the best way to treat your car.

Once we arrived at the house, we were greeted with a big bowl of rice and meat which little did we know was going to be our lunch and tea for every day for the next four weeks. From then on, every day was full on, we were driven to a different spot on the island to look at mountains and hills and mountains and hills and mountains and hills. The scenery was really beautiful in the mountains but the trip there was an absolute shocker - feeling like you're going to throw up in the back of a car flying around 90 degrees turns never failed to be felt.

The nightclub - well that was an experience - it's more like a night out dancing dodging the sleazy blokes who all whispered French in your ear - having no idea what! The phrase I am sorry I don't understand very much French because I am Australian proved to be really handy in getting rid of MOST of them.. The number of drag queens was also amazing - the fact that they managed to wear shorter and tighter dresses than any of the girls and shoes with nine inch heels proved that most guys really do have a feminine side to them!

But being able to get back to Australia and listen to the radio and actually understand it was a great relief. It was also fantastic to hear the good old Aussie accent saying Will Smith getting Jiggy With It rather than Will Schmkidt Getting Jiggy Wit it!.

But, it was a worthwhile experience, not speaking English for 4 weeks really improved our French and we recommend it to everyone that would like to go.

A huge thanks must also go to Maria Melchiorre for all her time and effort she put into the exchange.

By Tamasine and Leah.

Mandy's Adventure

Leaving Australia for one month, to live with another family, speaking French everyday and being introduced to some sleazy French guys, may be quite scary to some people, but I decided to give it a go and it turned out be one of the best experiences of my life. I was part of a French exchange programme with sixty other French students living on Reunion Island for one month.

I stayed with a family of four in the south of Reunion, with two brothers Yohan, my 17 year old host brother (who just happened to be extremely good looking!) and his little brother Mathieu. During my stay, I was able to do and see many things with my family. The nightclubs were a great introduction to how much French guys like foreign girls!! French driving was absolutely shocking as they turned 90 degree angled corners at the speed of 90km/h!!

The highlight of my stay would have been the camp Yohan, his friends and I had in the mountains. However, to get there, there was a 5km walk downhill and you guessed it, the next day was the 5km hike up. This mountain wasn't small or easy to climb, it was huge! At the campsite, I was able to see and swim beneath a beautiful waterfall that was absolutely freezing cold. But it was an experience I will never forget. I improved my French by not speaking a word of English during the four weeks. I had the best time on Reunion and I would recommend future French students to consider this wonderful opportunity.

Remember: Je suis la meilleure Australienne dans le monde!

INTERSCHOOL COMPETITIONS

ATHLETICS

Two bus loads of talent from Bunbury Senior High School travelled down to Busselton to compete in the Interschool Athletics Carnival.

Never ever has Bunbury High brought home the Upper School Points Shield, the Lower School Points Shield as well as the Handicap Points Shield.

We had a superb team of athletes, and brilliant teacher support of course. Miss Polglaze and Miss Lowe were running around all day and made sure that there were a pair of Bunbury High running legs at the beginning of each event.

Year 8's Candice Nebro and Koreena Munnings' young spirits set everyone off to a great day. Peter Andrews skinny legs carried him across the 1500m line in 2nd place.

Head Boy, Ben Tayler set all of the girls on fire as he flew past the 1500, 800 and 100m in first place. Tim Davies and Emmanuell D'Cress should keep Bunbury High flying in the future judging from their spectacular performances. Tim Davies and Beth Levy broke records during the day.

Of course Dimity-Lee Duke was cruising through each of her events with no worries along with Izzak Fiorentino Champion boy runner up, Ben Tayler, Beth Levy runner up, Tim Davies and Emmanuell D'Cress. It was just unreal to see so many Bunbury Senior High School athletes competing and winning. It was such a great day.

Bunbury High is the only school in Bunbury who has a school athletics carnival. Make sure you attend and share the victory of winning like the 1998 Bunbury Senior High School Champion Athletic team.

CROSS COUNTRY

On the 12th August Bunbury High's most talented runners travelled to Harvey to compete in the Annual Interschool Cross Country event.

The course was full of surprises, including 70 degree angles on the hills, knee deep swamps, waist high creeks and the occasional steaming cow pat.

The first race was the 13 year girls, followed by the 13 year boys, where the surprises started. Peter Andrews crossed the line first, followed by Clinton Gribble in sixth, coming back with one less shoe. Warren Page, Troy Chester and Michael Smith also had a great race.

In the boys 14 years Brendan Andrews finished fourth and smashed the record by stepping on 13 cow pats during the race. Scott Hastie also performed well in the same race.

Steven Chilcott, Brendan Appleby, Jarred Scott and Daniel Smith performed well in the boys' 15 yrs race and Crystal Smith performed well in the girls' 16 yrs event.

The proudest race of the day went to the 16 year and over open boys race which was a 6km course. They completed the course with two podium finishes, Ben Tayler 2nd, Jed Foster finished 3rd and Chris Hastie finished well.

We would like to thank Miss Lowe for getting us there and for looking after us for this event.

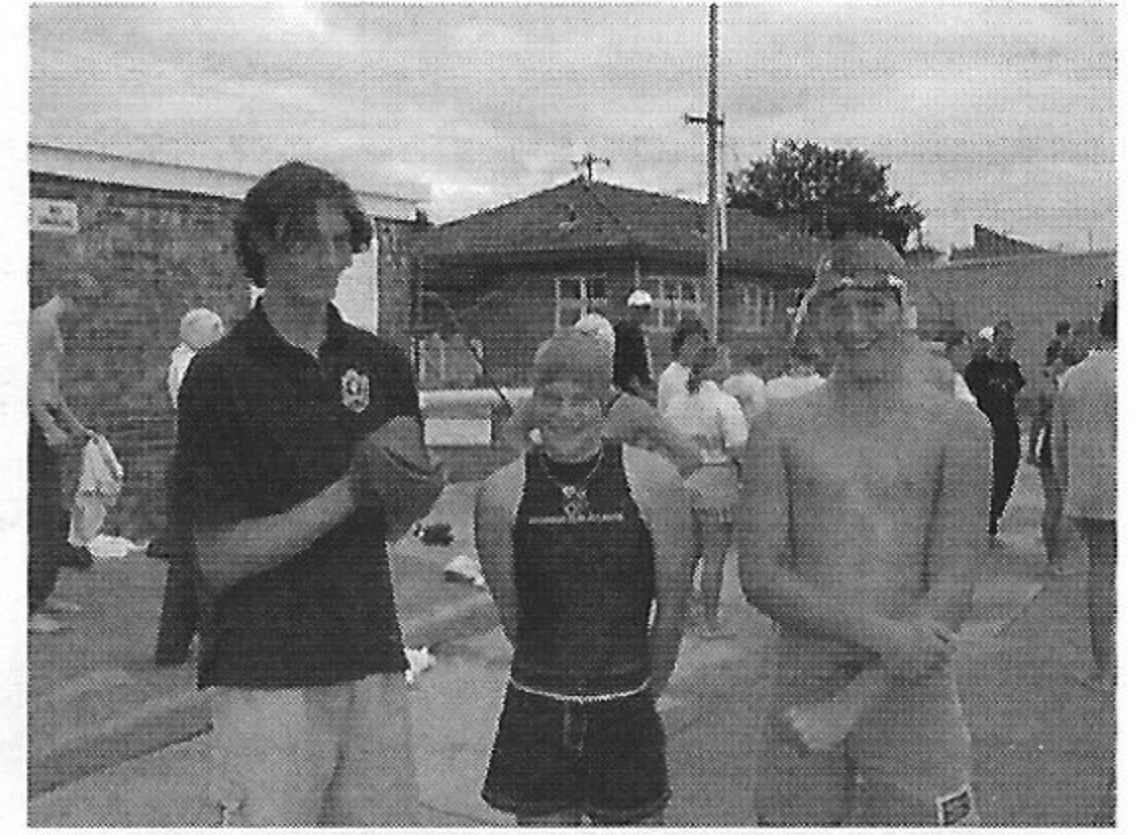

Brendan Andrews/Brendan Appleby

SWIMMING

Early on a chilly morning in March, the finest of Bunbury High swimmers headed up the hill to Collie for the Interschool Swimming Carnival.

With the team having trained every lunchtime for the past two weeks, Miss Lowe had us ready for an assault on the other seven South West High Schools.

The enthusiasm on the bus trip got the day off to a good start with plenty of good results still to come.

The lower school led the charge with "Superfish" Stacey Hallet winning the 13 and under champion girl to become Bunbury High's only trophy winner for the day, while Brendan Andrews, Peter Andrews, Brendan Appelby and Rachel Walker put in huge efforts.

Catherine Gobby and Chris Hastie were the stars of Bunbury High's upper school events, while last minute ring-in Jeremy Pickering shocked the huge crowd by going under the existing 50m backstroke record, yet still finishing in second place for the race.

Bunbury High did not win any shields, but the team enjoyed a great day of swimming.

Ben Tayler

TRIATHLON

It was a bright, sunny morning and we were all packed and ready to go with all the bikes jam packed in the back of the bus heading down the Wellington Dam hill.

All the riders were starting to get worried as the event start time drew closer.

The competition was intense and the participants from Bunbury Senior High School acquitted themselves admirably. Peter Andrews was champion Year 8 boy, Rachel Walker champion Year 9 girl, and Stacey Hallett, Danielle Potter and Sarah Tayler won the Year 8 team. Brendan Andrews and Koreena Munnings were runner up in their division.

Catherine Gobby ran second in her upper school section.

It was a great day thanks to Miss Lowe, Mr. Giles and Mr. Bennetts.

CHAMPION SCHOOLS REPORT - COMO GO DOWN !!!

By: Ryan Gibbs, Thomas Ryan and Adam Butcher

By winning Countryweek the boys' hockey team earned the privilege to play in the State Champion schools grand final. As country champions we played the Metro champions Como SHS.

On Friday 28th August we left Bunbury High School in the rain at 7am.

Destination: Commonwealth Hockey Stadium Curtin University
As we arrived, in the rain, Oz realised he'd forgotten the hockey balls. Lucky for us Ewen knows people in high places.

The task was daunting as Como SHS is the specialist State Hockey School, containing WA's special hockey unit, responsible for producing many State and Australian representatives.

The team we played contained about 7 State players (out of a possible 11) and had only previously been defeated once.

We ran onto the field, in the rain, to receive the abuse of about 100 Como supporters.

The game got going on the flooded turf, in the rain, and we started a bit rusty as Como had the upper hand. Then Gibbsey banged in a short corner but was disallowed and the game was even at half time 0-0.

The 2nd half started, in the rain, with only 10 players for Bunbury. Where's Thomas?? In the toilet!!

Como scored about 10 min into the half, near the time Nettsy got sent off. The Como boys started getting dirty and a number of their players got sent off and Nettsy returned to score a killer goal, spurring us all on.

Key defender (so he says) Butch was sent off for rough (stupid) play and the team showed character to hold strong without him. Just after he re-entered Thomas Ryan scored a brilliant goal to realise the underdogs moment of triumph and arguably one of the school's finest hours.

After we successfully held Como out for the last 31/2 minutes the prize of champion school of Western Australia was ours. We then boarded the bus, in the rain, and set off for home.

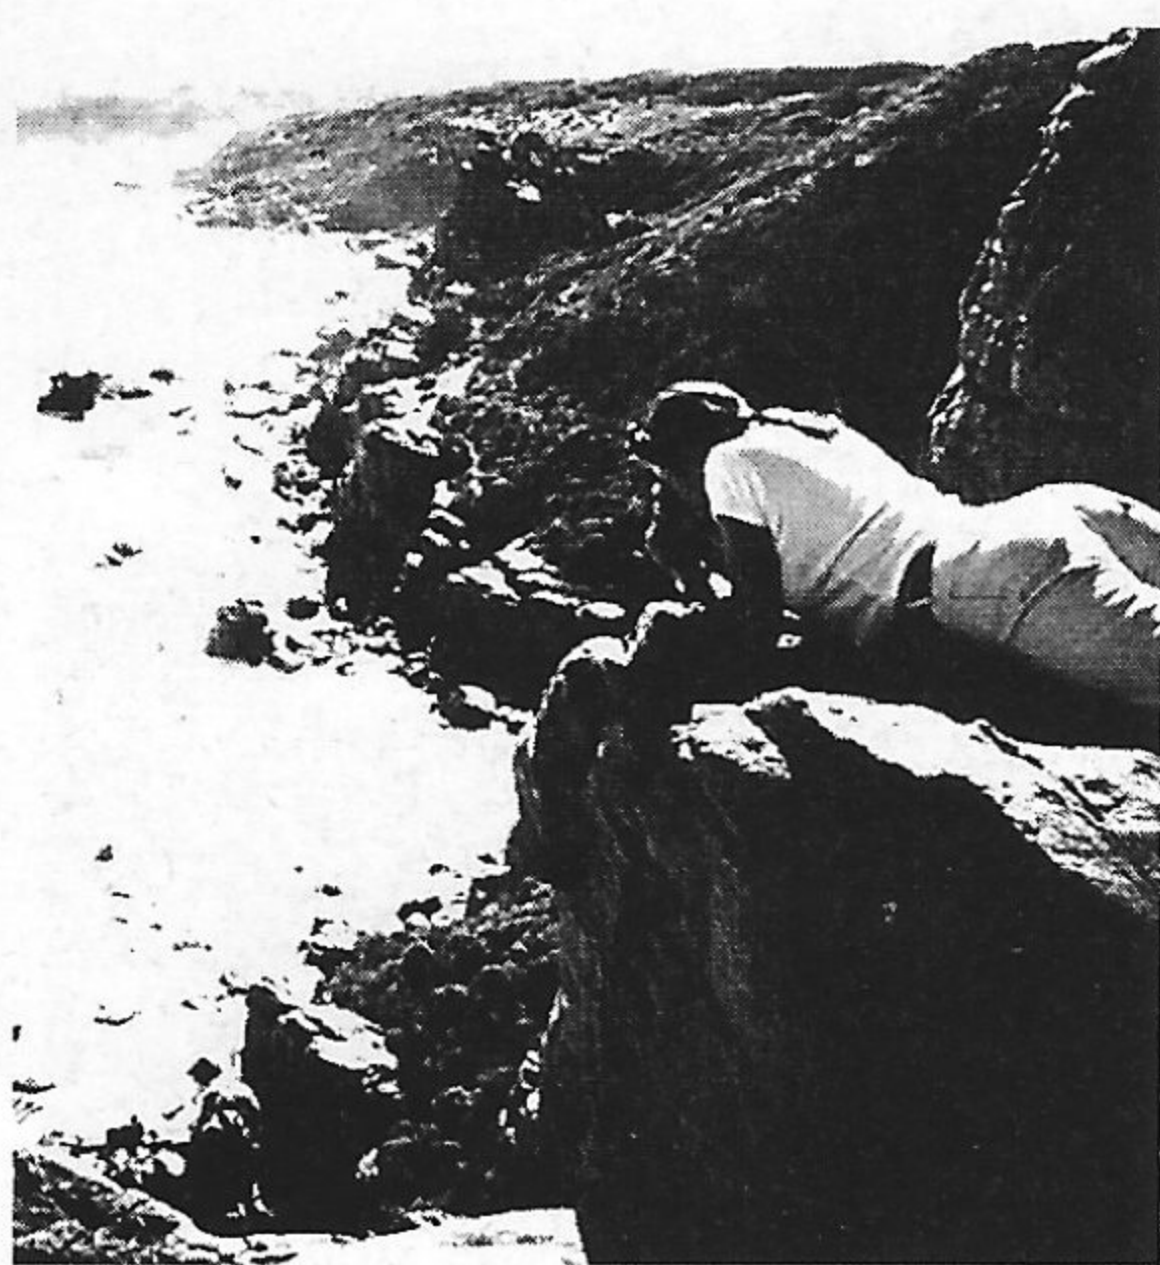

And so the daily year long training regime of the city boys was rewarded with bugger-all coz the bush boys beat them 2 - 1. Thanks to Oz and all the boys involved.

On the morning of 10th May, 'Mad-dog' Muir and his ever talented year 11 and 12 photography students ventured South in their very luxurious 5 star Mercedes 4 wheel drive coach, otherwise known as an orange mini bus.

We arrived at Prevelly Caravan Park on Sunday afternoon, and being a majority of girls we camped right in front of a caravan that had broken surfboards "filling the "garden" in hope that a couple of ideal blokes lived inside.

On Monday morning we woke up to a not so pleasant sound. Kate! telling us that the sun was shining and the birds were singing. Let me assure you, Kate learnt a very valuable lesson in life, NEVER wake year 12 girls while they are peacefully sleeping.

We journeyed to the Willyabarup Cliff, parked the bus and started trekking through paddocks, bushes and over rivers. When we finally made the top of the cliff the view was unbelievable, crystal clear water sparkling, with dolphins swimming and waves crashing against the rocks. It was perfect, so after many rolls of film had been used we began our long trek back.

We finally reached the bus then it was into Margaret River to fill some hungry bellies, then back to Prevelly past the Karri Forest. We were peacefully taking photos when a strange noise came from the bushes. After Marian posed the question of "Do you think it's a bear?", we thought we should go and find out where the noise was coming from, and to our surprise about 100m up the road in a truck bay we found a car load of Hippy's having a singalong. So after a song or two a chat, we continued our way back to our temporary home.

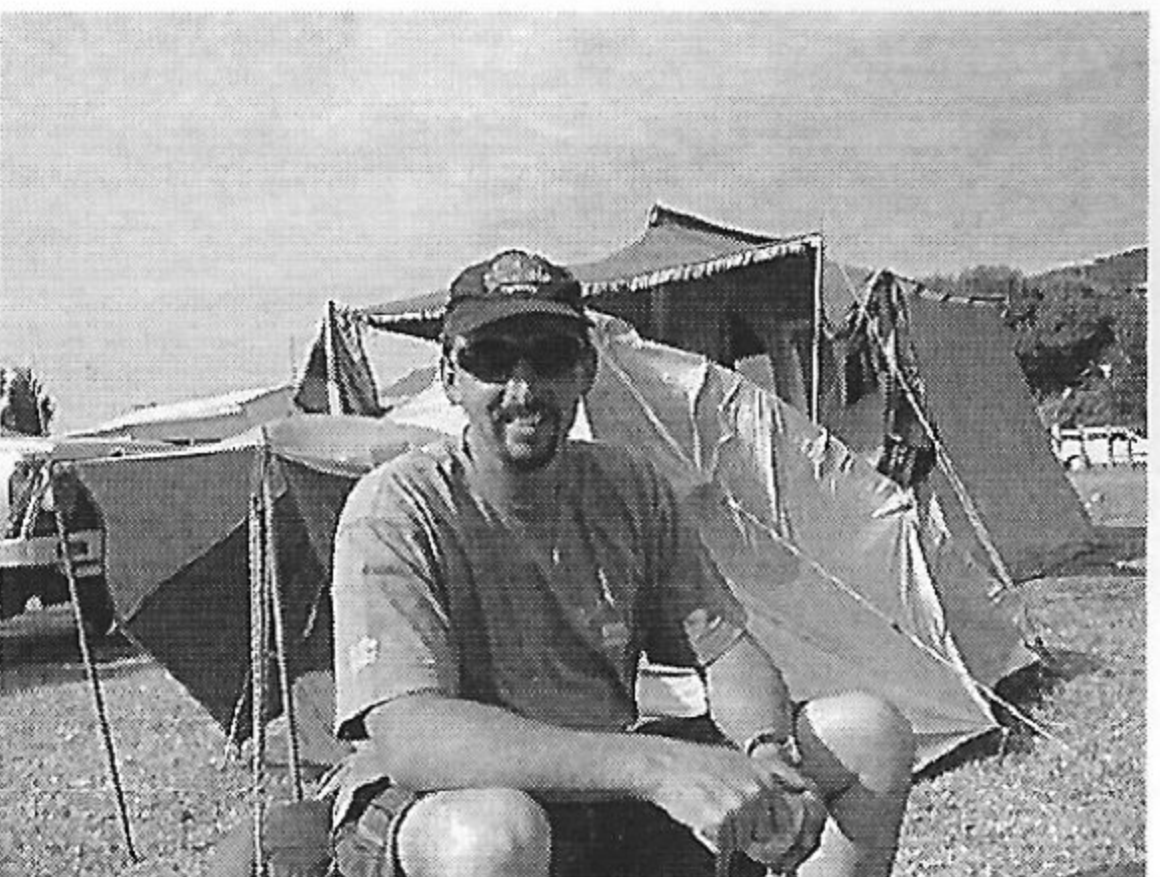

We all sat around the fire talking and laughing until our sleeping bags called. Everyone was too scared to even think about waking Sam and Hoon up after the previous morning, so when we finally woke up we packed the trailer and bus till they were almost overflowing and started our drive home.

We stopped at Gracetown and Canal Rocks to take a few more photos in yet again, perfect conditions, we were actually very lucky as somehow through all the bad weather we managed to get three beautiful days, excellent weather for photography after all, that is what we were there for.

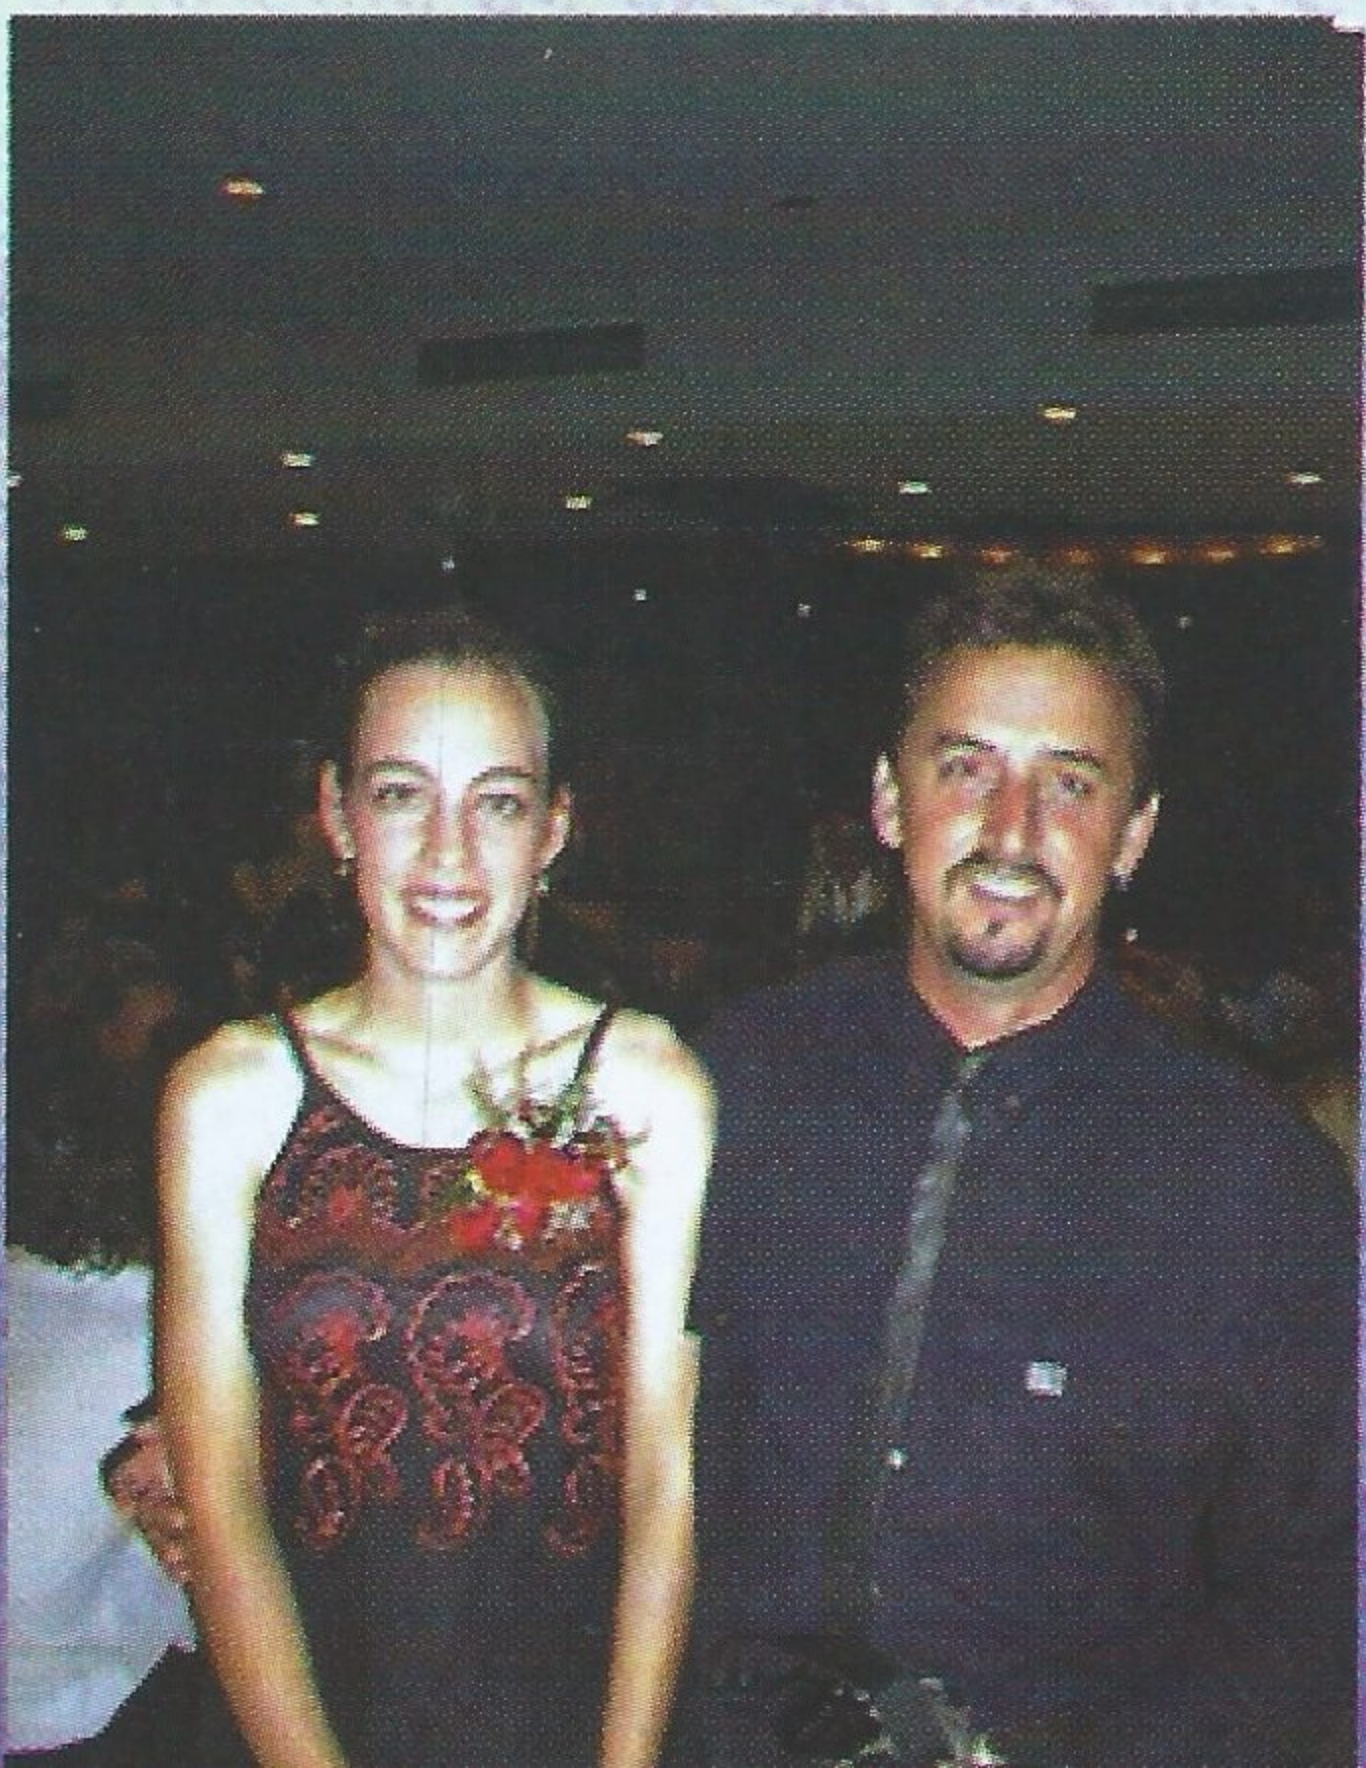

Finally, to ensure tradition wasn't broken we stopped at the Dunsborough Bakery for lunch, then it was back to Bunbury.

A huge thankyou must go to Mad-dog, three days with a group of teenagers, mainly girls, and he kept his cool so well - even when he took a huge gouge out of the side of the bus.

DANCE VISITS

ABORIGINAL DANCE PERFORMANCE

(SYDNEY ABORIGINAL DANCE COMPANY)

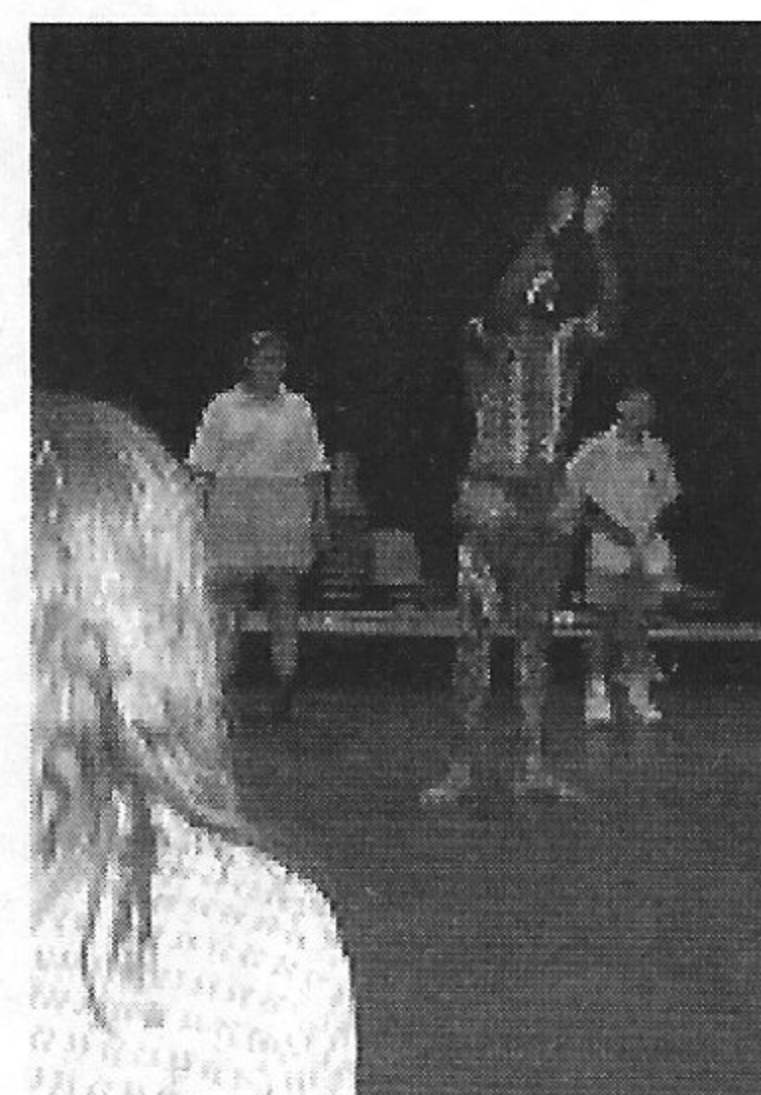

On the 30th March, students crowded around the foyer of the Performing Arts Centre waiting anxiously to see what was in the theatre (either that or they were just plain ecstatic about having to pay only $3 to get out of half a days school work).

We all scrambled our way into the theatre and made ourselves comfortable, piling on top of one another and then suddenly out came a dancer, dressed in traditional aboriginal garb. He spoke about his craft and the traditions that underpin the dance.

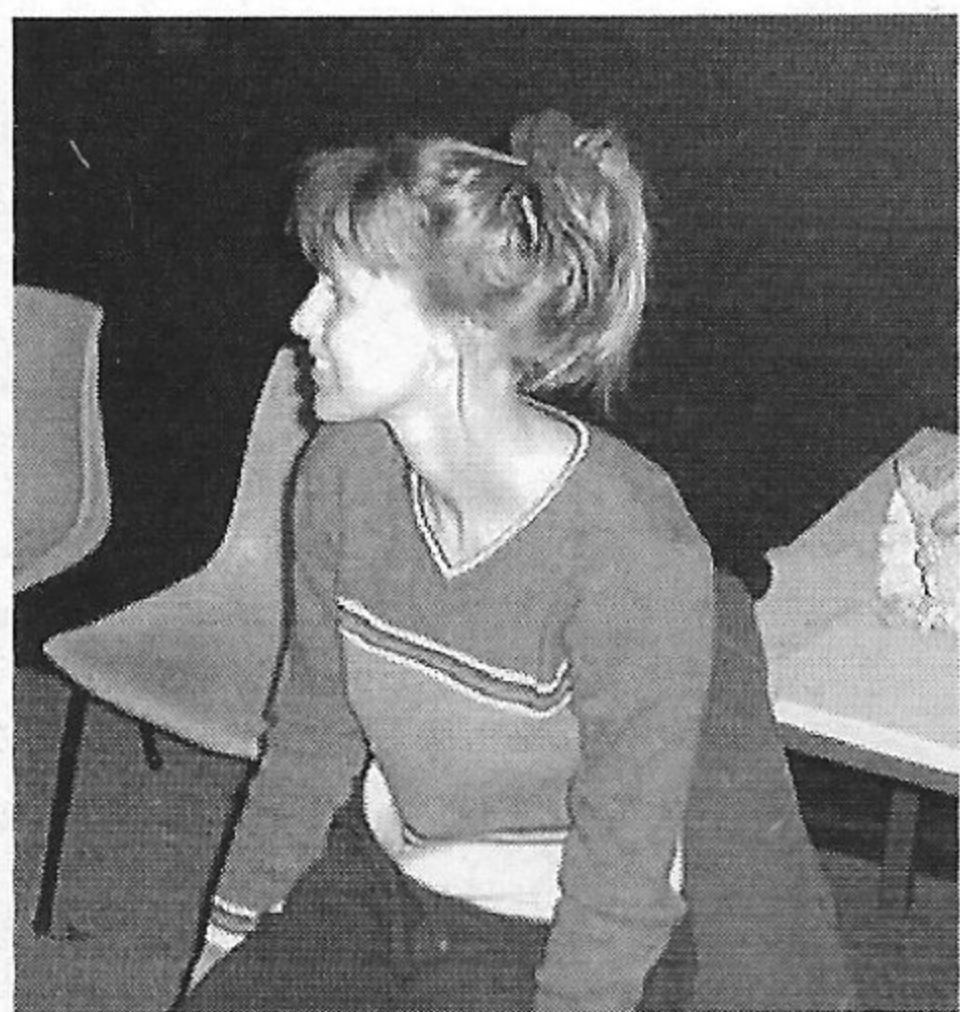

He even convinced some of the students to dance with him and Daniel Spriggs (although he looked lovely in a grass skirt) showed no sign of coordination.

He told us his name in his language and although no one could seem to remember it, he will stay in our memory forever, right beside the richness and uniqueness of the indigenous culture he showed us.

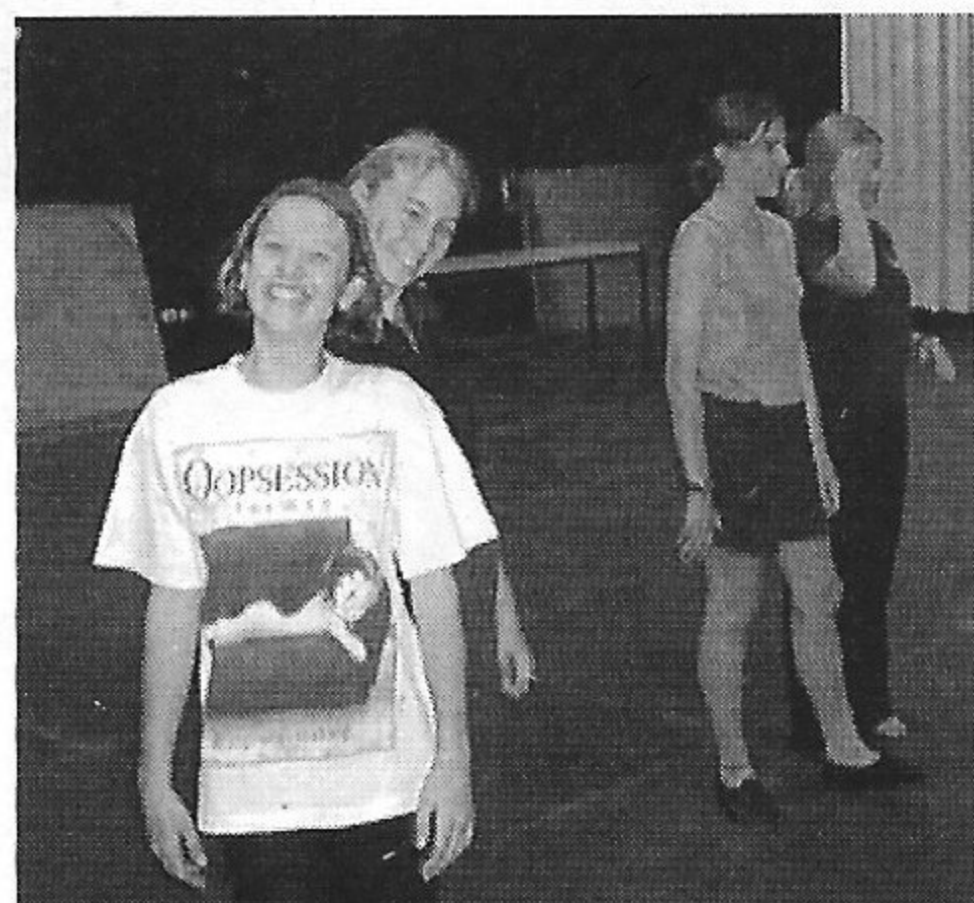

SWANBOURNE VISIT

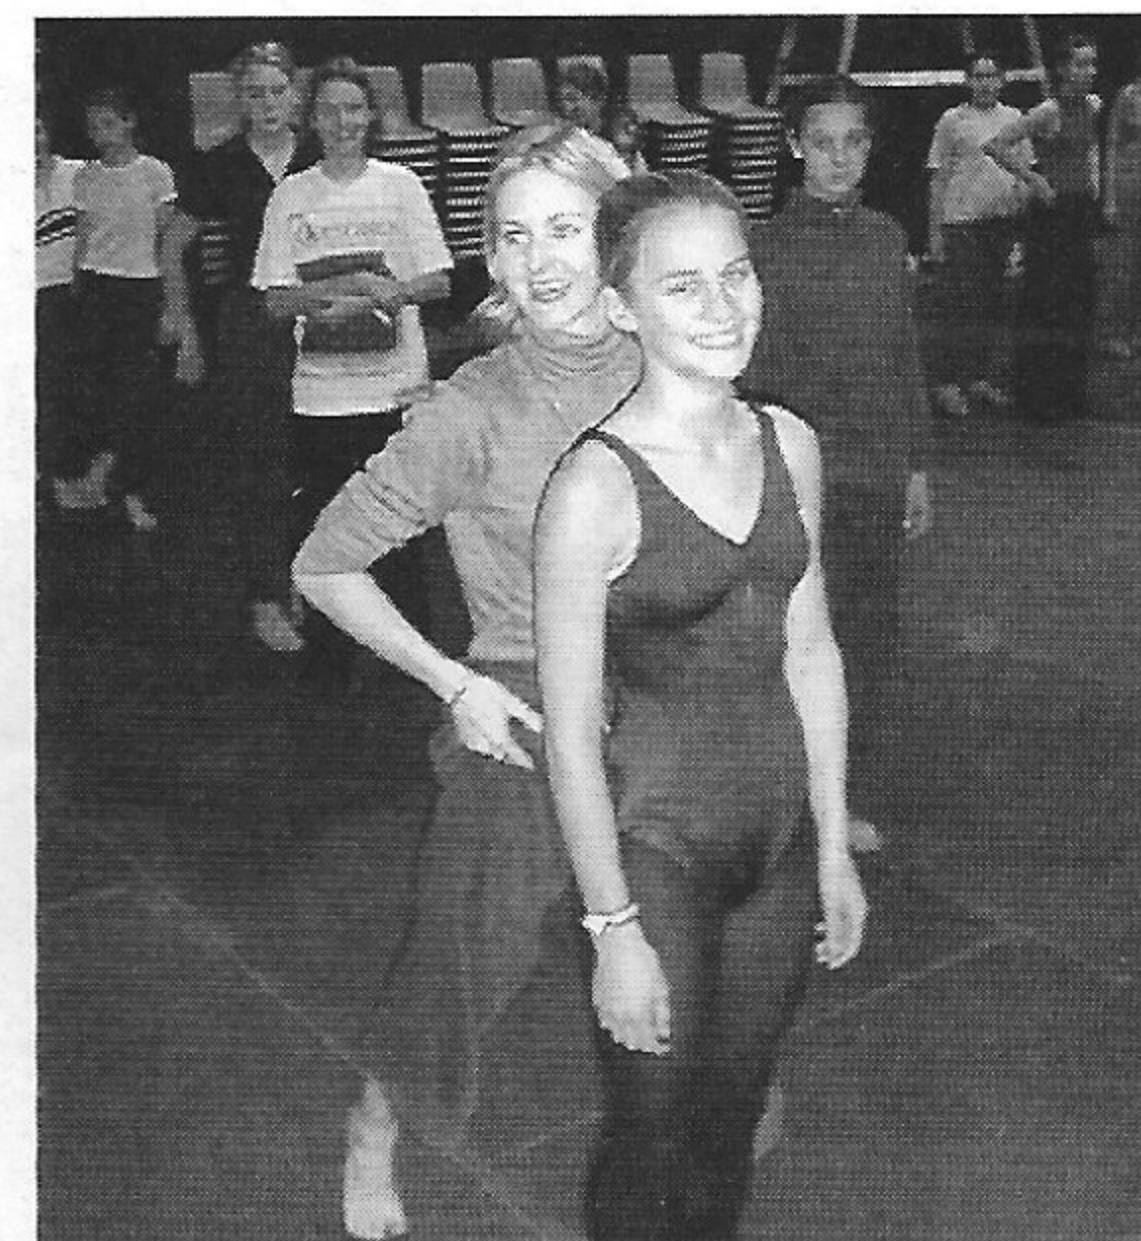

On the 19th June, 1998, 34 lower school dance students attended a dance workshop followed by an enjoyable ballet performance. After learning stacks at the workshop led by a dance teacher accompanying Swanbourne students, we had our breath taken away by a beautiful dance piece performed by students from year 8 to year 12.

Students told us that in Year 12 they dance a massive 27 hours a week. During this time they learn Contemporary, Spanish, Ballet and Jazz. This program starts in Year 5 when they dance three hours a week.

After a number of wows and applause, the day had to end and we all had to return to our classes to brag to our friends about what a great time we had. Thanks everyone who organised Swanbourne's visit.

MURCHISON CAMP 1998

Monsac, Baby Monsac, Monsac, Baby Monsac". This was the opening line of the song sung endlessly on the Outdoor Ed Camp to the Murchison Gorge, "The Trip of a Lifetime".

It started with 15 students boarding a bus at 5.00 am in the morning (this means boarding at five Saskia, not getting out of bed at five), and then travelling the very long 11 hours to Kalbarri. As everyone boarded the bus, still half asleep, no-one knew what lay ahead.

The Outdoor Ed camp involved trekking 18km around the Murchison Gorge as well as some fairly sheer cliff faces. We also found some great swimming spots and cliffs to jump off.

Even though this may not sound appealing to anyone else, the 15 of us cool outdoor edders managed to enjoy ourselves and become even closer friends. The camp resulted in everyone having the best five days of their life and even problem solving became easy and fun if we used our group skills and involved everyone.

But the camp was not all serious, we do have some memorable highlights which created endless laughs. This included the boys catching a wild pig and then Cory, unable to control himself, booted it up the rear. Tank stacking it in the water fully clothed after his foot caught alight on the first night is a sight we will never forget!

Kylee landing "base over apex" in the mud and Alana's payment for laughing at her was fair planting in the same mud. Tim and Cory got rained on for two nights because they were too lazy to carry tents and insisted on sleeping under a piece of plastic attached to a tree. Then there was the huntsman that crawled down Cory's leg onto Saskia's foot which created a huge hysteria around the camp fire and everyone was jumpy for the rest of the night.

"Right James" then to top it all off, when all of us girls thought no-one was watching, Bazza was ready and waiting with this trusty camera to take photos of us girls relaxing in the rapids. "Kalbarri Swimsuit Calendar - Here we come".

However, even with all of these memorable experiences, NOTHING beats the striptease which occurred on the bus on the way home. This had the group of guys in the overtaking "P" plater car wishing they were on our bus too. "We really showed them how to go one step better than their feeble efforts, didn't we girls"

On this camp we learnt a great amount of survival skills. We now know how to ration our food as we only ate three times a day instead of the usual ten. We drank only water instead of our daily can of coke and all of us girls are now experts at going to the toilet without actually having a proper toilet seat.

But I am sure everyone will agree that the main highlight of the camp was the abseiling. We had the chance that not many people get and this was to abseil down a 60ft cliff face 3 times. Most of us went down backwards first and then decided to face our fears and take the challenge by running down the cliff face forwards. Everyone also managed to accomplish the hardest challenge of all, the ultimate rockclimb up the 60ft cliff face. Now that is our idea of fun.

So all 15 of us had the time of our lives. This outdoor Ed camp brings a group of students together and through many obstacles we have become closer friends. No-one who wasn't present at this journey will ever understand the enjoyment that all of us experienced. Nothing, not even photos can recreate the experiences that all 15 of us students shared.

A big thankyou to Mr. Giles and to Barry for this wonderful trip. I'm sure we will all remember it for the rest of our lives.

YEAR 12 COORDINATOR'S REPORT

At the start of 1996 I inherited a large, slightly feral group of year 10 students from Mr Bleakley (the Year 9 Coordinator). He seemed unusually pleased to be ending his association with the group and after I processed 27 purple incident slips in the first week of term I worked out why.

Despite many early difficulties I could see a fairly bright light at the end of the tunnel. My optimism was based on the unusually high number of quality people in the year group. I could look forward to an enjoyable association with an excellent group of young people.

I'm very glad I weathered the Year 10 and 11 storm because I have been very proud of my association with most of the present year 12 group. I have enjoyed their outstanding contribution to Bunbury Senior High School life throughout the year. During this time a number of students have represented the school with distinction in a variety of areas. I have also been very impressed with the mature and responsible manner, in which, the group has conducted itself throughout the year - the 1998 school ball was a perfect example of this.

Best wishes to all of the present year 12's for the future and I'm sure the majority of this group will be remembered by the staff and administration of Bunbury Senior High School as an outstanding group of young adults.

The Story of 'The Badge'

THE PREFECTS OF 1998

HOW WE WERE

Once upon a time, in a small town by the sea, lived 12 young adults. These young adults had spent the last 16 years of their lives as hardworking, innocent and utterly lovable people. And, then, at the end of year 11, these 12 people gotThe Badge.

Initially, they were as adorable as ever, and their first assembly went off without a hitch. People breathed a sigh of relief, when it appeared possible that the affects of The Badge would bypass these 12 lovely people. There was: Ben, long haired, tall athletic extraordinaire; Leah, athletic, intelligent and charming; Dee, the intelligent redhead with a penchant for good times; Nathan, the studious aspiring writer who was a former Collie student; Gibbsey, the nice guy farm boy who lived for hockey; Christy, the curly-haired dancing Queen Fairy; Dylan, the ehair-slicked-backí, eshirt-tucked-iní science whiz; Michelle, the Donnybrook angel who was a breath of fresh air for us all; Jodi, the friendly girl with a nice word for everyone; Adrian and Sarah, the Boatie Beauties; and me....well what more can I say?

However, the Badge began to show it's effects at the Prefect Camp. Sarah's once affable personality began to match her wild and lion-like hair, with the beginnings of sayings like "Crash! Bang! Dick in the Pocket!" Nathan formed a close friendship with a free spirited Manji girl, Jonesy found an admirer in the body-pierced Pilko, and Gibbsy showed his talents with the tea towel.....and not for washing up! (Can this be a hint of Sadism to come?)

Aided by the ever-rebellious and uncontrollable Mr Francis, the Bunno prefects succeeded in the problem solving activities, most of which involved getting all of the prefects through certain obstacles, a task Ben took on with great gusto, carrying us all through monkey bars and tubes. The Bunno prefects soon showed that they were unbeatable in the games area, clearly winning all in sight. Despite the concentration camp style rooms, the Prefect Camp was declared to have been the best ever, with ice-breaker games certainly the most interesting! And who can forget Farbs, Adam, Tara, Simmsy and that girl from Busso who was never without her whistle.

Back at school, and the start of a new year, the Bunno prefects appeared to have overcome the effects of the Badge....but appearances can be deceiving. Immediately, the photo's from Prefect Camp went on the wall of the, ummm, cosy prefect room, reminding us all of the fun, despite the fact most of them were immediately stolen by cheeky kids.

Meetings were long winded, and it was either arguments or just plain gossip (Thanks to Dee) that delayed us. Assembly days were interesting, with all of us changing in the tiny prefect room.....together. Definitely a highlight of the year. Francis proved to be invaluable, when he could be found. We were never sure if he was in that rats nest he calls an office, or not.

Dylan continuously took the opportunity to try and turn the Prefect account into a money making operation. Adrian rarely remembered there even were meetings, and missed every single Prefect Event we had....because of little things like National Boating championships and trips to Tasmania, or just a bad memory. Our Head Boy, Ben and Head girl, Leah kept up the proud tradition of having a Head Boy with longer hair than the Head Girl.

At the end of the year, how much the Badge affected us?

Ben, still with long hair, still tall, yet somehow without the same innocence; Leah, who was actually one of the few to remain as lovable as she once was, especially with basketballers

Dee, who was definitely now a fiery redhead, discovered bush boys and hockey boys made the best combination;

Nathan, who became an even better writer, but also discovered the opposite sex, and was never quite the same after the Year 12 Dinner

Gibbsy, whose sex appeal drove Sarah crazy

Christy, still the curly haired dancing queen, but always 'whipping out her weapon' and 'having a slash'

Dylan, who for some bizarre reason felt the need to have a blonde streak in his hair, and even untucked his shirt for one day

Jodi, who became a perfect example of the saying 'It is better to say nothing and appear stupid than to open your mouth and remove all doubt'

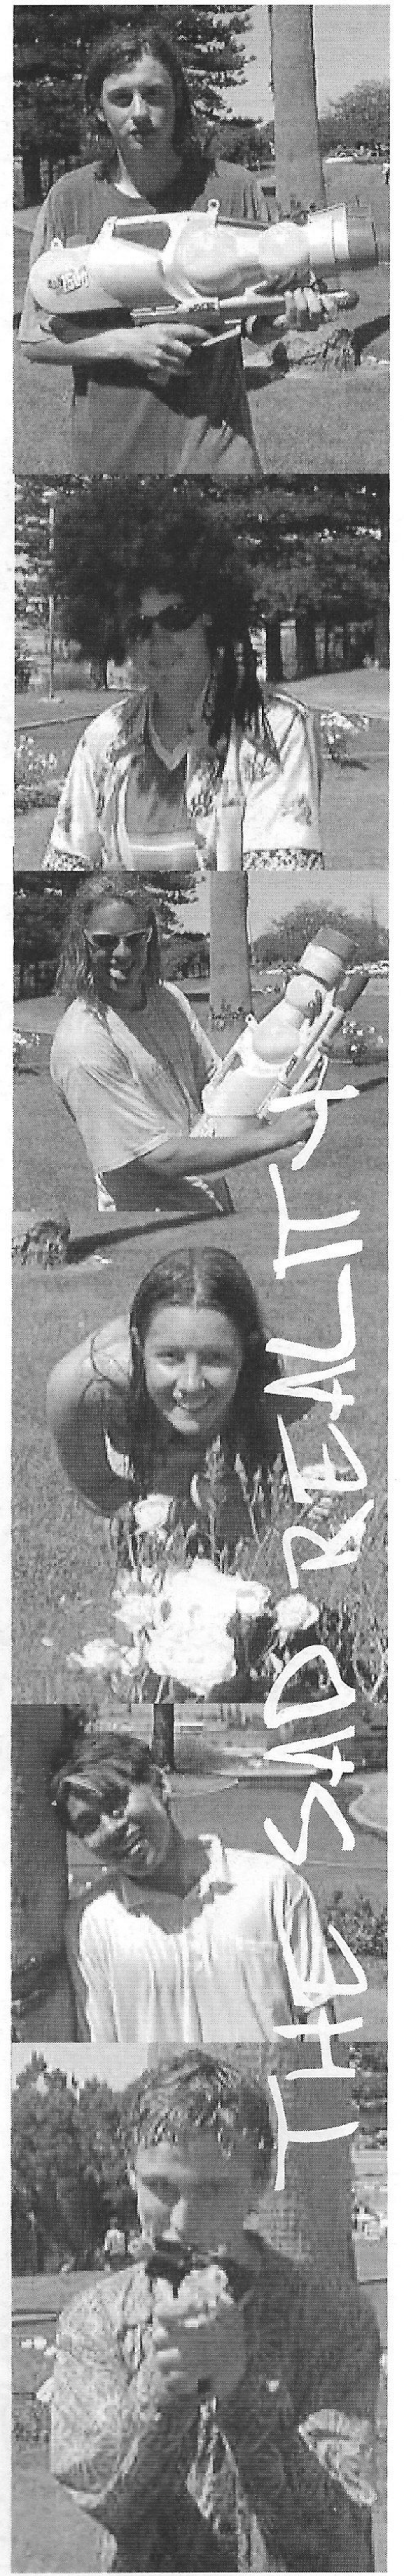

Sarah, who became more lion like as the year went on, and continually tormented Dee with her strength

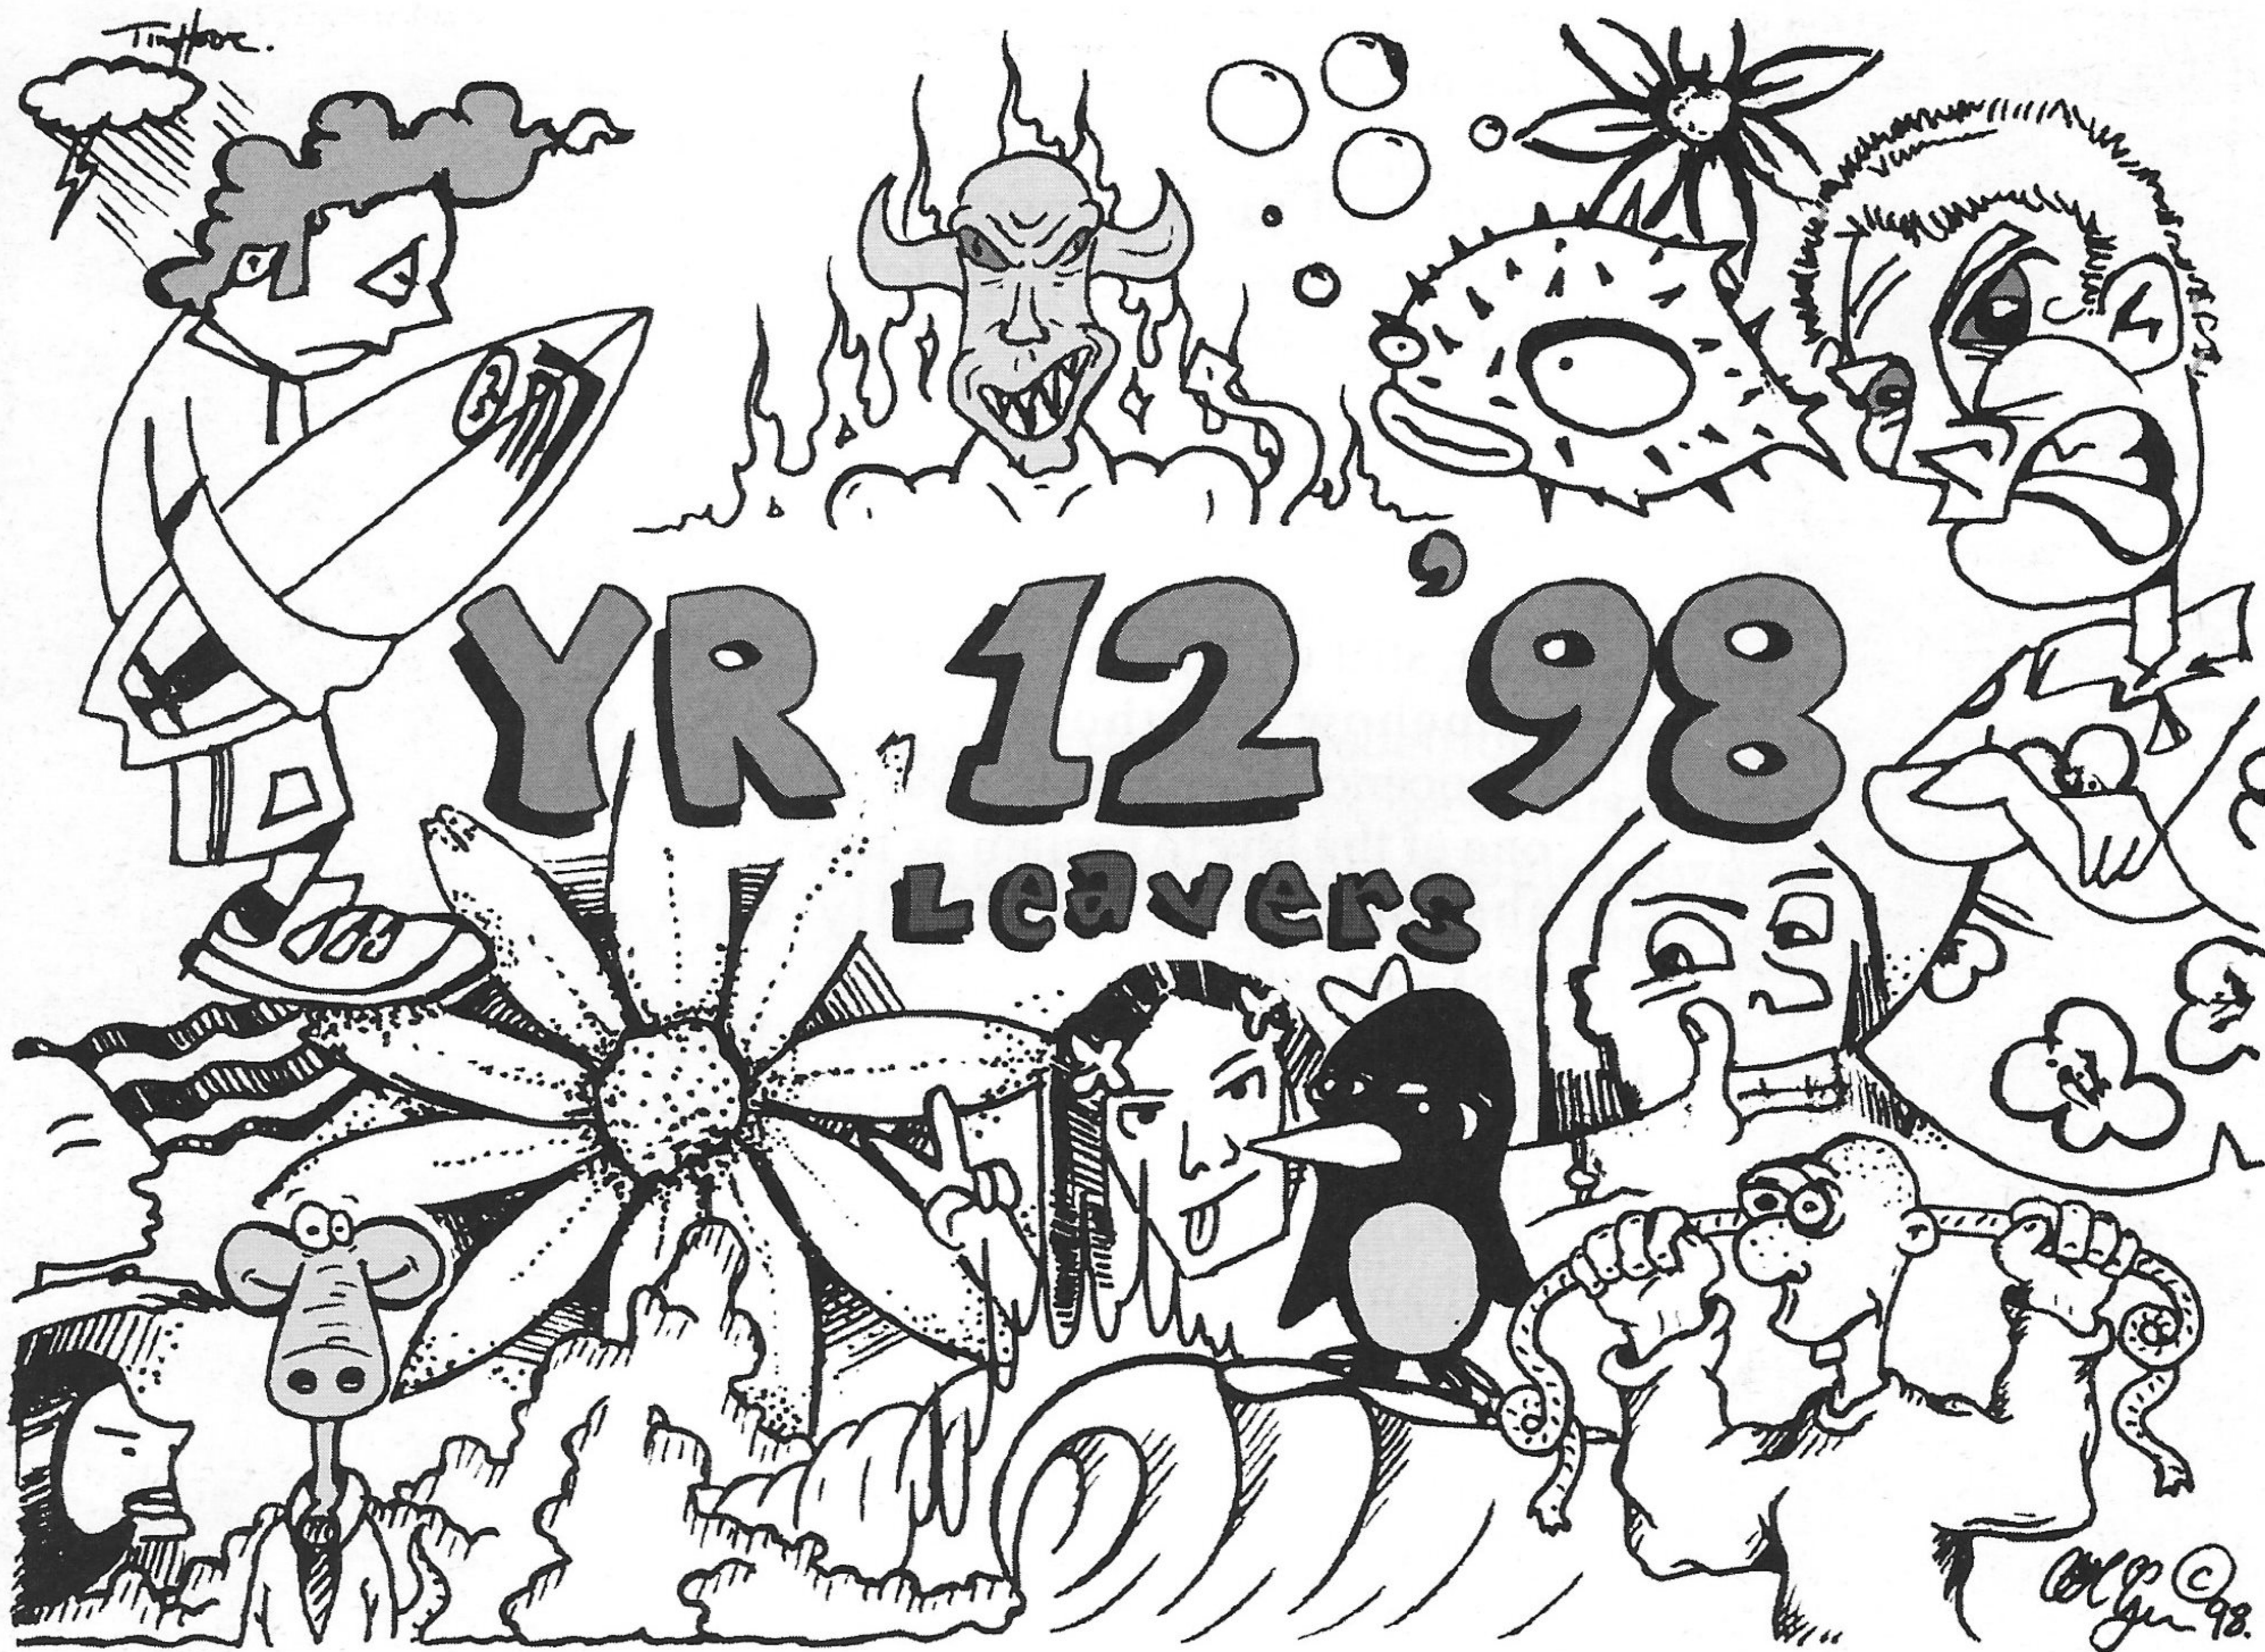

Adrian, who was always getting caught for things like flashing his assets at passing buses

Michelle, our Donnybrook friend who progressed from being quiet and friendly to party-hungry, but still lovable and then there's me.....how could you possibly say I was any less lovable than before??

GALA NIGHT 1998

GALA NIGHT 1998

Gala Night (or Weekend more like) was another Bunbury Senior High School performing arts triumph. A solid effort put in by everyone involved made it not only a wonderful show, but great fun to be involved in.

The nights featured the cream of Bunbury Senior High School Performing Arts, including a bite-sized performance of the Rock Eisteddfod, rock bands, dance and drama.

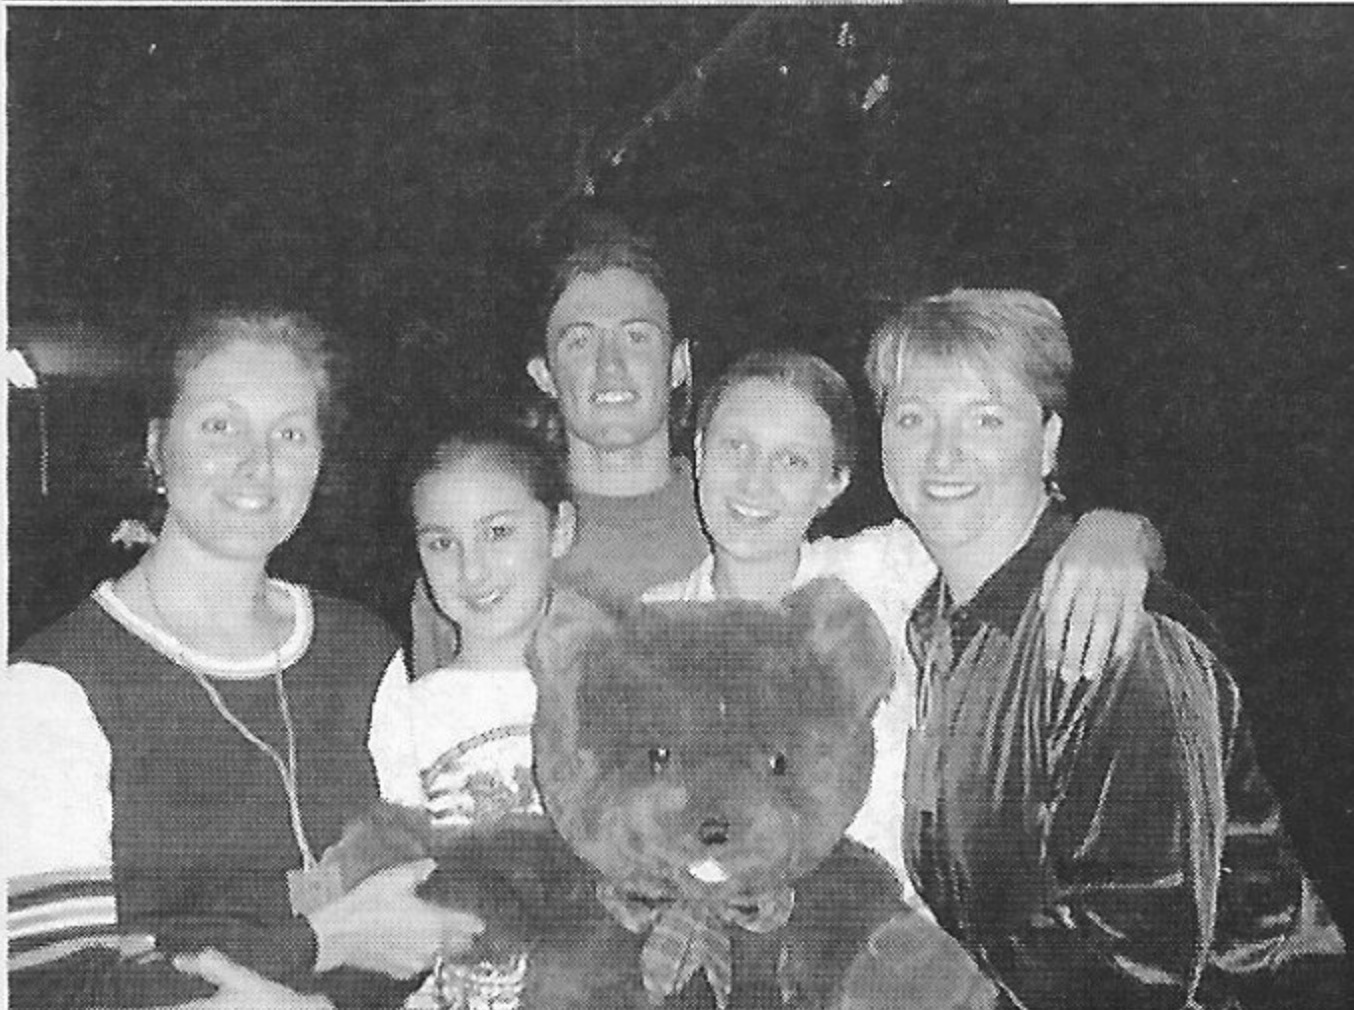

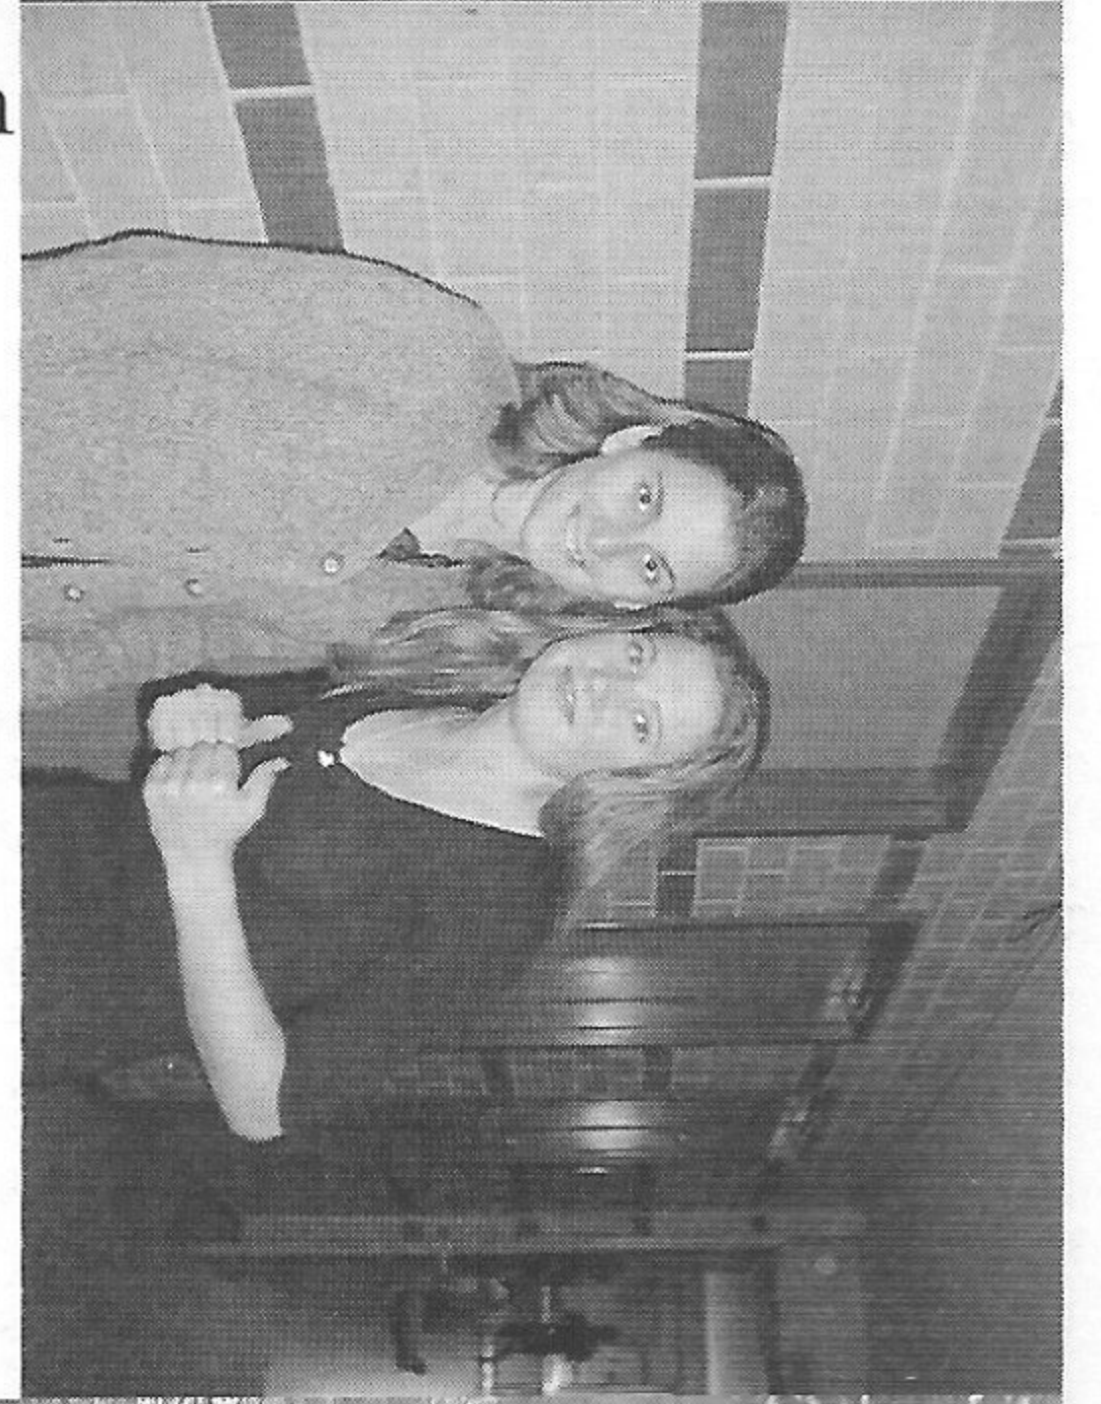

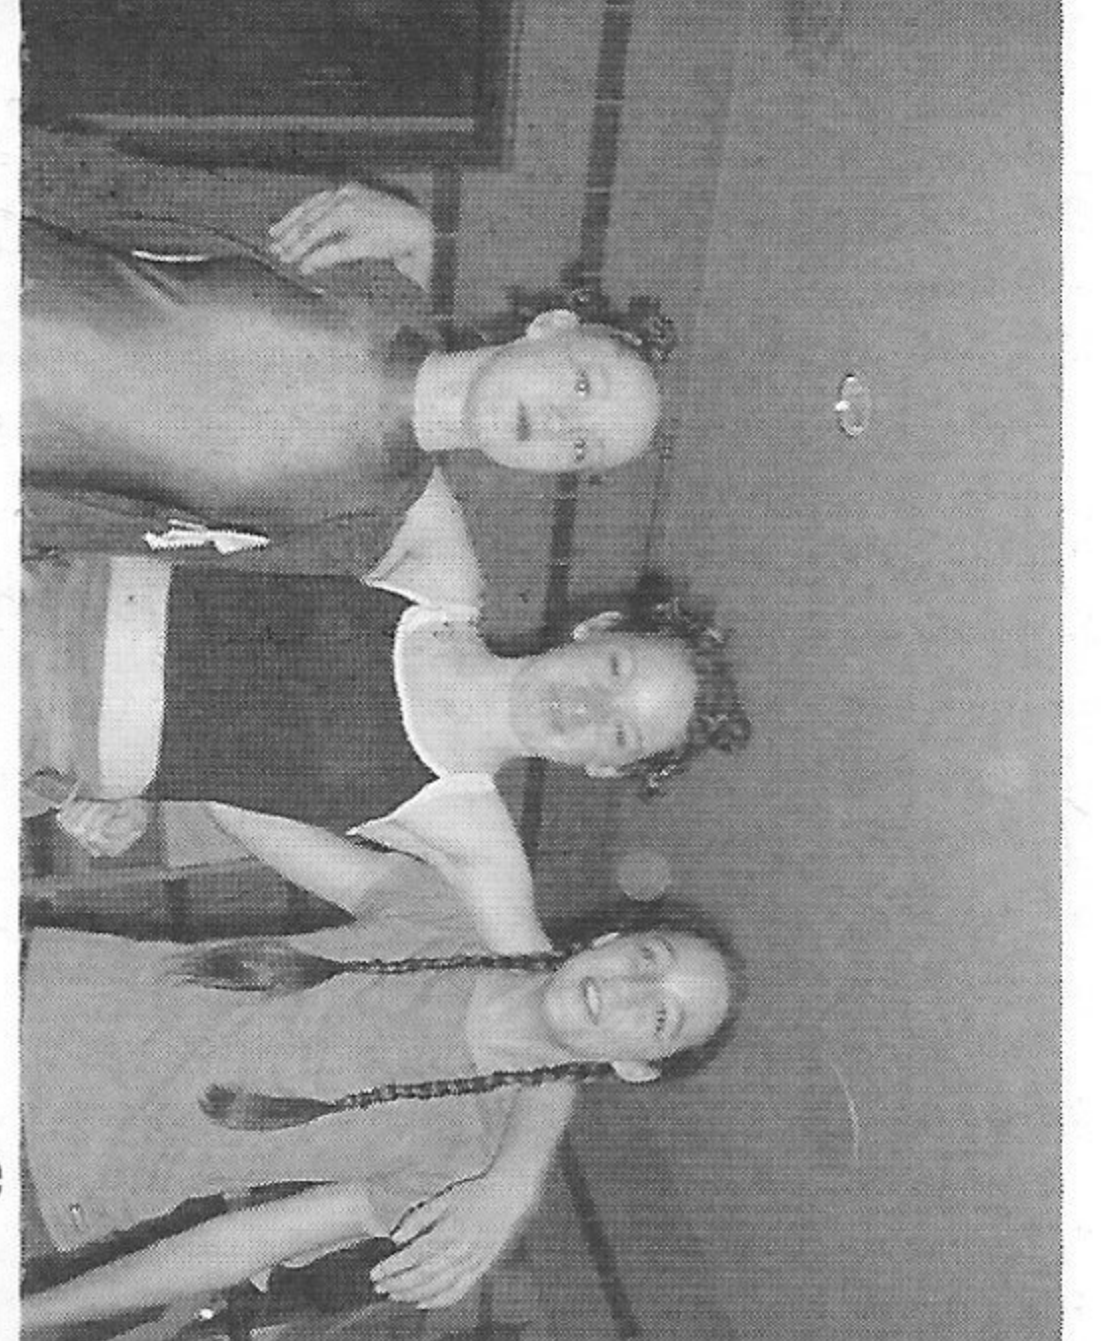

Highlights included the "Parrot Sketch" in which the parrot was definitely dead by the time Bromley finished with it, the quick, quirky dance Short and Sweet, and the triumphant reappearance of Berryl and Merle from the Badgingarra Opera Society.

The Year 12 Music performance of Bohemian Rhapsody, complete with headbanging, was outstanding and well worth the months of effort that were put in.

All performances, however, were highlights in their own ways and each performer was talented. The energy was apparent in the finale

"We are the champions, my friends....."

A biased article by Philippa Chandler.

Melbourne Theatre Trip 1998

It was finally here - the 11th of April had finally arrived. This particular Saturday had been looked forward to for over six months. We had cake stall after cake stall to fundraise for our theatre trip to Melbourne. Eleven students and the two teachers 'The D and P' were about to take the trip of a lifetime, for a whole week of drama classes taught by professionals (School drama guru's note.....What am I ; chopped liver ? !) and a chance to view some live performances and productions from all over Melbourne.

Everyone arrived at the airport half asleep, but extremely excited at the early hour of 5.00am. Everyone was itching to hop on the plane, except Jordi and myself. That's right. First time on a plane.

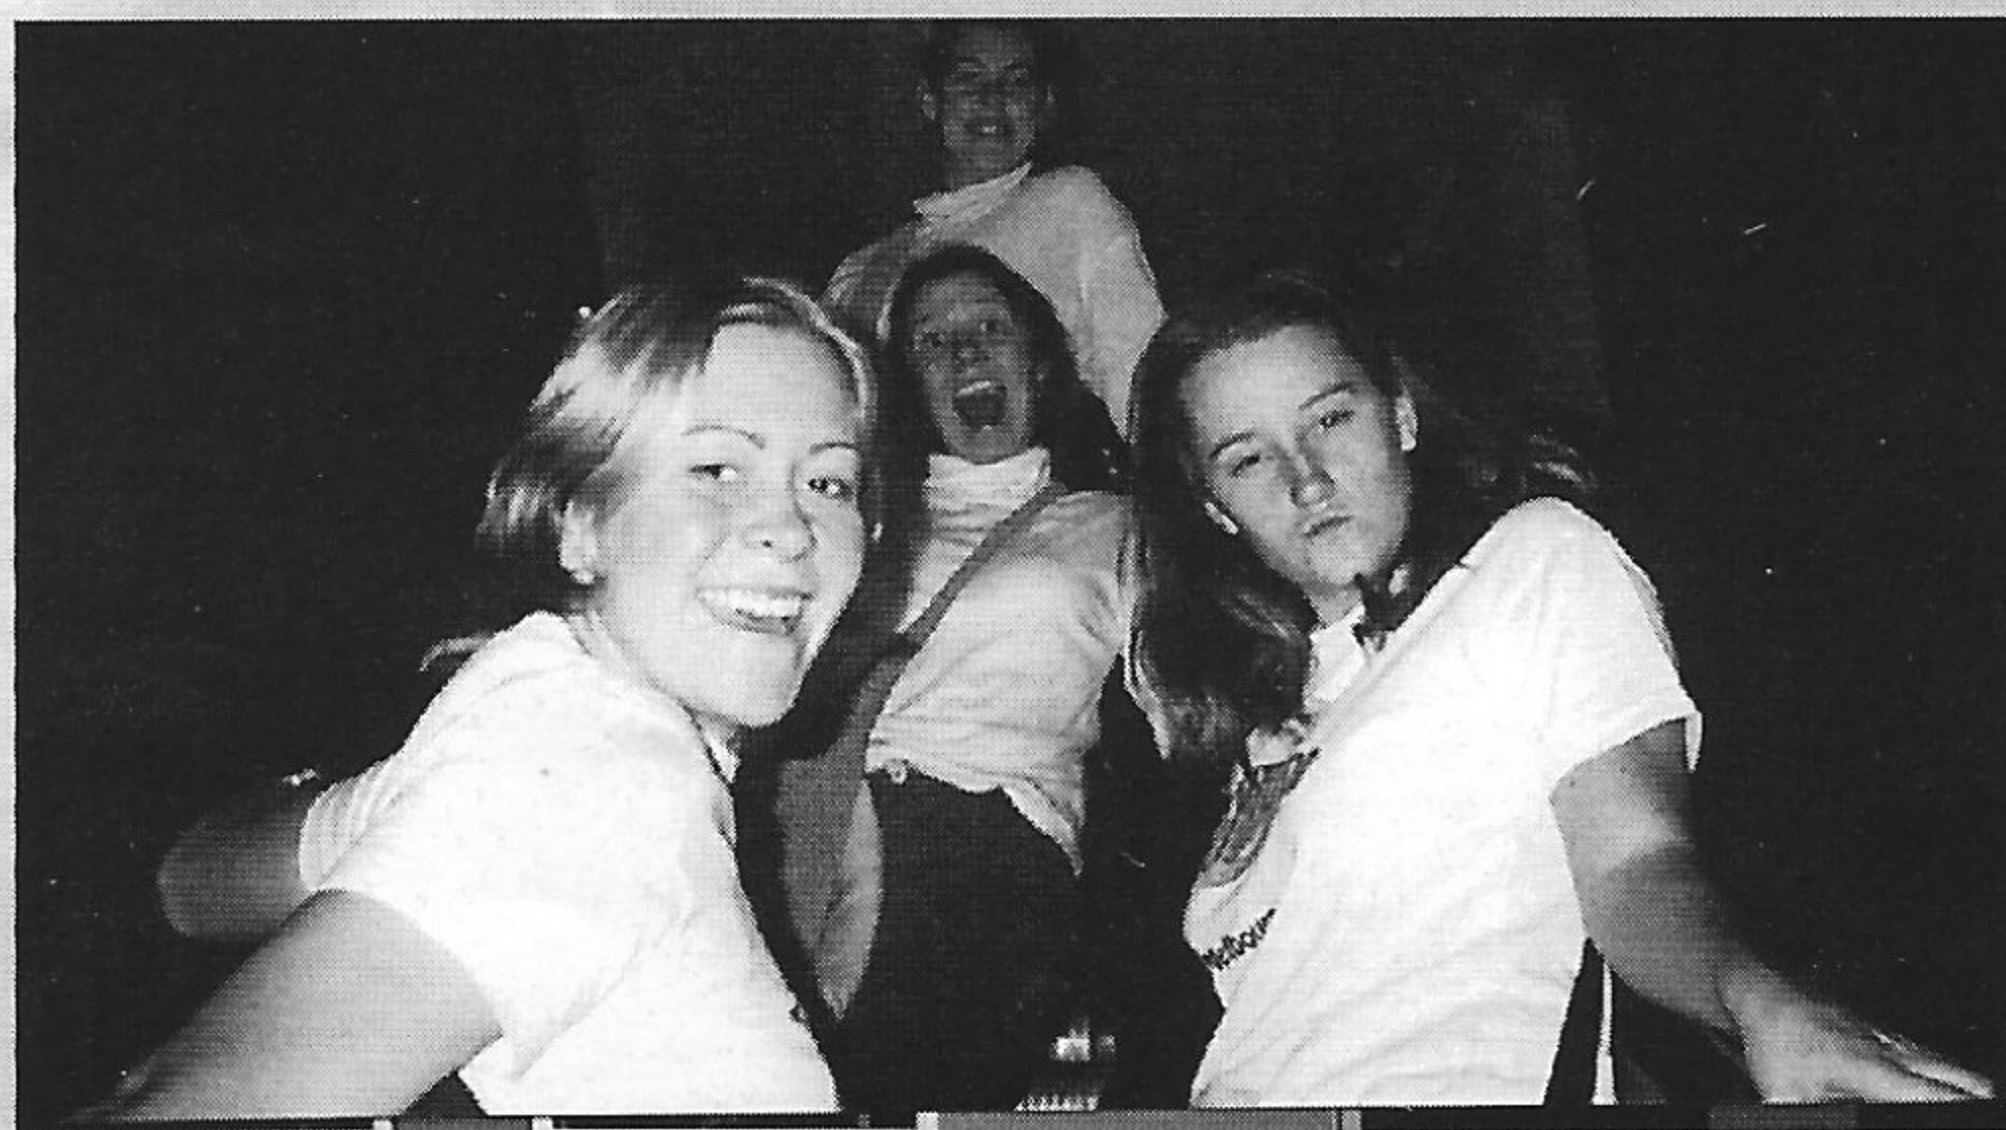

On the plane, we met a few of the students from the two Perth schools, John 23rd and MLC who were joining us on the theatre trip. After nearly three hours of complete panic we arrived at our destination, 'Melbourne'.

We left straight for our hotel, called the YWCA or the hotel Y to get settled, Bunbury Senior High School receiving the luxury suites. It was then time for our first shopping trip to the Melbourne markets and to the Daimaru Shopping Centre. That night we all decided on going to the Crown Casino Complex. This was 'the' most amazing place. There were dancing fountains, the chandeliers moved and changed colour with the music in the foyer. We all visited Planet Hollywood even if it was just for a Coke.

The next day was an early start for breakfast. It was then time for some more serious shopping up until the afternoon. We had our first class with the two other schools, playing icebreaker games to get to know everyone's names and so we knew who we were working with during the week.

That night it was off to St. Kilda for our first performance called 'Stomp' at the Palais theatre. The show was amazing, all the banging, clattering and sweeping to make their music to dance to.

From Monday to Friday it was absolutely hectic and full on. Every morning it was an early 7.00am wake up, breakfast at 7.45am, leave the hotel at 9.00am and walk to Joining the Chorus where we had our classes. We met our three Drama teachers - Sue, Rinske and Tony, all a little bit different to Bunbury people. Sue was our narrative structure teacher, Rinske was our movement perspectives teacher and Toni was our voice and sound teacher. Toni was just too funny, he called us all 'his lovies'. His transport was a bike and he wore fluoro orange trackpants. All three of the teachers were totally professional and treated every single one of us as adults.

During the week we had many tours. The first place we visited was The National Gallery of Victoria on Tuesday. That afternoon, after classes, we visited The Melbourne Theatre Company. Here we saw the sets of 'The Club' being made, witnessed the process taken to stage a professional production and caught a glimpse of Sergeant Tom Croyden, out of 'Blue Heelers'. The last tour we had was of the Victorian Arts Centre although we nearly didn't make it due to a certain hijacking by our tram driver who insisted he knew a short cut to our destination, only arriving half an hour late !

We also viewed many live shows and performances. We saw a movement improvisation piece, called "Born in a taxi". On Wednesday, we saw a play at a minute theatre called La Mama in Carlton. The play was called 'Kindling Does for Firewood'. On our last night it was off to see the famous 'Phantom of the Opera' at the Princess Theatre. After the show had finished, we had a brief meeting with Rob "The Phantom" Guest.

To end our last day, we performed the piece 'Farewell' that we had all worked very hard on for the last week. This was the last time we would perform with our newly made friends. Finally, we arrived at the Perth airport, said our final goodbyes and headed home, happy to be with our parents but sad to see a trip of a lifetime, fun and friendships end.

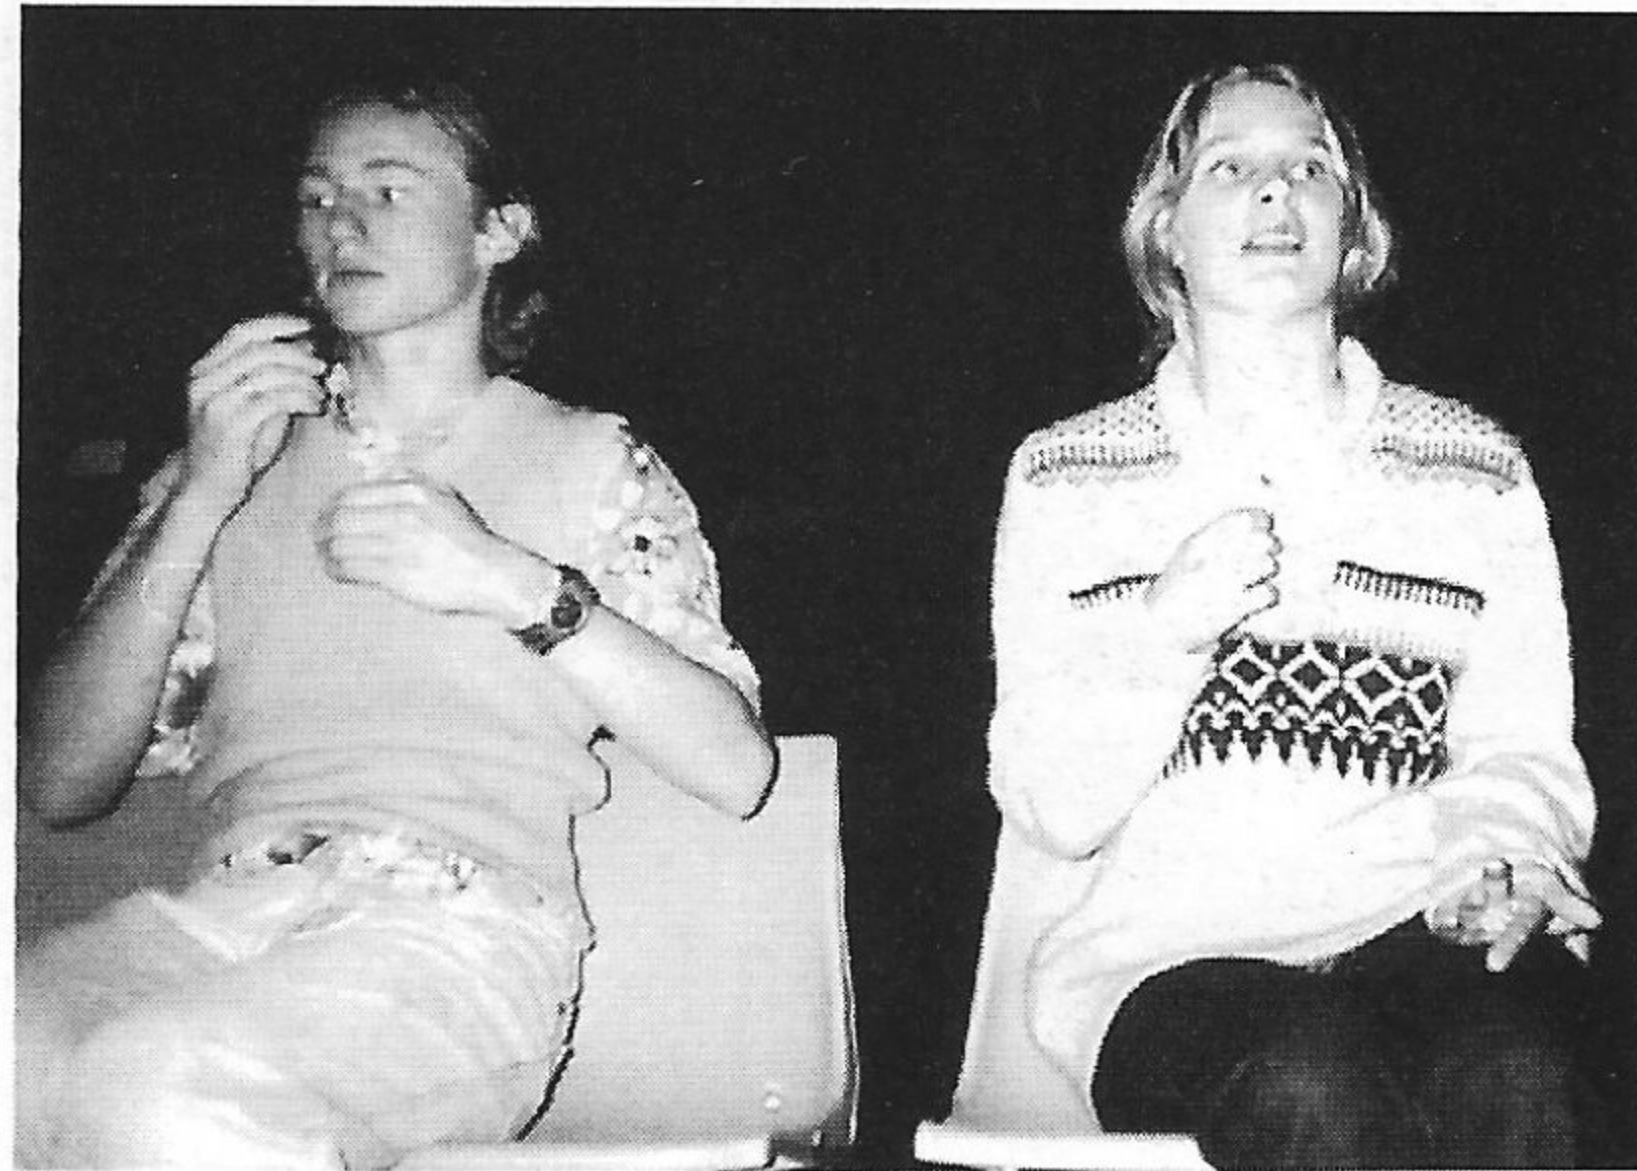

Finally thanks to Mrs Dykstra , Miss Polglaze and Mars bars, as this trip would not have been possible without them.

DAGS

You missed out BIG time if you didn't see this awesome play. And just to rub it in, this write-up is going to reveal the depths of your misfortune.

The Theatrix Bunch was a group of spunky, down-to-earth individuals from upper school who met at the Performing Arts Centre each Tuesday and Friday afternoon. Directed by Mrs Dykstra, they sifted out their acting abilities to rehearse for a play called "Dags".

The title said it all and yes, the students could relate to it very well. The play was about the turbulence of adolescence, with the central character, Gillian, played alternately by Phillipa Chandler and Lauren (the new one) Smith.

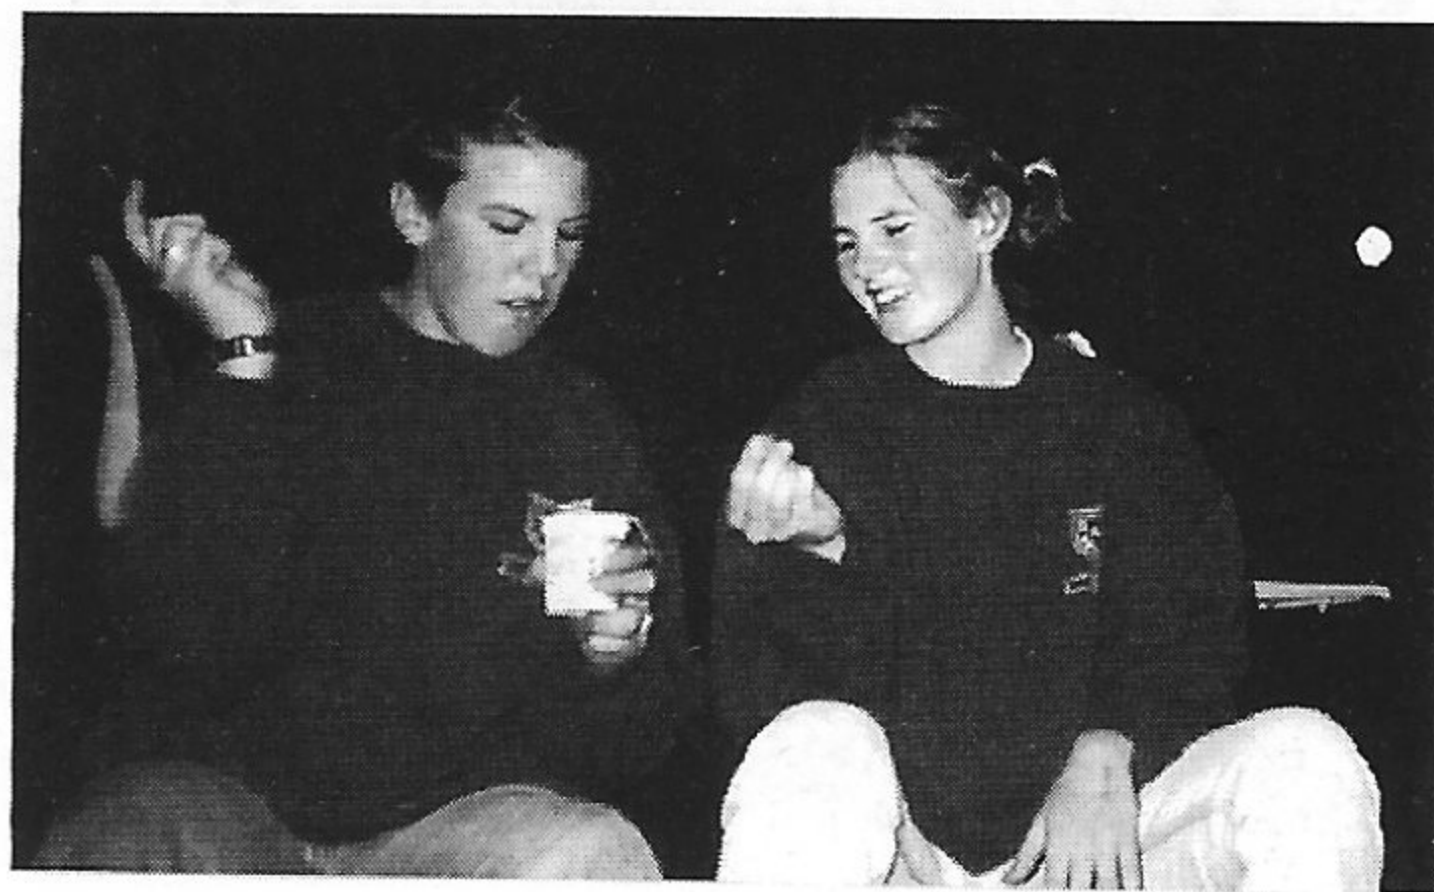

"Dags" conveyed the anguish of being rejected, showing Gillian's isolation and lack of self esteem. Yet it ended on a note of hope, with Gillian managing to overcome her problems with the help of her dorky friends, a packet of Tim-Tams and loads of melodrama.

"Monica and me can get through a packet of Tim Tams in 10 minutes flat! Truly!"

These were the sort of rehearsals the Theatrix bunch enjoyed. They all thought the constant pig out on Tim Tams and lollies would have them in a sweet chocolate heaven. However, after the 8th take of the Mars Bar scene, Pip and Loz were feeling a little over chocolated. Although they became a chore at the toughest of times, rehearsals obviously proved to be a perfect recipe for a wicked performance.

Their hard work and talent was displayed in four performances - Friday evening 8th May, Saturday evening, a Sunday afternoon matinee followed by a final Sunday evening performance. Phillipa took the stage on Friday and Sunday nights while Lauren performed on the Saturday night and Sunday afternoon. A small sellout audience proved to be the perfect tonic for their nerves once the first laugh was released and the Theatrix bunch's collective insides settled.

The Theatrix Bunch wishes to thank Mrs. Dykstra, the lighting and sound crew, also any other extras who contributed to their success. Through good and bad, rain and shine they came out sparkling, deserving Oscars at least as much as Jim Carrey.

DRAMA NIGHT 1998

On the 21st of June 1998, students from Bunbury Senior High School's drama classes put together a night of performances to go down in history. Years 10, 11, and 12's performed a diversity of drama sketches that kept the audience laughing all the way home.

For the year twelves, the drama night was a special occasion. Some great solo acts performed by Andrea Gibbs, Steven Milne, Catherine Gobby, and Phiippa Chandler clearly displayed the high standard of performance the year twelve drama class is capable of and the hard work that went into making the drama night a success.

Monty Python was the call of the evening with two of the most hilarious sketches ever produced by those crazy Englishmen..

Adam Bromley and Kristy Mitchell pulled off the Parrot Sketch in Flying Circus style and even managed to get their hands on a Dead Parrot. Adam Bromley then teamed up with Adam Kozyrski to reproduce the famous Grim Reaper scene from Monty Python's The Meaning Of Life. The whole audience soon found themselves joining the choir invisible as it dawned on them all that Chicken Treat is not a health food product.

Brendan Appleby and Brant Ward gave a new meaning to the word mime with their performance, Battle Of The Mimes. Catherine Gobby and Rhiannon Lucas fought it out on stage and showed the audience the pressures of being a weather girl on a television network- Chris Mills could soon find himself flooded with sympathy cards.

The laughs kept rolling after the intermission with Andrea Gibbs and Philippa Chandler performing I Will Survive. Now it was the year eleven's turn to prove to their parents and to themselves that they can perform under the spotlight.

A Day In The Life Of... was their theme as they moved through the lives of the student, teacher, the working class, the parent, and the old age pensioner. The air thickened backstage as Adam Bromley, backstage manager, and Mrs Katie Dykstra, head honcho, barked orders left and right hoping against hope that nothing would go dreadfully wrong. The year eleven's made them proud and the laughs rolled on through till the end of the night.

The night ended on a sad note for the year twelves as they realised this was their last Drama Night ever. The tears, however, were drowned out by the finale, Don't Worry, Be Happy.

Somebody Else

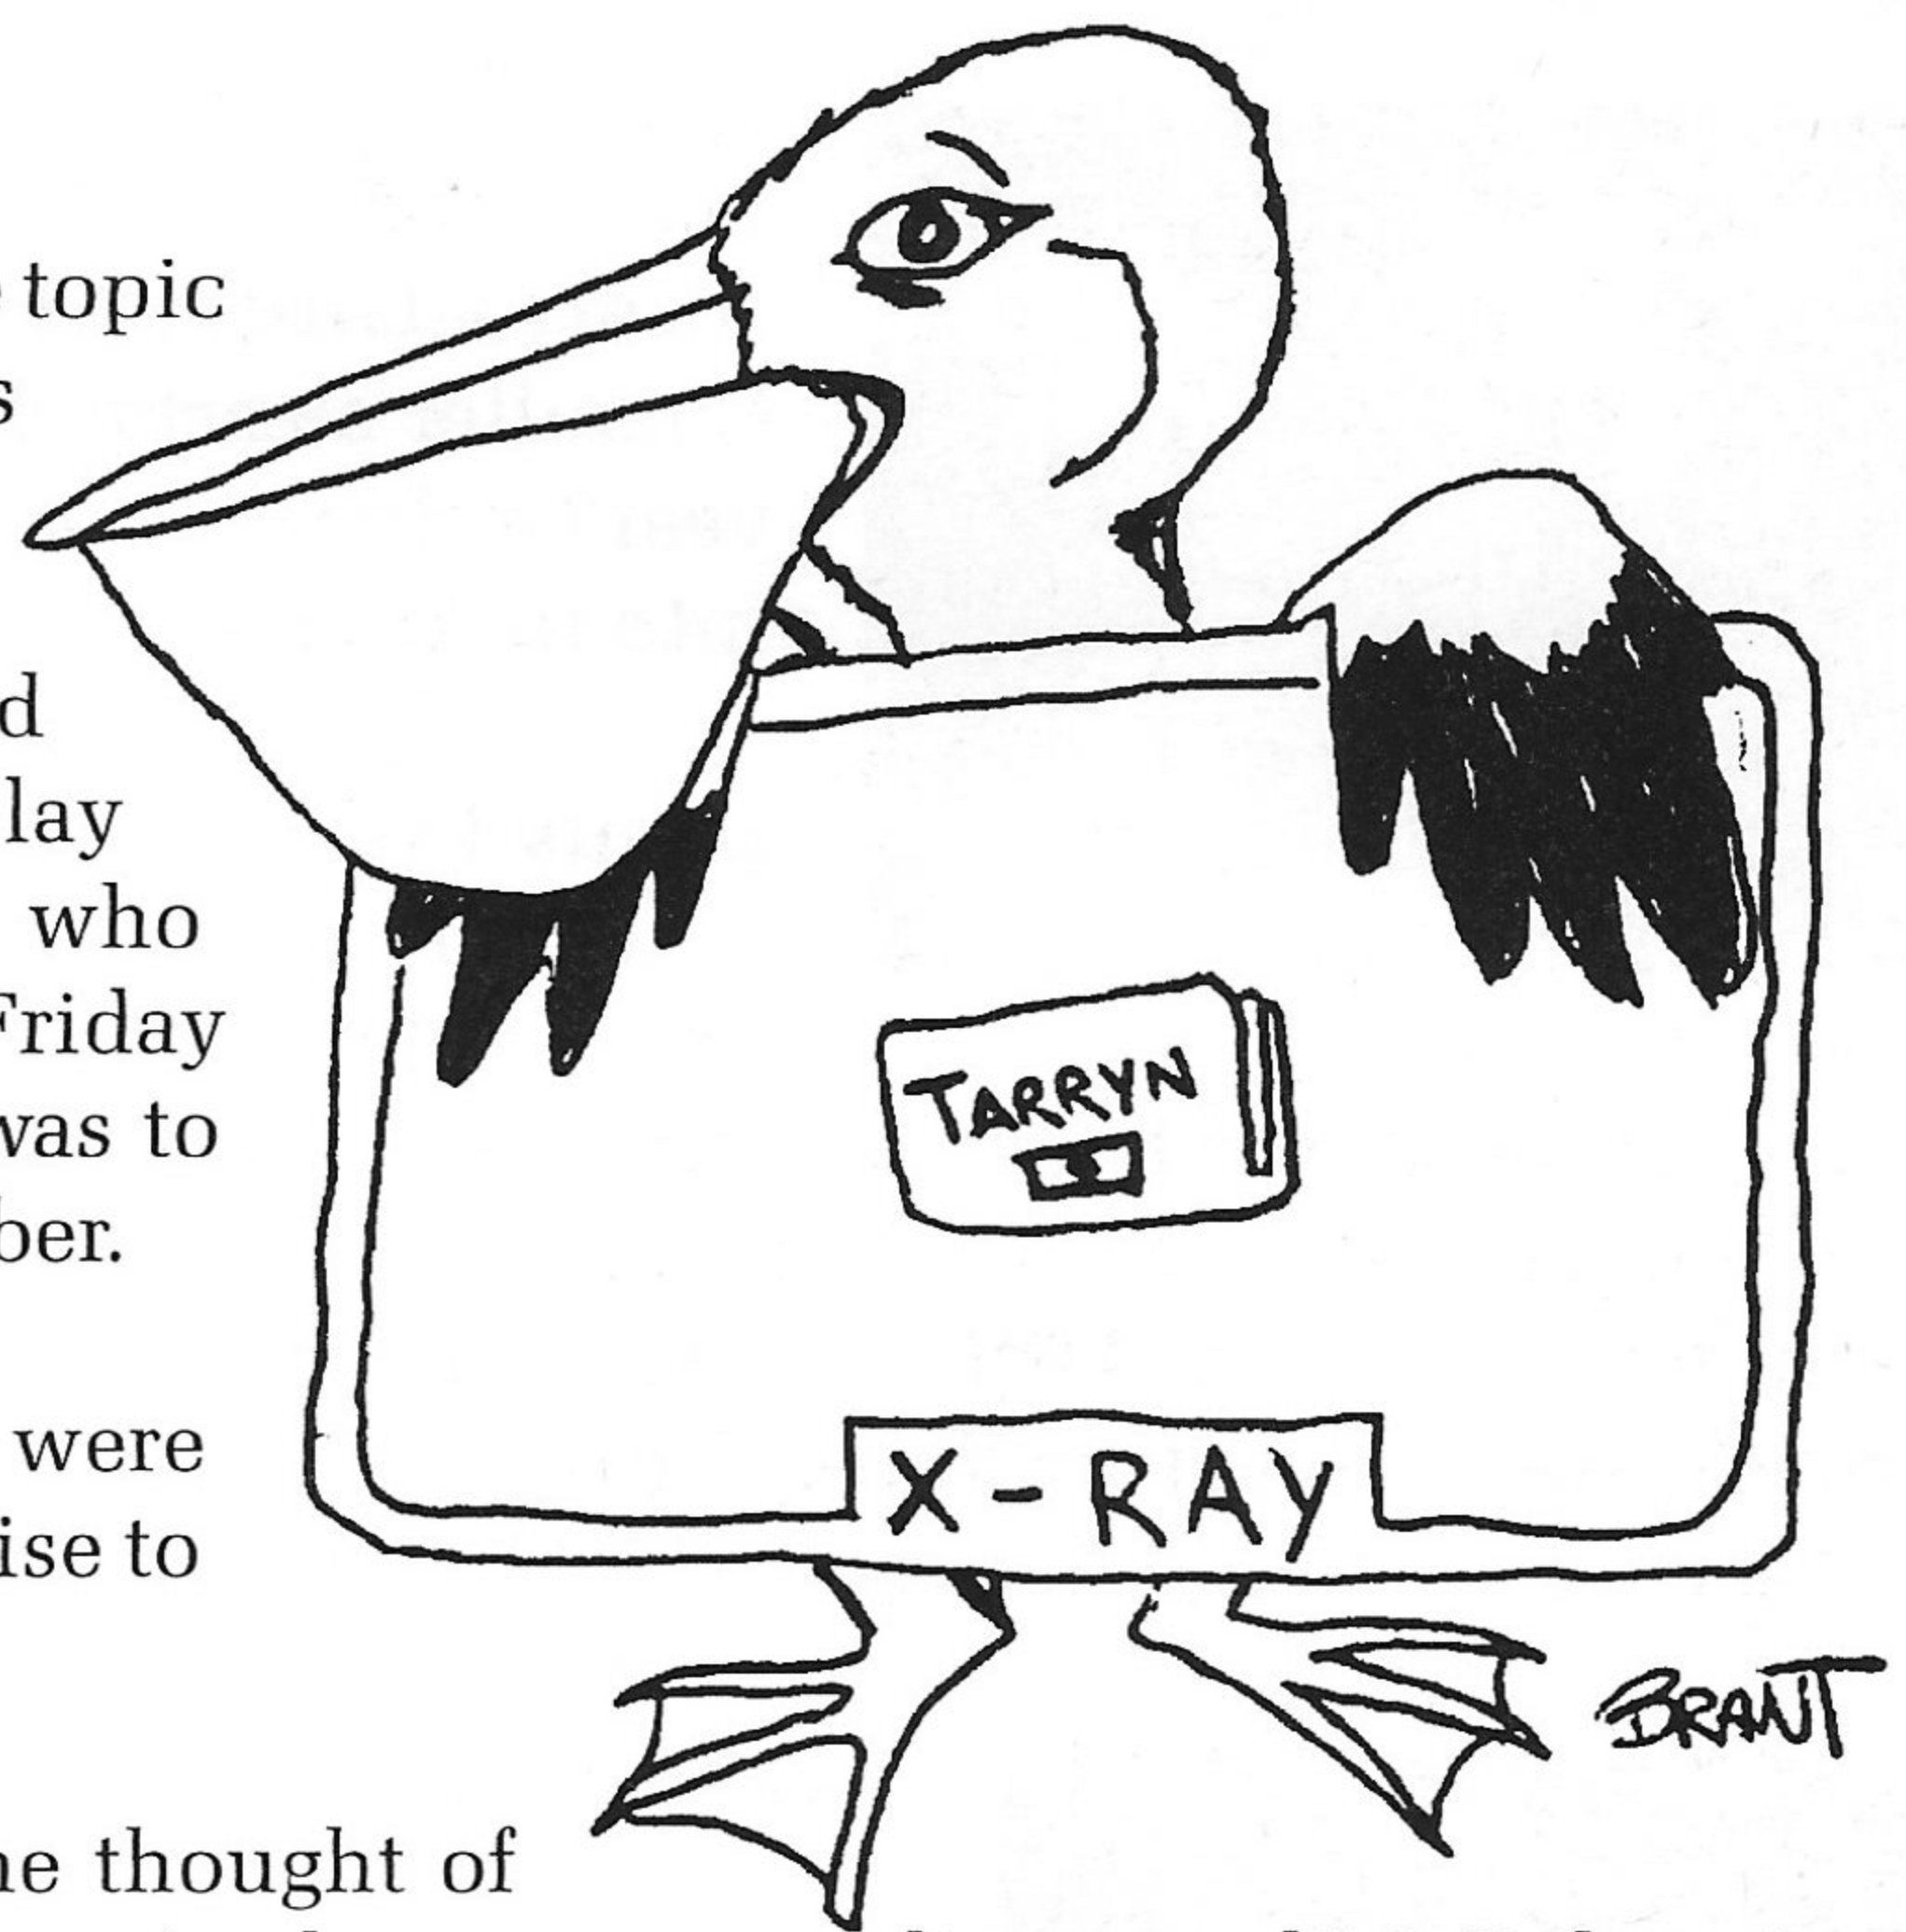

Written and acted by Taryn Phillips, Danika Potter, Kara Kirkpatrick, Brant Ward, Jasmine Hartofillis, Navin Meemeduma, Lacy Schultz, Ammie Camarri, Sarah Tayler, Brendon Appleby.

From the start to the finish it was a blast. The topic on the Youth Health Festival this year was AIDS.

Our task was to design a play that informed and entertained the viewer. We called our play "Somebody else" since it was about people who knew people with AIDS. Every Tuesday and Friday after school we practiced our play, which was to be presented in Mandurah on the 31st October.

We passed through our heats with ease and were invited to the final's which came as no surprise to any of us.

It was a long drive up to Mandurah but the thought of winning passed the time quickly. Once we arrived we soon discovered Ms Dykstra's car had failed once again. After sending the car to the RAC we had time to kill before our play was scheduled to be presented. So off we went to cruise around the streets of Mandurah's CBD. Brendon got his hair gel, Brant and I needed food and Taryn got her wallet eaten by a pelican. Which she later reported stolen to the Police?

With our stomachs full, costumes on (white T shirts and black pants) we were ready. We preformed brilliantly, like real actors. Now all we had to do was to see who would be carrying a big fat cheque worth $3000 back to their school.

Sadly this wasn't to be, but we had a great time .
THANKS FOR EVERYTHING Mrs. D.

STUDENT SEMINAR INVESTIGATES THE WORLD OF WORK

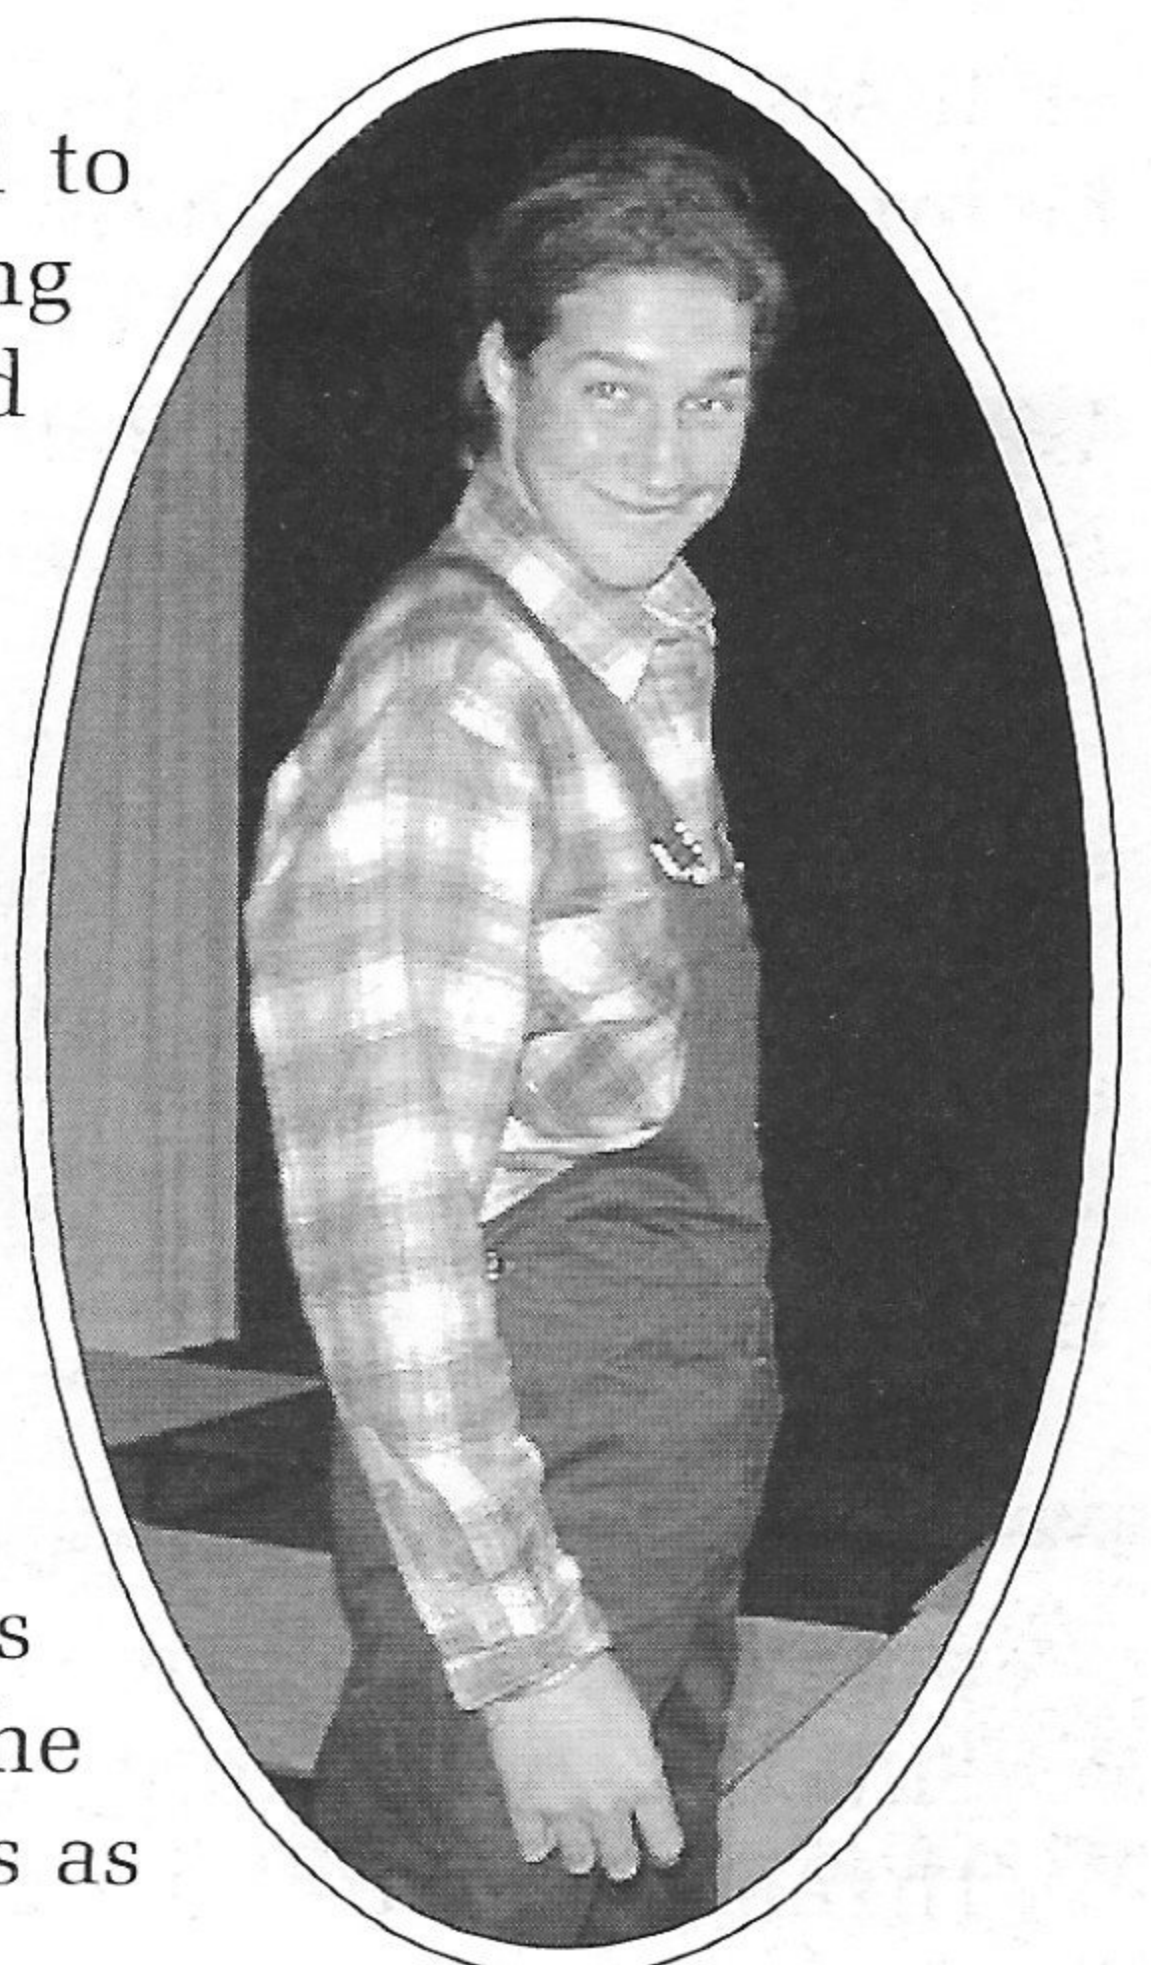

On Thursday September 10th students from the Year 12 Work Studies classes at Bunbury Senior High School presented a seminar showcasing career opportunities and future directions for high school students.

The seminar was a cooperative effort of the 53 Work Studies students at the school. Work Studies is a subject that teaches practical skills in selecting, seeking and keeping a job. The course focuses on teaching students to work together as a group and fosters qualities of independence and self discipline.

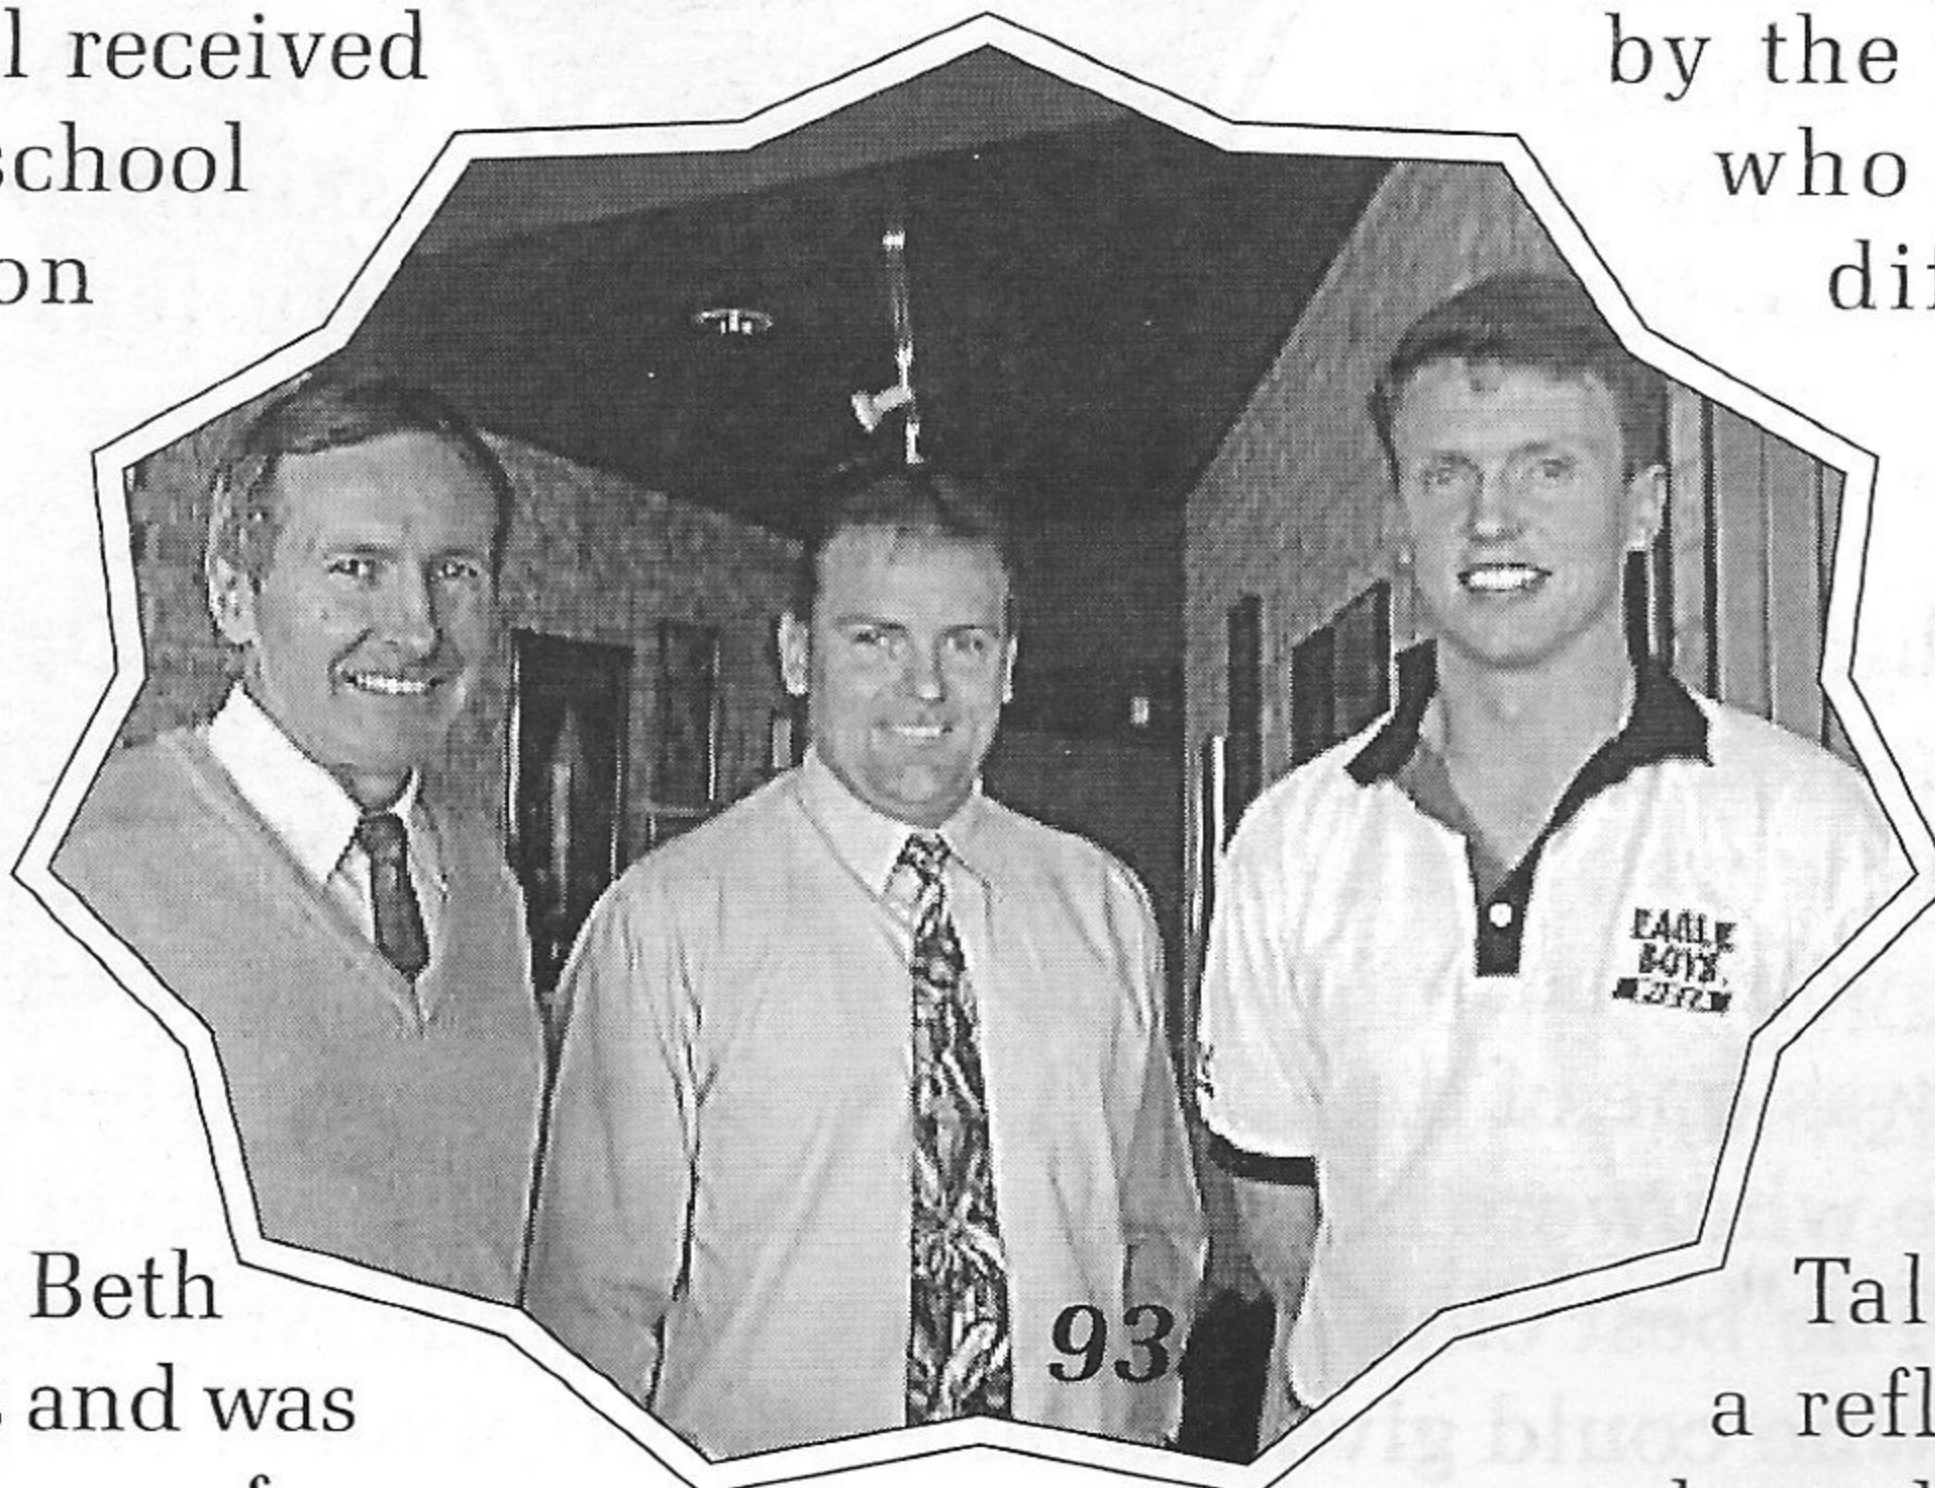

As a part of their course students had to organise and present a seminar looking at the world of work. Students decided that they had to look at career opportunities, goal setting, motivation and also provide information about the world of work.

All of the activities were chosen and organised by students in the group. They wrote the program, contacted and liaised with guest speakers, negotiated for the venue in the school's new Performing Arts Centre, organised the sound lighting and security arrangements as well as comparing the entire event.

There was a variety of guest speakers including; Steve Butler from the SW times, Des Brookes from Bunbury Mitsubishi, Garry Hillier from Eagle Boys Pizza, Graham Standley from Barr and Standley and Ben Talbot from the Bunbury Aero Club, to name just a few. Guest speakers were varied and were very well received by the audience of students who were given the opportunity to sit in on different sessions throughout the day.

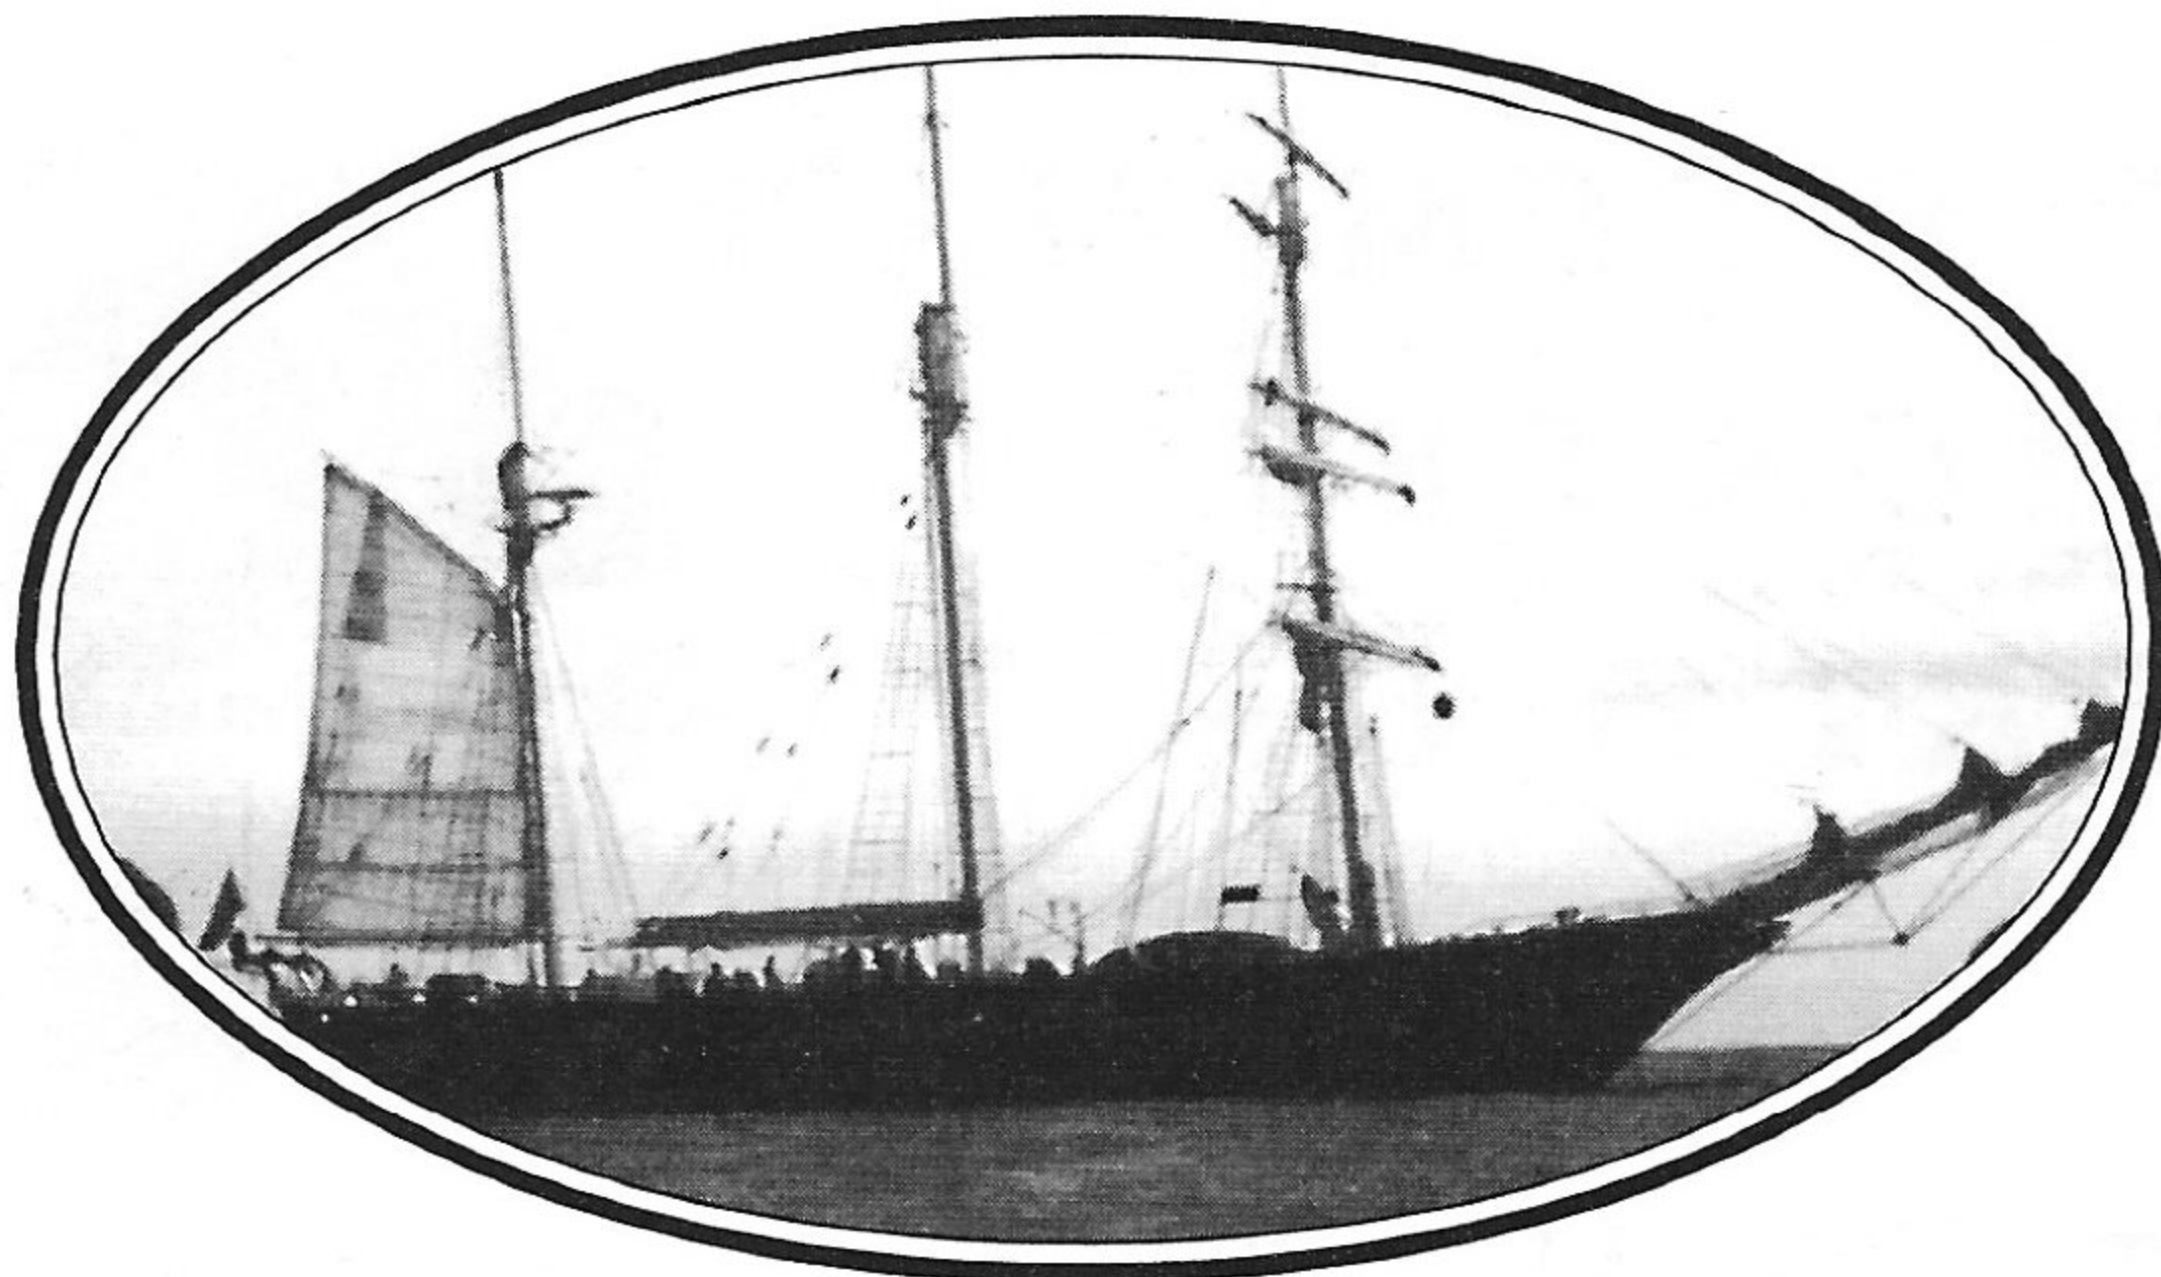

Other highlights from the performances from the and a fashion parade of of work. Garments were businesses for the event.

A VOYAGE ON THE S.T.S. LEEUWIN

In the second week of this term when all you guys were slaving away at your school work, I was on a sailing ship - the STS Leeuwin. I got to be on the Voyage by writing an essay on my thoughts on the topic "Leaders born or nurtured" a tough theme but relevant. "Leaders born or nurtured!" was actually the focal point of the whole Voyage as all of our activities revolved around teamwork and leadership skills.

The Voyage went for 5 days leaving from Geraldton and finishing in Monkey Mia. After boarding the boat I secretly hoped that I would improve my leadership skills - my lack of confidence when boarding had left me with a bottom bunk! Least it cured my claustrophobia.

We anchored the ship in the to find our sea legs before lecture on water use 15 were on the agenda and enjoyed our first meal. I "the cook will supply you three meals up." keep my three meals bay off Geraldton for the first night setting sail. After a lengthy second showers or none at all being a hungry mob we also recall the Captain's words: with three meals down and Fortunately I managed to down - just.

The next days major foremast right to the top and scary. Although harnessed (by far from comforting hanging wobbling dangerously on a swell had picked up so it was all down.

highlight was climbing the furling the topsail. It was pretty a pathetic rope I might add) it was over the sail and seeing your feet skinny wire. Also, by this time the jelly legs for me when I got back

Another activity which was an experience, was Duty watch. This involved getting up at all hours of the night to steer the ship or watch for anything suspicious such as cray boats. The 12-4am shift was the worst. I can tell you, waking up in the middle of the night groggy from sleep, trying to put your tracky pants on and refraining from chucking up everywhere is a feat in itself. But I was one of the lucky ones. On the days when the seas were rough it was other people not me who were heaving over the sides. However the Leeuwin brings out the best in everyone. The best chuck of the whole Voyage won the chunda trophy providing you had a witness who could give a detailed description of colour, texture... need I say more. An award was also given with ample nominees.

On Thursday we were faced - a hard task when we only give you an idea of how hour to raise the main sail really tested how well we leadership skills. I should at this time so it was certainly usually the bossy type but I soon personally on this day was sailing around Dirk Hartog Island. I actually steered the ship around the first northern point of the island, Cape Inscription. (Lucky for me no indicator or gear changes were needed). We also stopped off at the island for a short swim. I couldn't tell you exactly how many people eagerly kissed the sand when we set foot on the beach but there were a few.

for the best bruise - another event with running the ship ourselves had limited sail knowledge. To difficult it was it took all of us 1 which is not record time. It used our team work and know, I was leader of our group an experience for me. I am not learned! A highlight for me

Friday I woke to the sound of the fog bell - which had to be rung every minute for five seconds because of the dense fog surrounding us. Although annoying it was handy for Luke the first mate. On arising he made us jog around the deck and on the sound of each bell toll perform 5 push-ups!

By this time I was attached to everything about the Leeuwin and when Saturday came I didn't want to leave. I had one more goal to achieve - climbing the main mast. The reward for reaching the top was being able to read the words on a small plaque attached to the very top. And what an exhilarating experience it was! What a view! It's really hard to explain exactly how I felt as I clung up there 33m from the deck reading these inspiring words. All I can say is at that moment I knew I had the ability to achieve my goals and confront my fears.

I would like to thank the panel of BSHS teachers who nominated me to go on the voyage and also the other students who applied. It was an amazing experience and I recommend it to anyone.

Words of wisdom from half way up the mast:

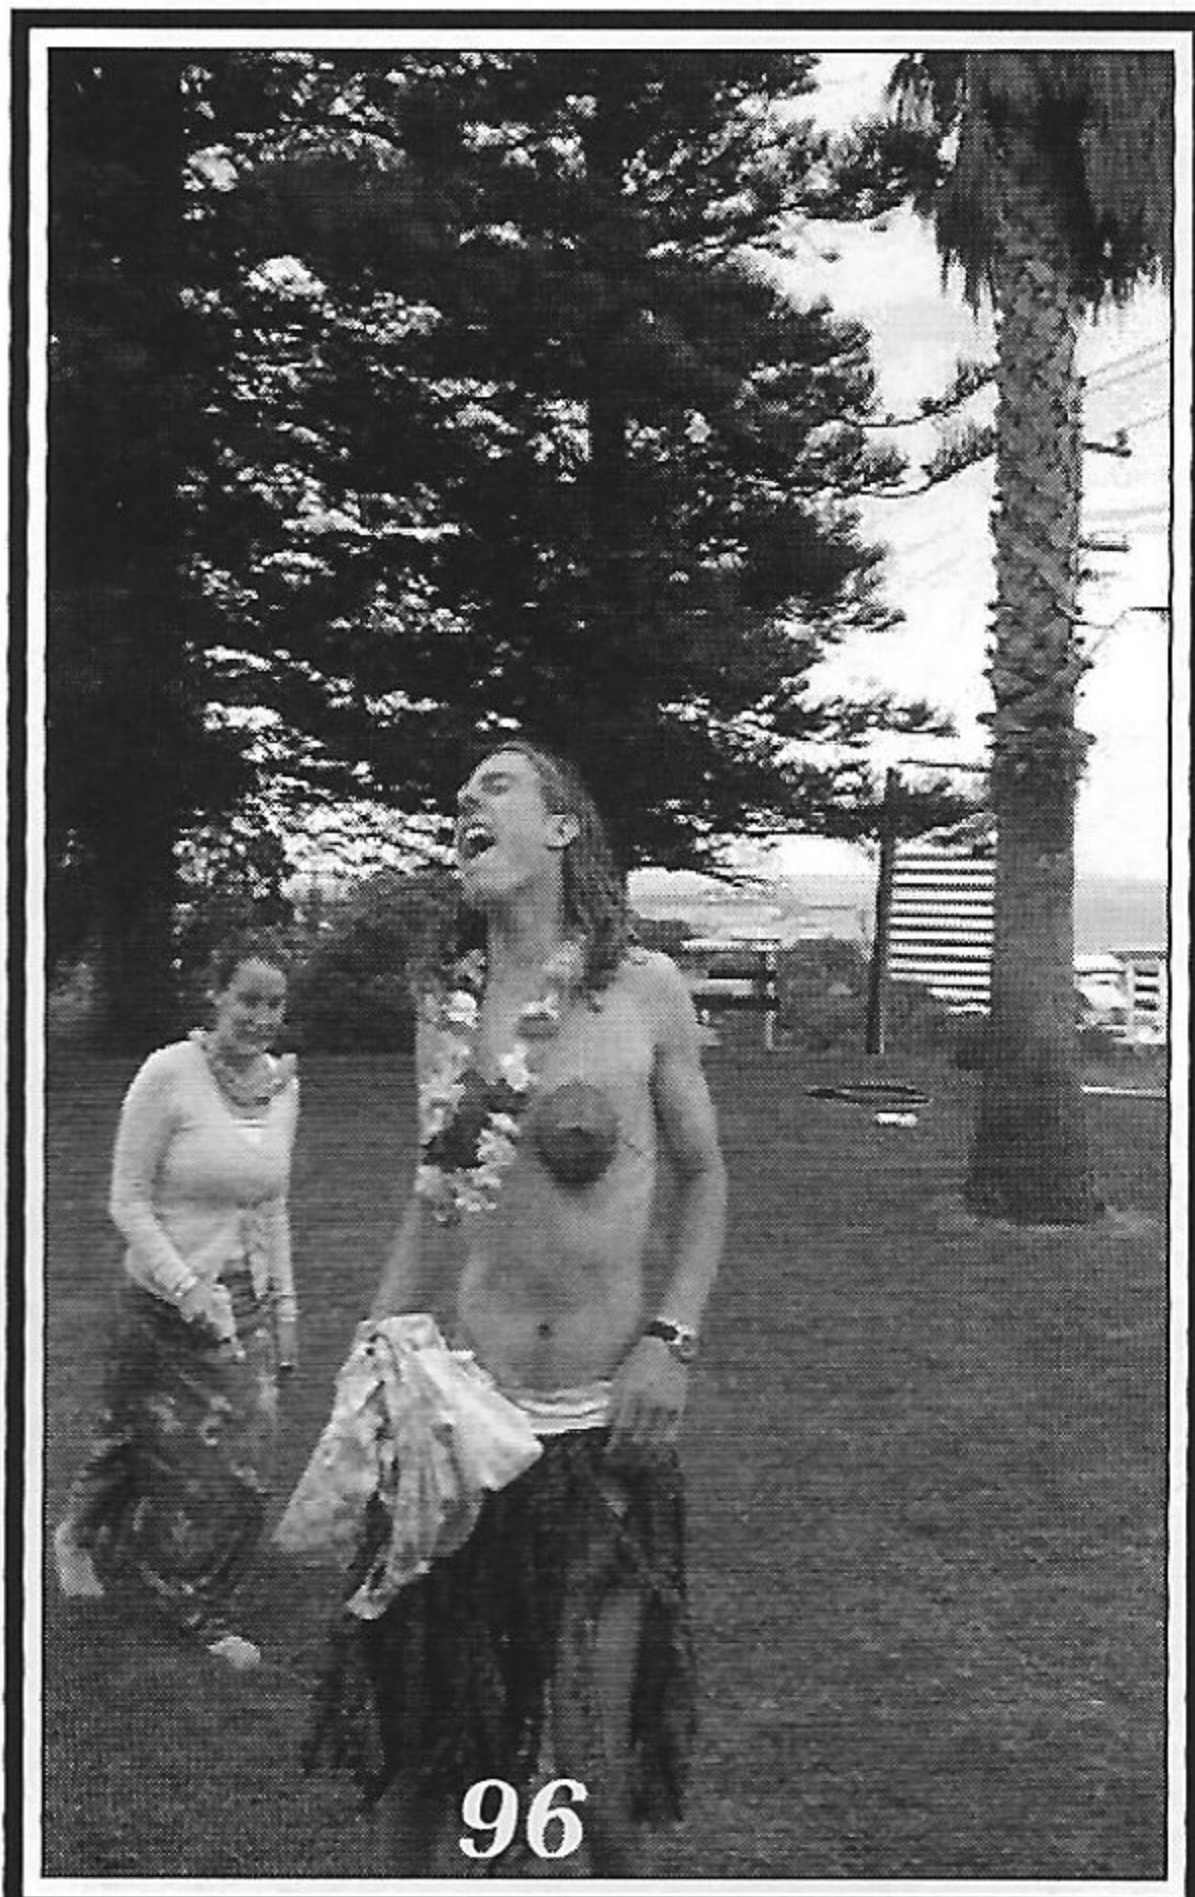

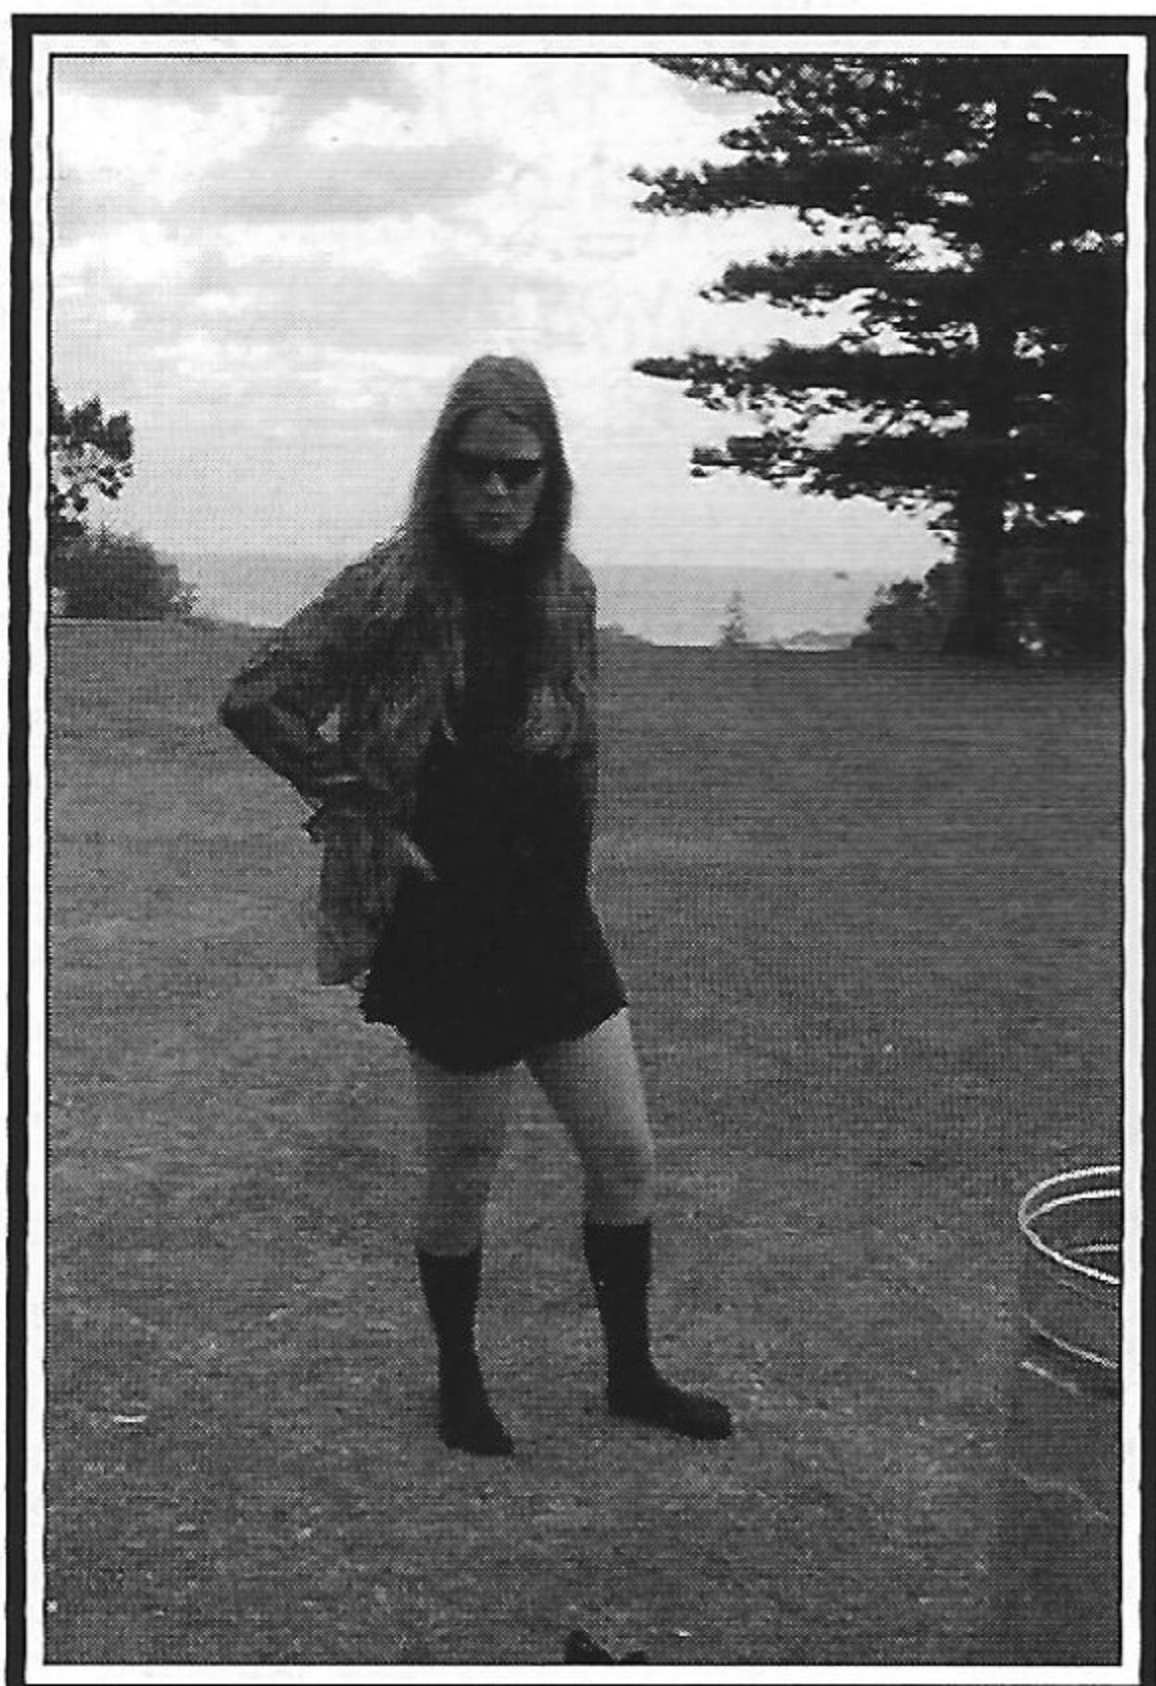

“ I think I've made a mistake...I'd like to come down now!!”

I hope mum doesn't get to see these!

Naah... Mr Davis promised he would take out the embarrassing ones!

ASTRONOMY NIGHT

On the night of Thursday 5th April, a group of five Bunbury Senior High School Year 10's, Mr. Osborne and Mrs. Broad travelled up to the College Grove observatory.

The evening started at about 7.00 and even though it was still light we managed to see the moon. When it started to get dark the stars came out and we had a closer look at the moon and it's craters and even saw all the rings of Saturn. The night was very enjoyable and many thanks must go to Mr. Osborne for organising the evening and the Astronomers at College Grove for use of their expensive telescope (The lens alone was worth $10,000)

Tidy WA Day in May .....A Great Success

On Friday the 22nd of May students from forms 8M, 8K and 8P tidied up the area of Boulters Heights. The 90 eager students involved in the clean-up were supervised by their Society and Environment teacher Mr. Knott. In total 45 bags of litter were collected. This mainly consisted of plastic bags, bottles, cans and fast food packaging.

Some unusual items were found by students from 8P including a school desk and chair, a two metre high sign and a school rubbish bin.

The day was a great learning experience for those involved by raising community awareness about the size of the litter problem and the damage it causes. Our environment is a fragile place. So next time any of us feel like littering, we should bin-it instead. Statistics show that the littering problem in WA is growing rapidly.

So let us all do the Right Thing!!!!!!!!!!

BIOLOGY

BY CHAPPIE + PAZ

TEE Biology was an eye opening experience with numerous excursions wading through muddy swamps etc. making up most of the year's fun. On September 9th an excursion was conducted to investigate the influence of humans on the health of the Leschenault inlet. Cathy Barrington from the Rivers and Water Commission gave a talk and Mr Mutton, our illustrious, teacher provided essential information. Observation of bristle worms and molluscs from the mud, fundamental to sustaining the ecosystem showed signs of the destruction. Sea grass, the base of the food chain, is adversely affecting the condition and sustainability of the system. The BBQ lunch, camaraderie and experience was great and the camp out at Chappie's place wasn't too bad either.

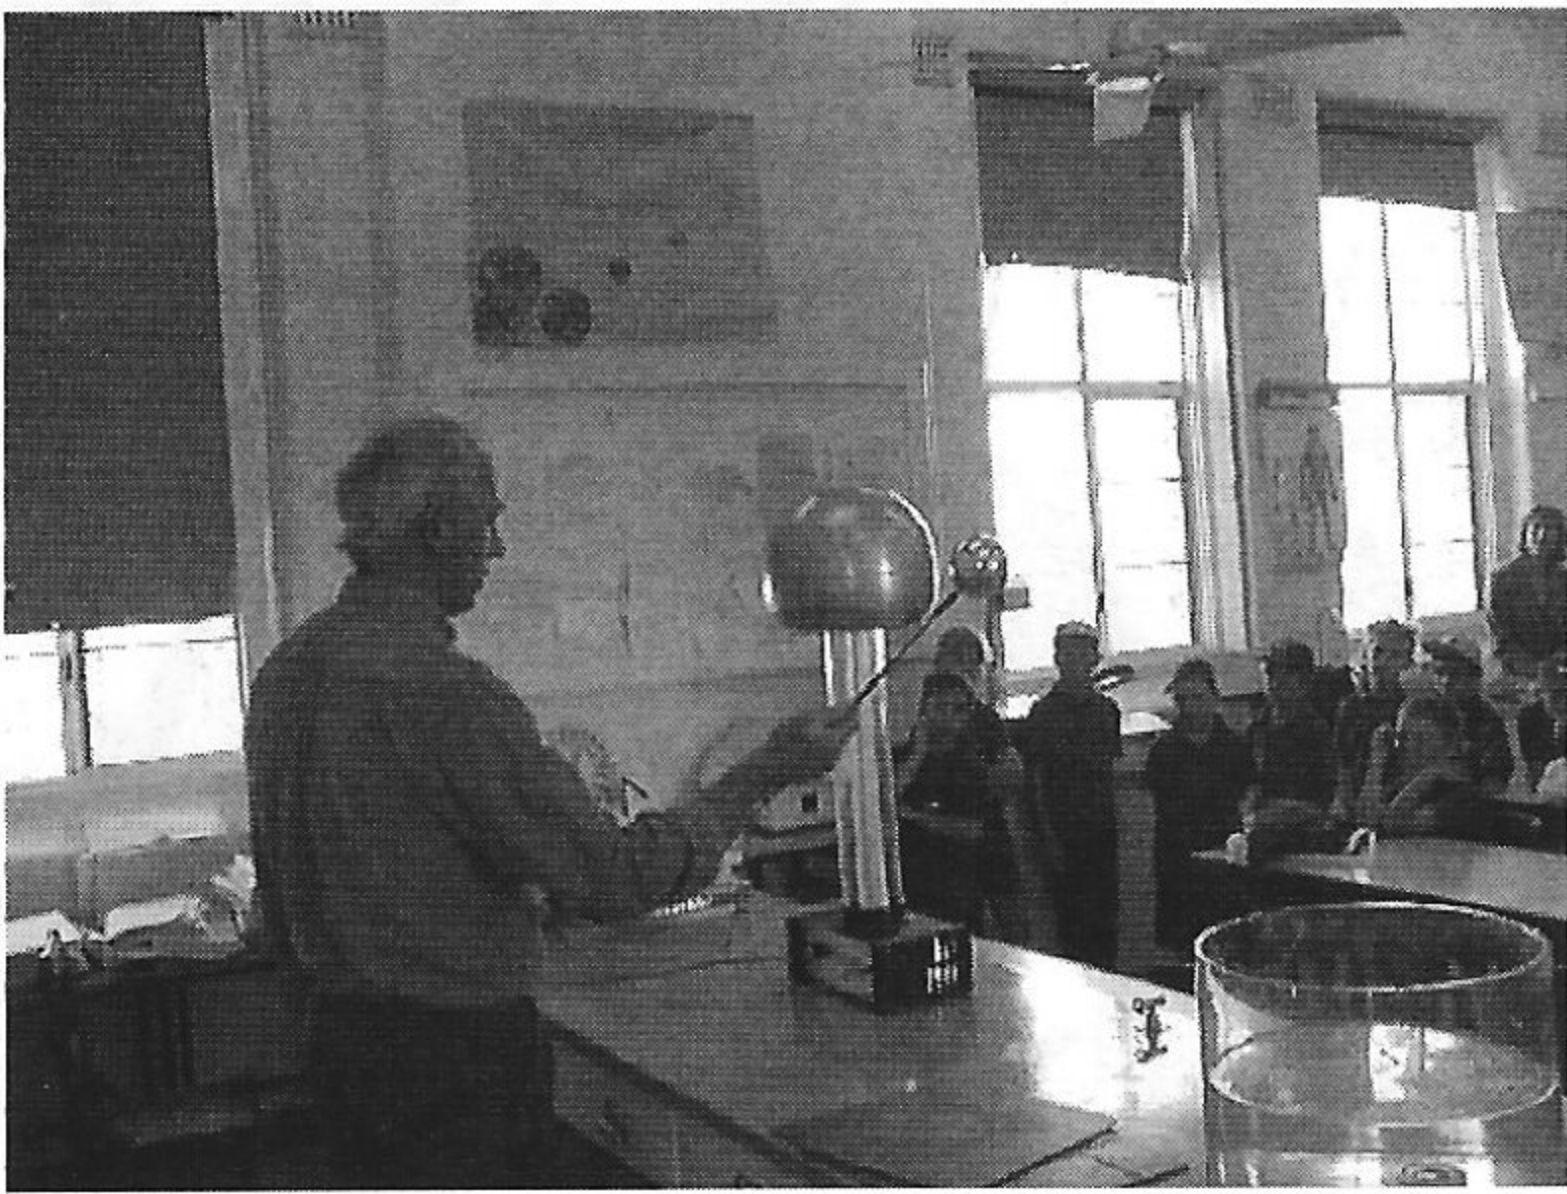

Were not sure what this is. It just looked COOL.

Littlies Visit the Big School

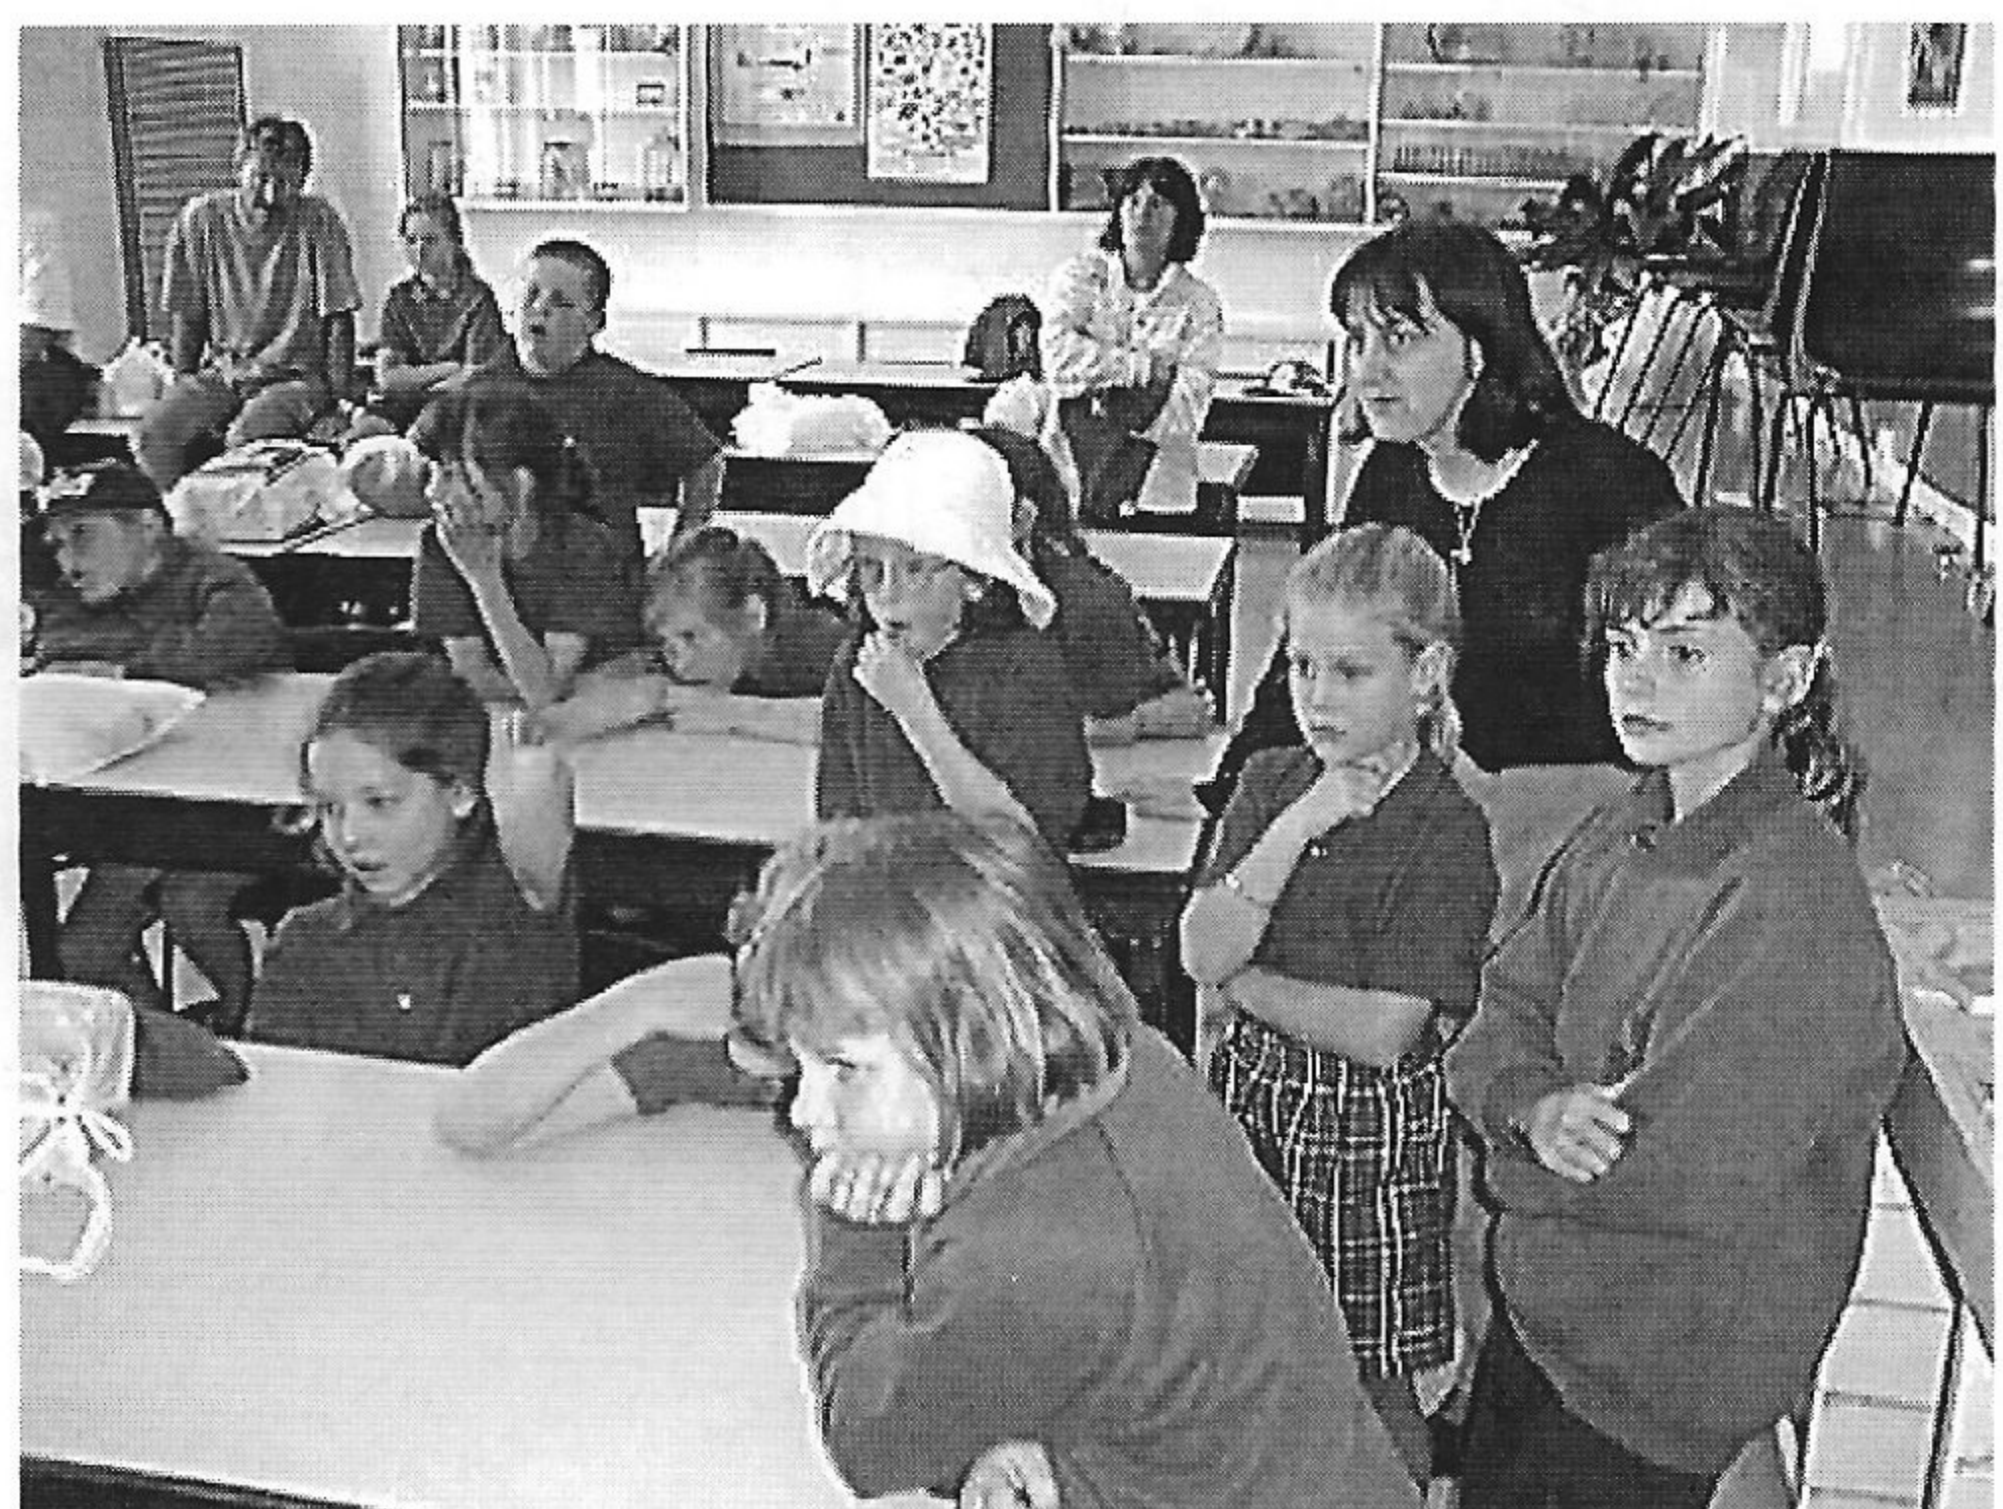

On Tuesday 27 October Bunbury SHS had a delightful visit from Mrs Foote's Year 2/3 class at Bunbury Primary School. Our Head of Department, Design & Technology, Mr McMillan, organised the visit for the group and they were treated to:

- Year 9 students teaching them a dance
- A game of indoor soccer in the gym
- A complimentary morning tea of fairy bread and cordial
- Participating in a Science experiment in the lab with Mr Doust
- Lunch on the front lawn with Year 11 students reading them a story

We hope Mrs Foote and the students enjoyed their visit as much as we did, and we look forward to more such interactions with our feeder primaries.

YEAR 12 B.I.T. STUDENTS GAIN THIRD PLACING IN E.C.U. BUSINESS PLAN COMPETITION

A group of four year 12 Business Information Technology students entered a business plan competition conducted by E.C.U. Bunbury. Karen Harvie, Aliesha Giudici, Chris Hastie and David Garbutt decided to create a business by the name of South West Media Marketing.

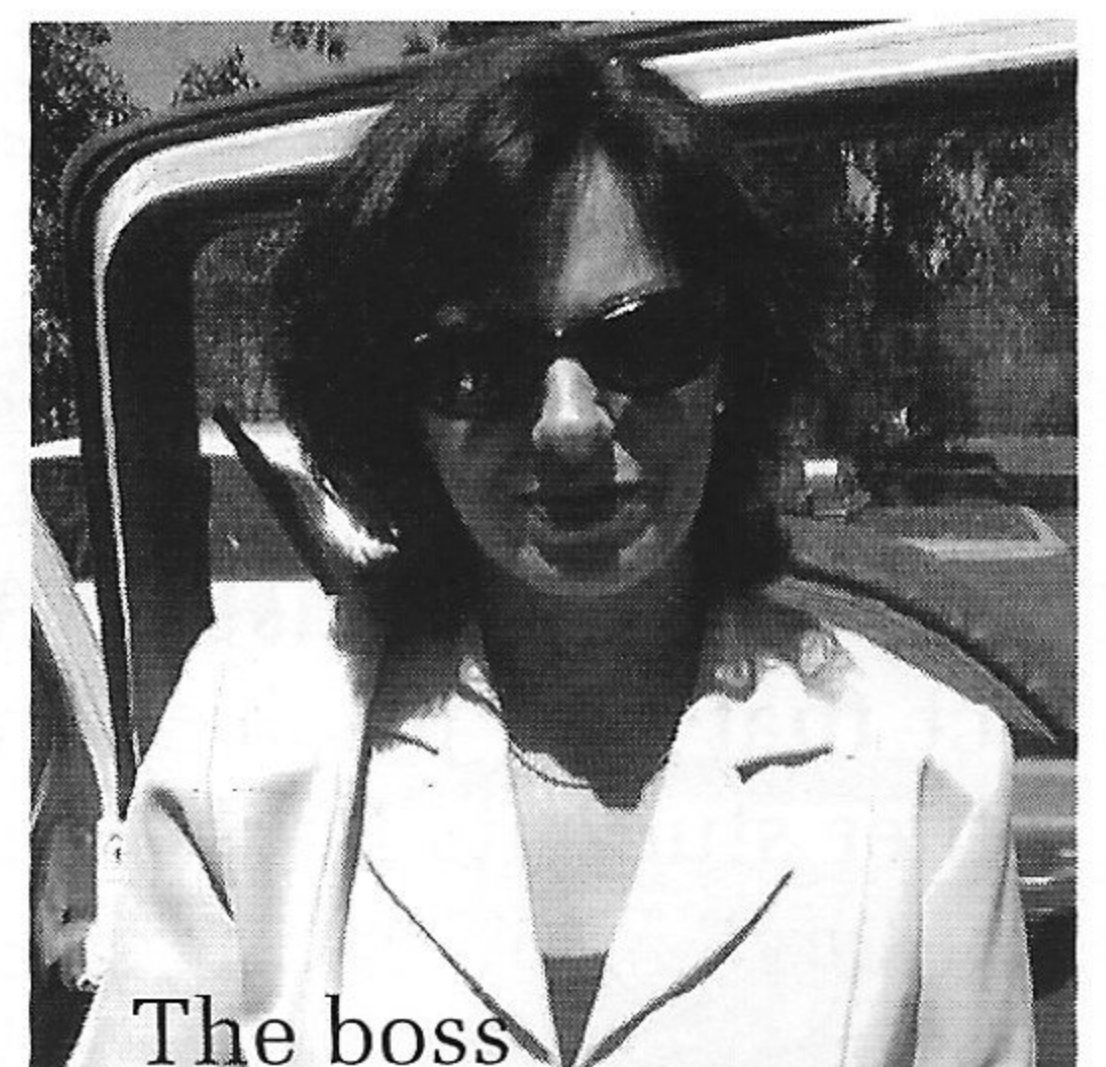

After being entered by Mrs. Clarke we found out that we had won a place. We didn't know what place but we were very happy to have been recognised for our efforts. We also found out that we needed to present our business plan to an audience at Edith Cowan University.

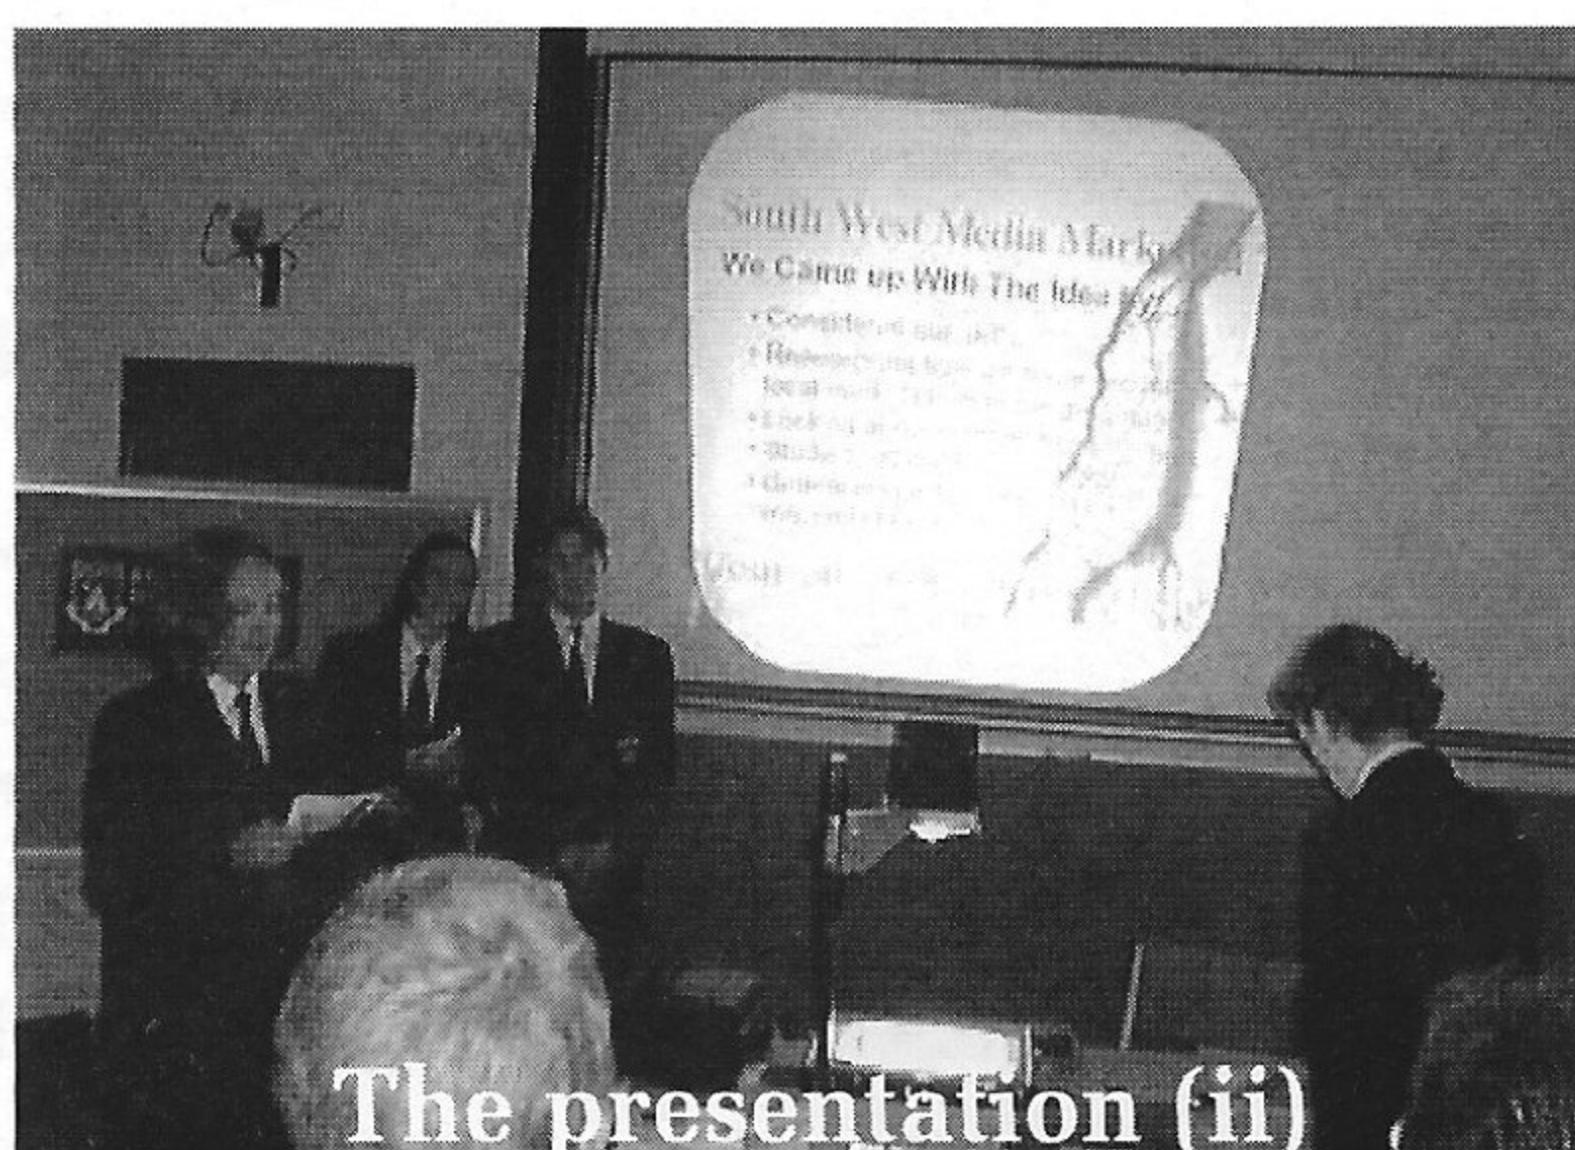

The presentation

We organised our presentation and speech. It was to be a really spectacular piece on the computer using the latest in Presentation software. The day finally arrived and we were nervously waiting our turn. Unfortunately our computer presentation would not load so we had to go to our overheads we had prepared as a backup. The backup presentation went well and we were pleased with our efforts.

Socialising with the other prize winners and teachers, we realised that our business was popular and people thought it was a really good idea. And you never know, we might actually make this business happen in a few years time.

Thanks must go to Mrs Clarke for her help with this venture.

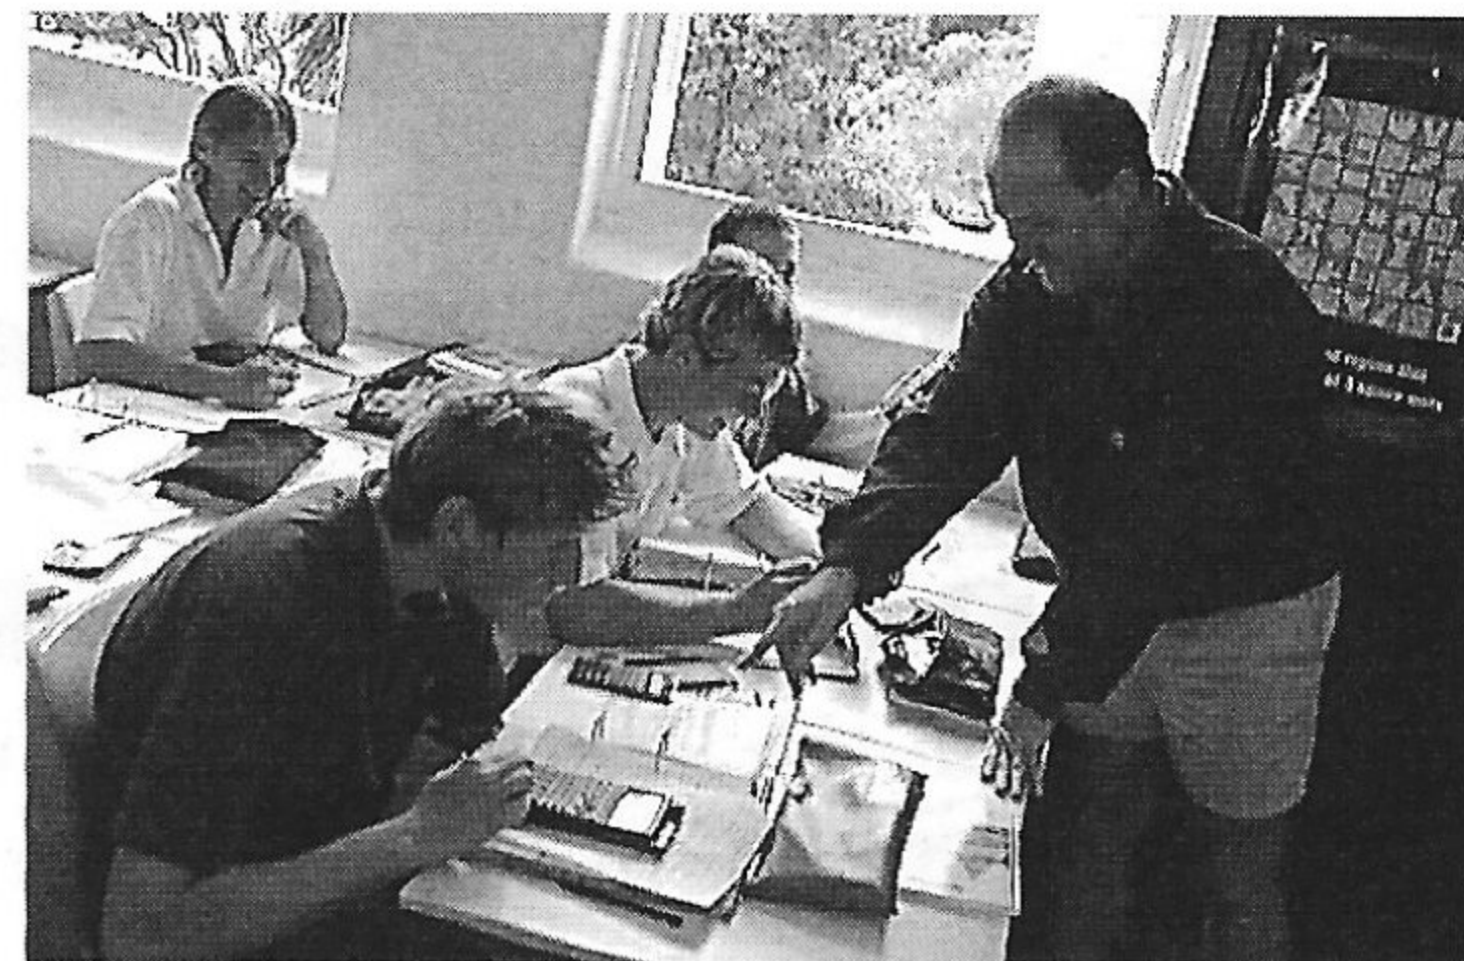

We hope next year's entrants can go one better than us!

MATHS '98

1998 has been an exciting year for the Mathematics Department. Department regulars Ian Baxter and Paul Bartholomew have taken well earned long service leave during Semester 2 along with Vicki Barnes who had a restful trip to Europe during Term 3. The rest of the Department battled on with Adrian Bandy, Julie Smith, Keith Campbell and Margot Sinclair being ably assisted by Kathy Clark, Jane Scott (Semester 2), Aby King (Term 3), Robyn Forest and John Hill.

All classes have run smoothly but the year's highlights have been:

Our students performed extremely well in the Australian Mathematics competition with 73 of our 112 students winning distinction or credit certificates. Naeill Leigh of Year 8 and Michael Benson of Year 10 finished in the top 2% of their year groups in the state and won high distinctions which is a wonderful achievement.

Bunbury Senior High School was selected as a SHARP hub school. The arrangement with Sharp corporation requires us to continue to use Sharp calculators in the school. In return Sharp have given us 20 El 9600 graphics calculators and support material and trained 2 teachers and 5 students in their use. All up, the package is worth around $4,000 to the school and we continue to use Sharp products which we like and recommend anyway.

We hope all of our students had a successful year.

READING RESOURCE

This year there has been a greater opportunity for students to receive individual attention due to the appointment of Mrs Christine Corcoran as a Reading Resource Teacher. Some students have been able to practise skills on a one-to-one basis, within their normal lessons, making use of the fact that two teachers are present instead of one. Other students have practised skills using "Master Folders" or by taking part in "paved reading".

Masters folders have helped students with spelling and multiplication tables. Paved reading helps students gain confidence in reading out loud.

There has been more opportunity for students to show what they can do and have their efforts supported by a member of staff either as a member of a small group or as an individual.

AUSTRALIAN MATHEMATICS COMPETITION

Early in Term 3, 112 of our students from all year groups participated in the 1998 Australian Mathematics Competition. This very difficult mathematics test involved 522 000 students from 3327 schools around the world. The top 2% of students in each year group received High Distinction Certificates, the next 13% Distinctions and the next 35% received Credits. All year groups from our school were above state averages and 73 students of 112 won distinctions or credits which is our best effort in recent times. Congratulations to all students who were involved, particularly our certificate winners, but special mention must be made of Naeill Leigh of Year 8 and Michael Benson of Year 10. Both boys won High Distinction Certificates by finishing in the top 2% of students in their year group which is an outstanding effort.

Thanks are also extended to Mr Campbell and the Maths staff for making this opportunity available to our students.

Certificate winners were:

DRUG AWARENESS DAY

Students at Bunbury Senior High School were involved in a Cross Curricula Drug Awareness Day on Monday, 17th August, 1998

During the day all departments dealt with some issue of drug education, lessons were held on subjects ranging from analgesics, alcohol, self esteem, peer pressure, smoking, crisis management, communicating with parents through to the illicit drugs.

There were a number of guest speakers available during the day from Work Safe, Alcoholics Anonymous, Cable Sands, Centacare, Piacentini and Son and the School Nurse spoke on analgesic misuse.

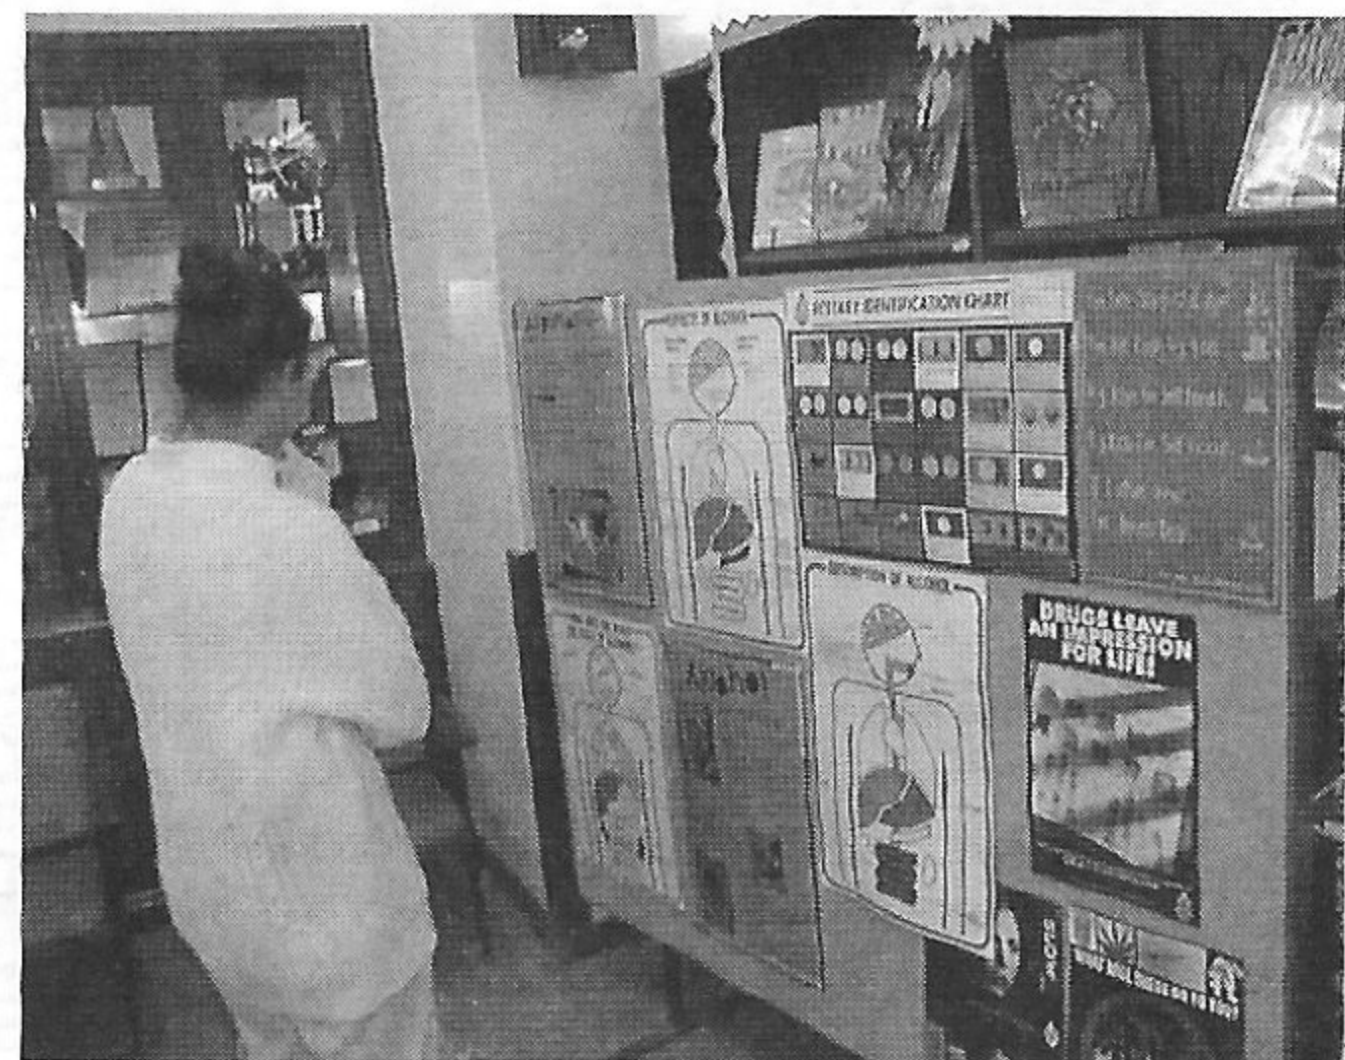

Many students got "High Without Drugs" on the climbing wall - this proved very popular with staff and students. The 100% control chocolate wheel was run at lunchtime along with the school band 'Bracer' who played a selection of songs with a drug theme.

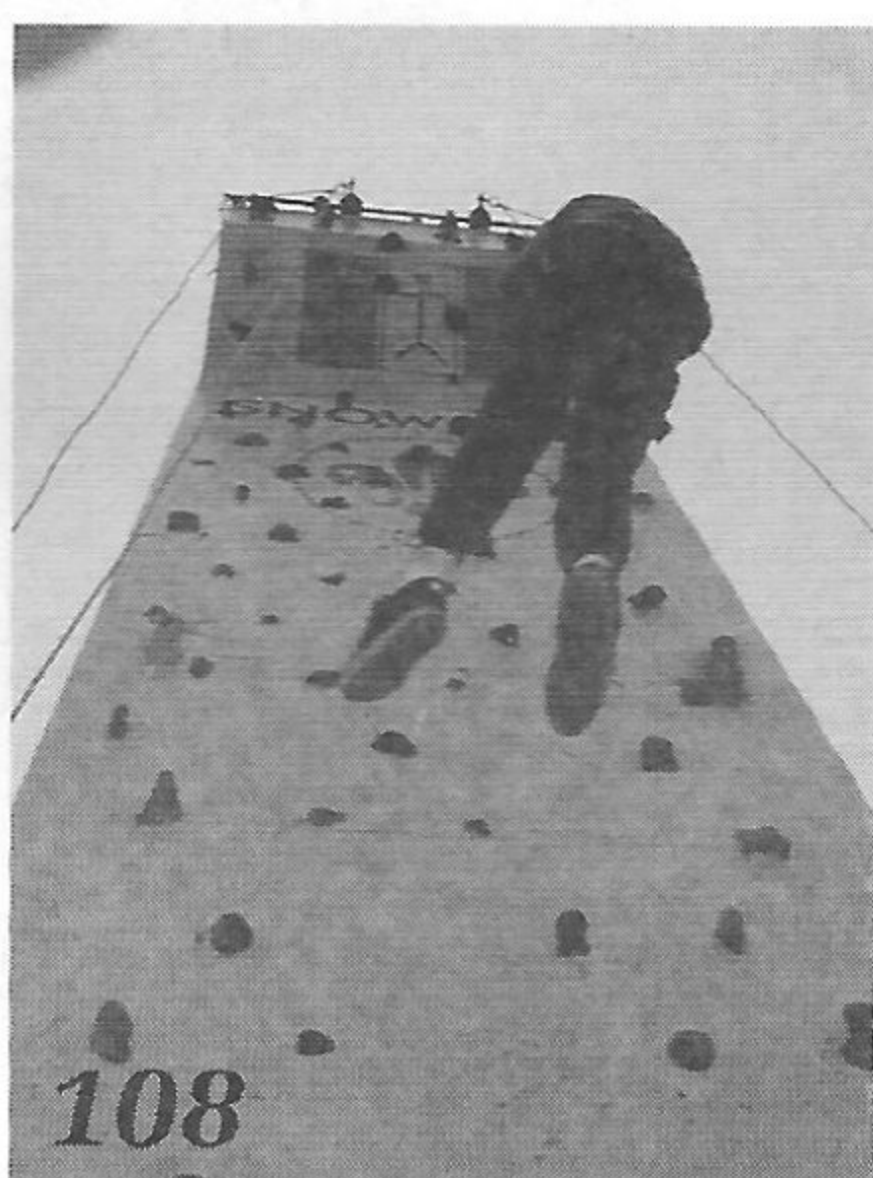

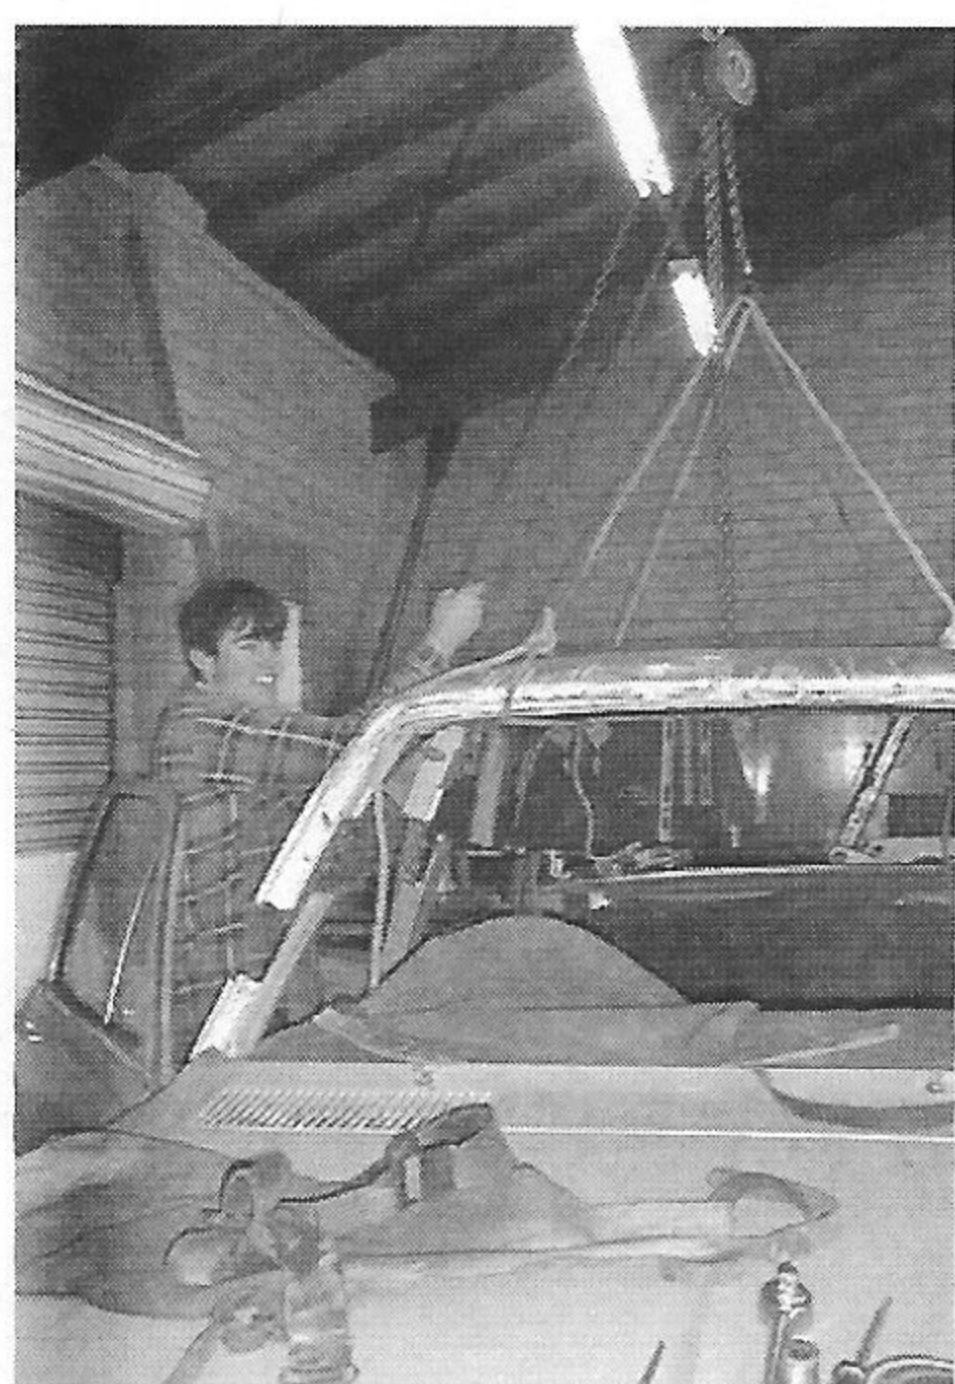

The year 12 students were involved in an expo at the end of the day where they enjoyed mocktails, poured standard drinks, ranked the risks of drinking, scribed the graffiti wall among other activities.

The School is part of the School Drug Education Project this year and this was one of the Committees major activities along with producing a current Drug Policy and preparing a Parent Drug Awareness Evening .The committee consisted of: Belinda Walker, Val Knott, Lisa Clarke, Richard Waddy, Len Hill and Trish Howe as our parent representative. We also had valuable assistance from Dale Sadler and Jean Friend.

LITERATURE

When Year 12 Literature students were approached as to what advice they would like to offer in a Kingia Literature page their first response was, "Don't do it".

What then erupted was a minefield of memories of Lit over the past two years.

Who could forget the gleeful glances of Katie and Adrian, their continual enactment of the "Married Couple"; Kylie's most embarrassing moment when she admitted to asking a McDonald's staff member, "How much is a $2.95 McValue Meal?" or Erin's fantasy fulfilled when she dressed up as a Police Officer for a tutorial - with handcuffs?

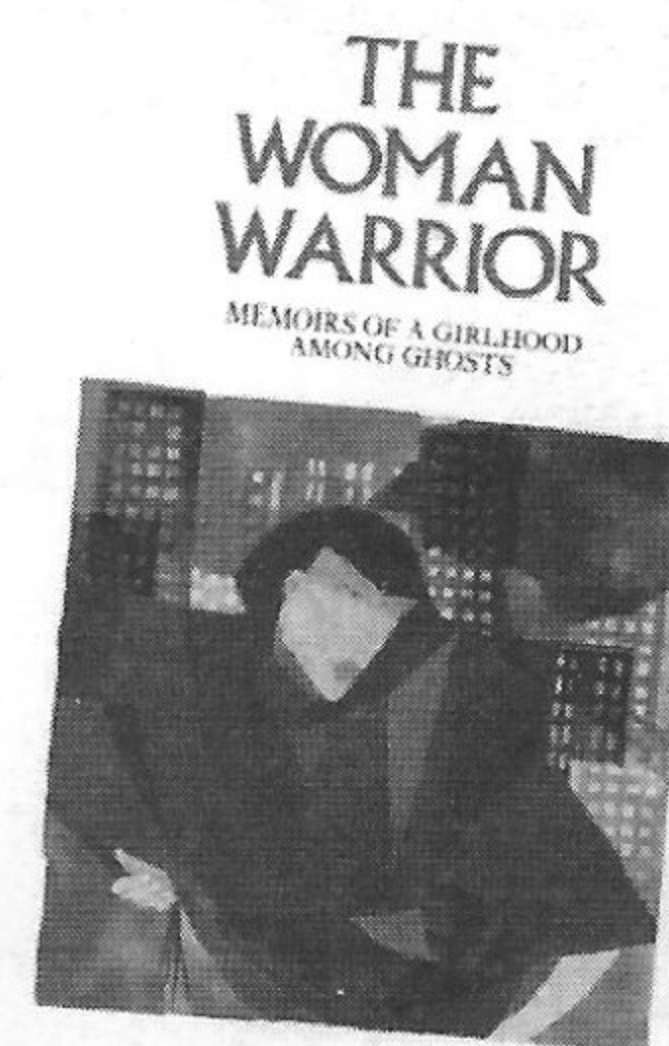

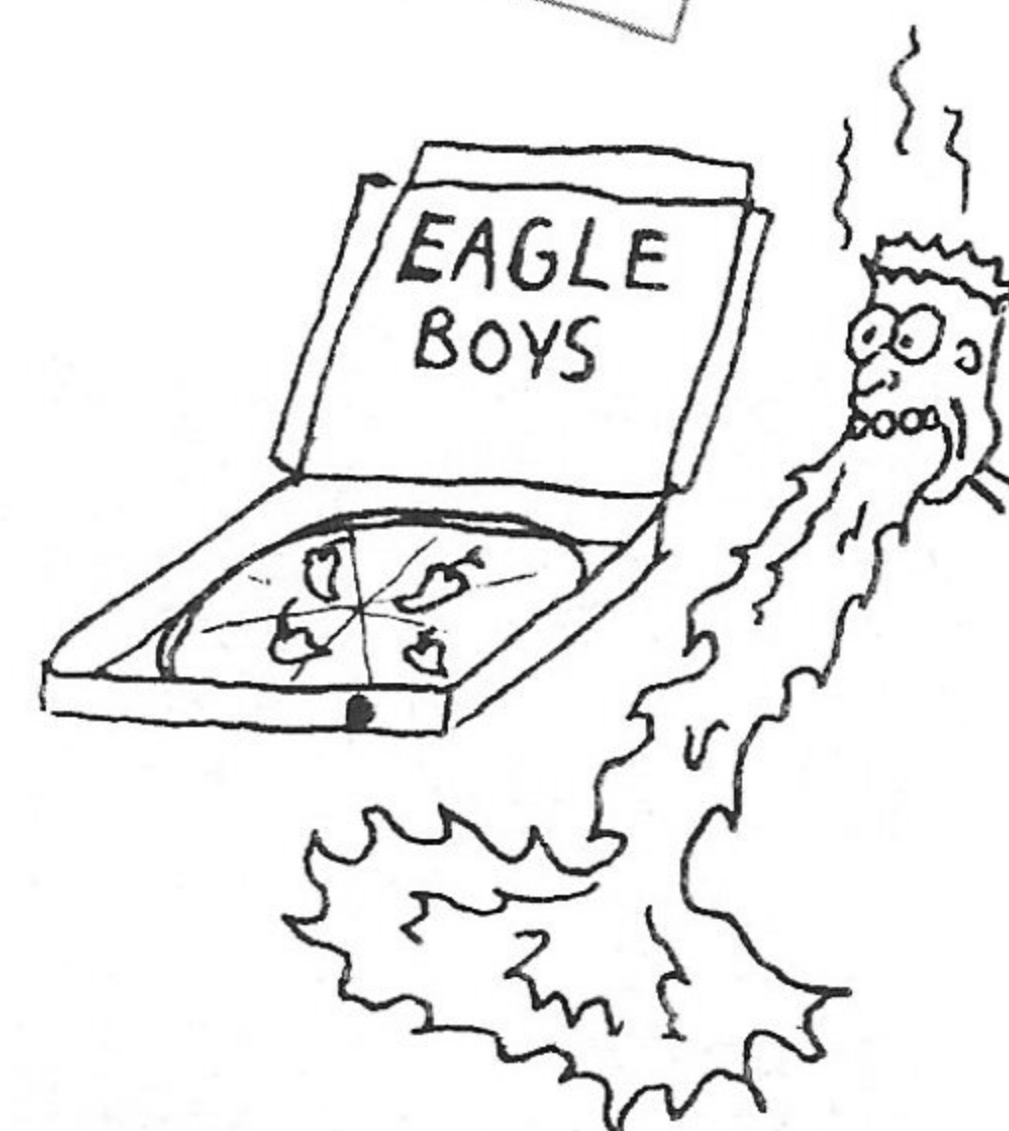

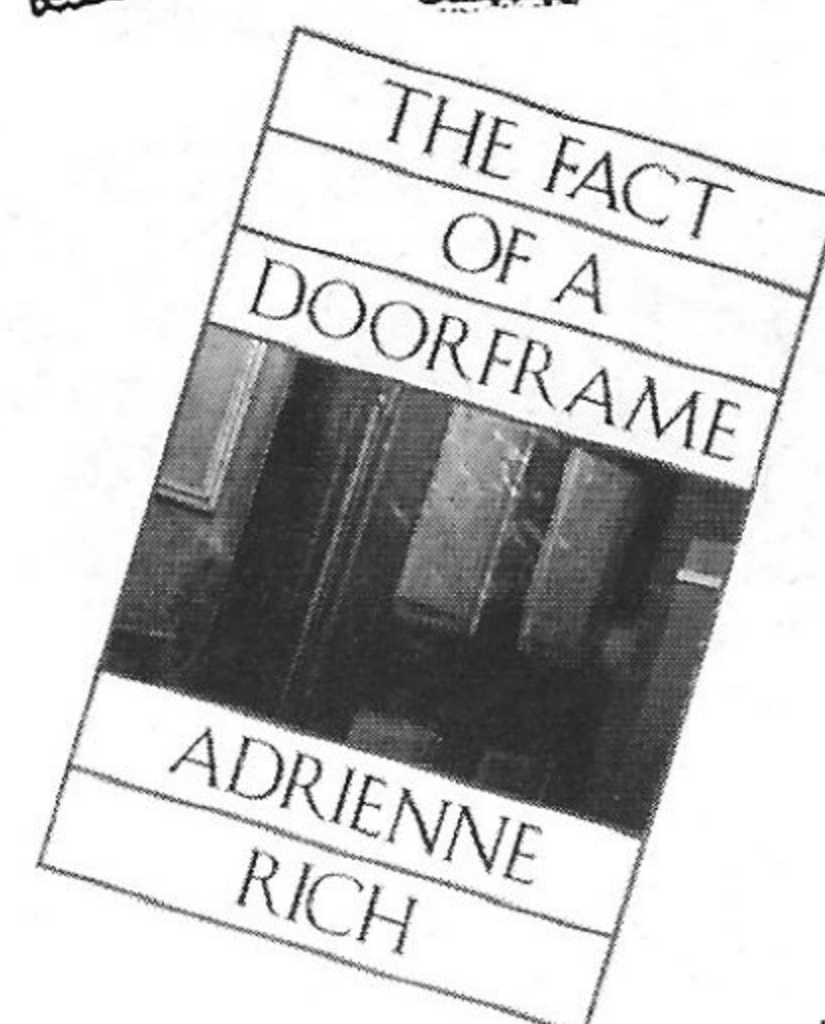

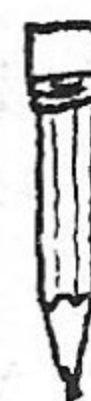

We have spent much time in English Lit dedicated to all important causes, such as - is Dylan's peroxide stripe a Freudian fetish to become a Spice Girl or is Ducas' refusal to brush out his curls after four and a half years of high school symbolic of his unwillingness to submit to society's marginalisation?

Text and Context terminology abounds.

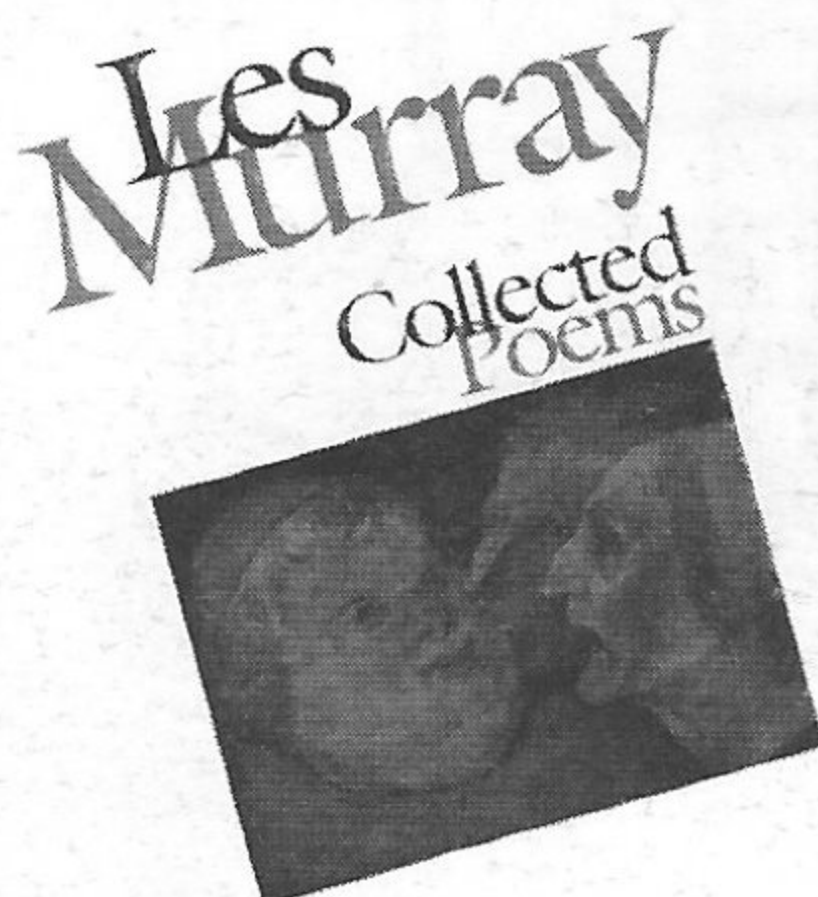

English Lit students have developed many skills over the past two years - Deanne's laughing ability, Sarah's constant harassment of Gibbsy, Joe's contact with the CIA, Anna's endless dedication in collecting tea and coffee from the other classroom, in which she discovers her favourite "Hobby" re-enactment of psycho-knife wielding Teenage Mutant Ninja Turtle villagers from "The Woman Warrior"

Alas, some of our plans have failed, including the foiled Sydney excursion for "Diving for Pearls" to most importantly, attempts by one class to poison the other class with chilli ridden Eagle Boys Pizza.

Finally, students were provided with the opportunity, apart from essays, exams and dreaded TEE to reflect their understanding of texts studied. From a tiger print number depicting Rich's Aunt Jennifer's Tigers to op shop madness symbolising the daginess of verge from "Diving for Pearls" the students represented in the course in a closing farewell, fancy dress breakfast.

TELEMATICS

Two students, Madeleine Gaynor and I, Jane Baxter of Year 8 are currently being taught English and Social Studies via Telematics. We sat for a test which took place at Bunbury Tower at the end of Year 7 and fortunately our scores gained us entry into the Humanities program.

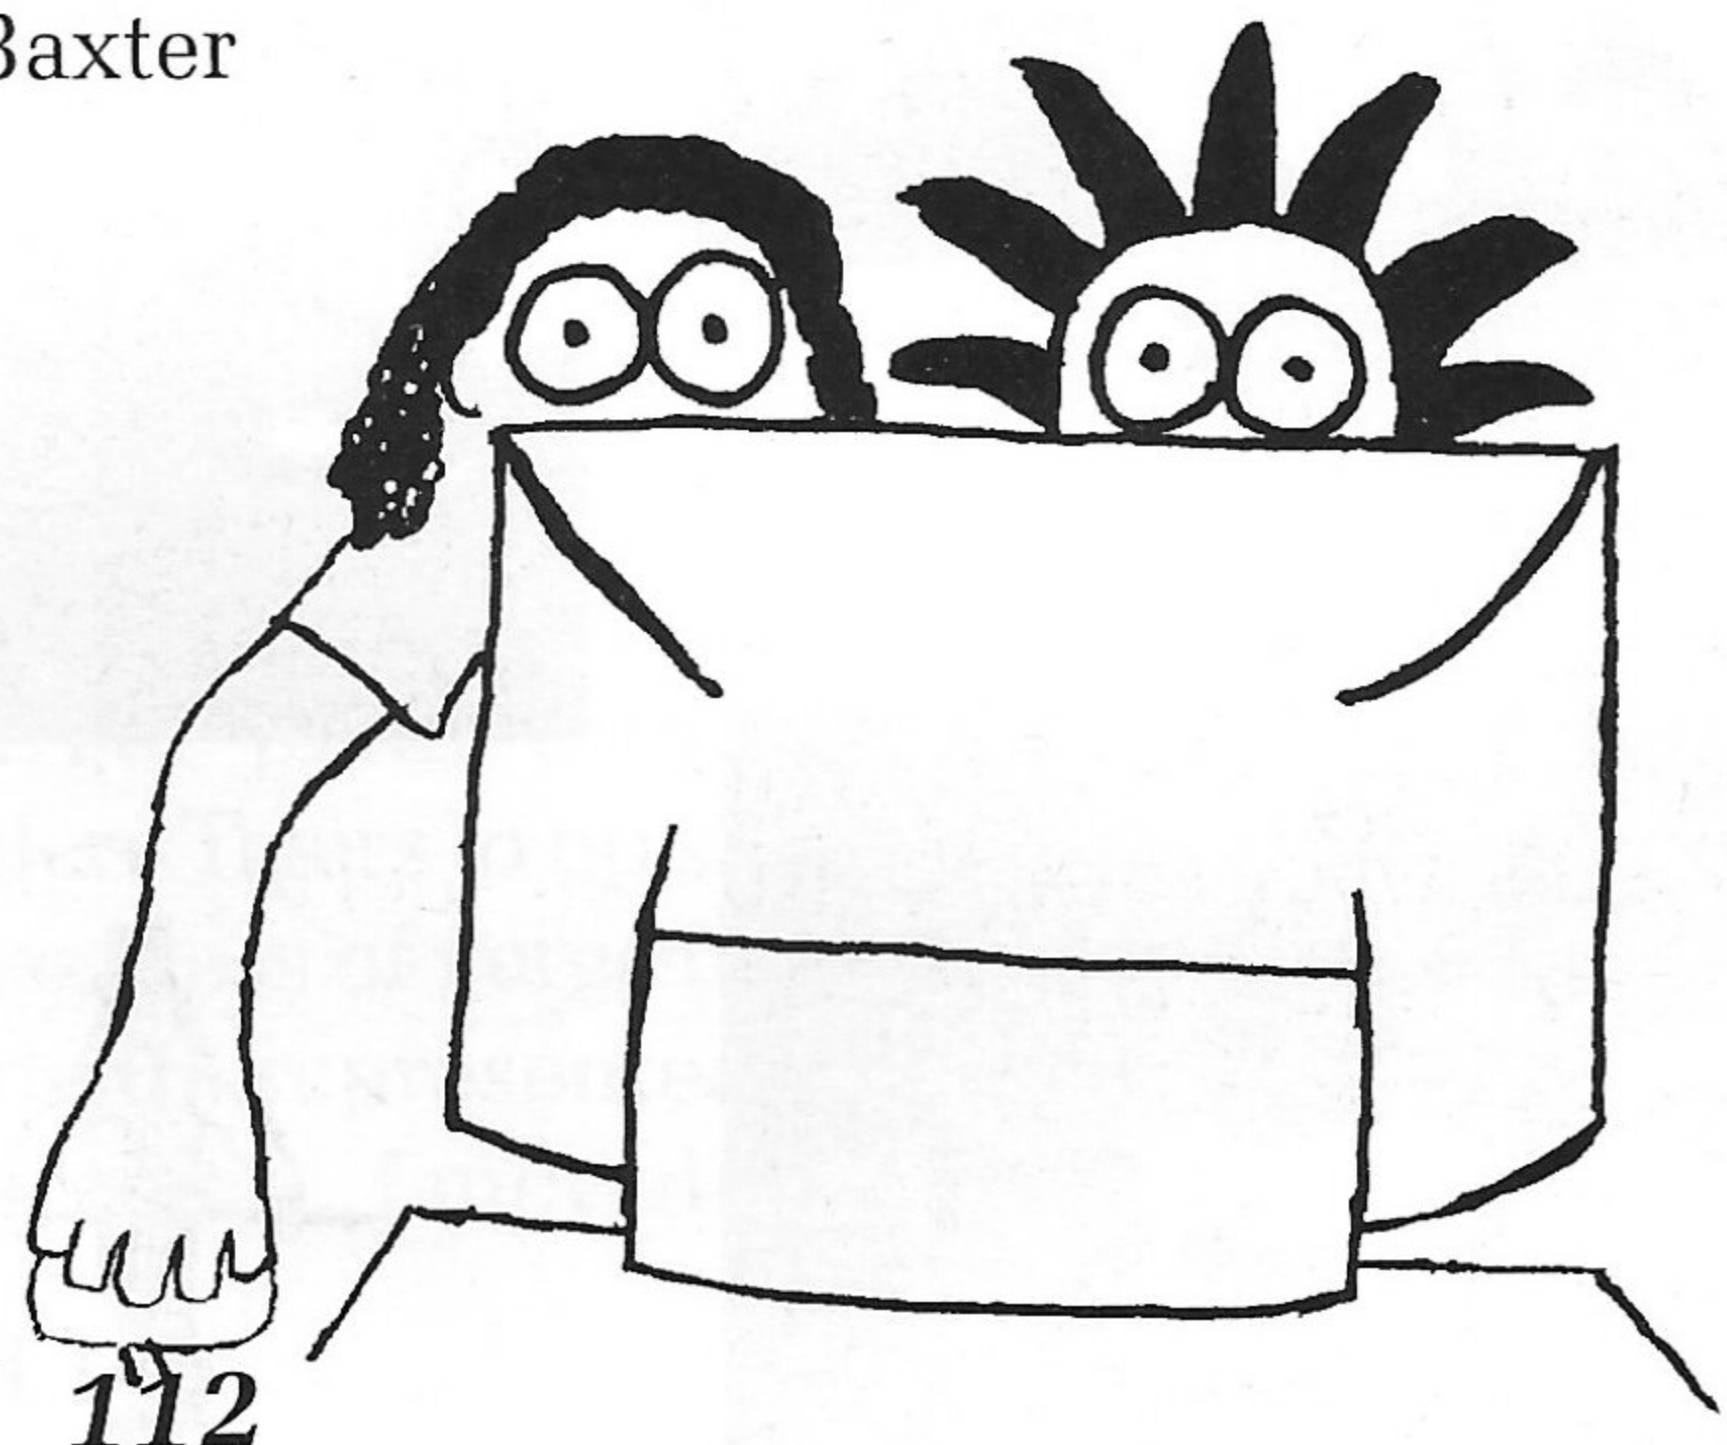

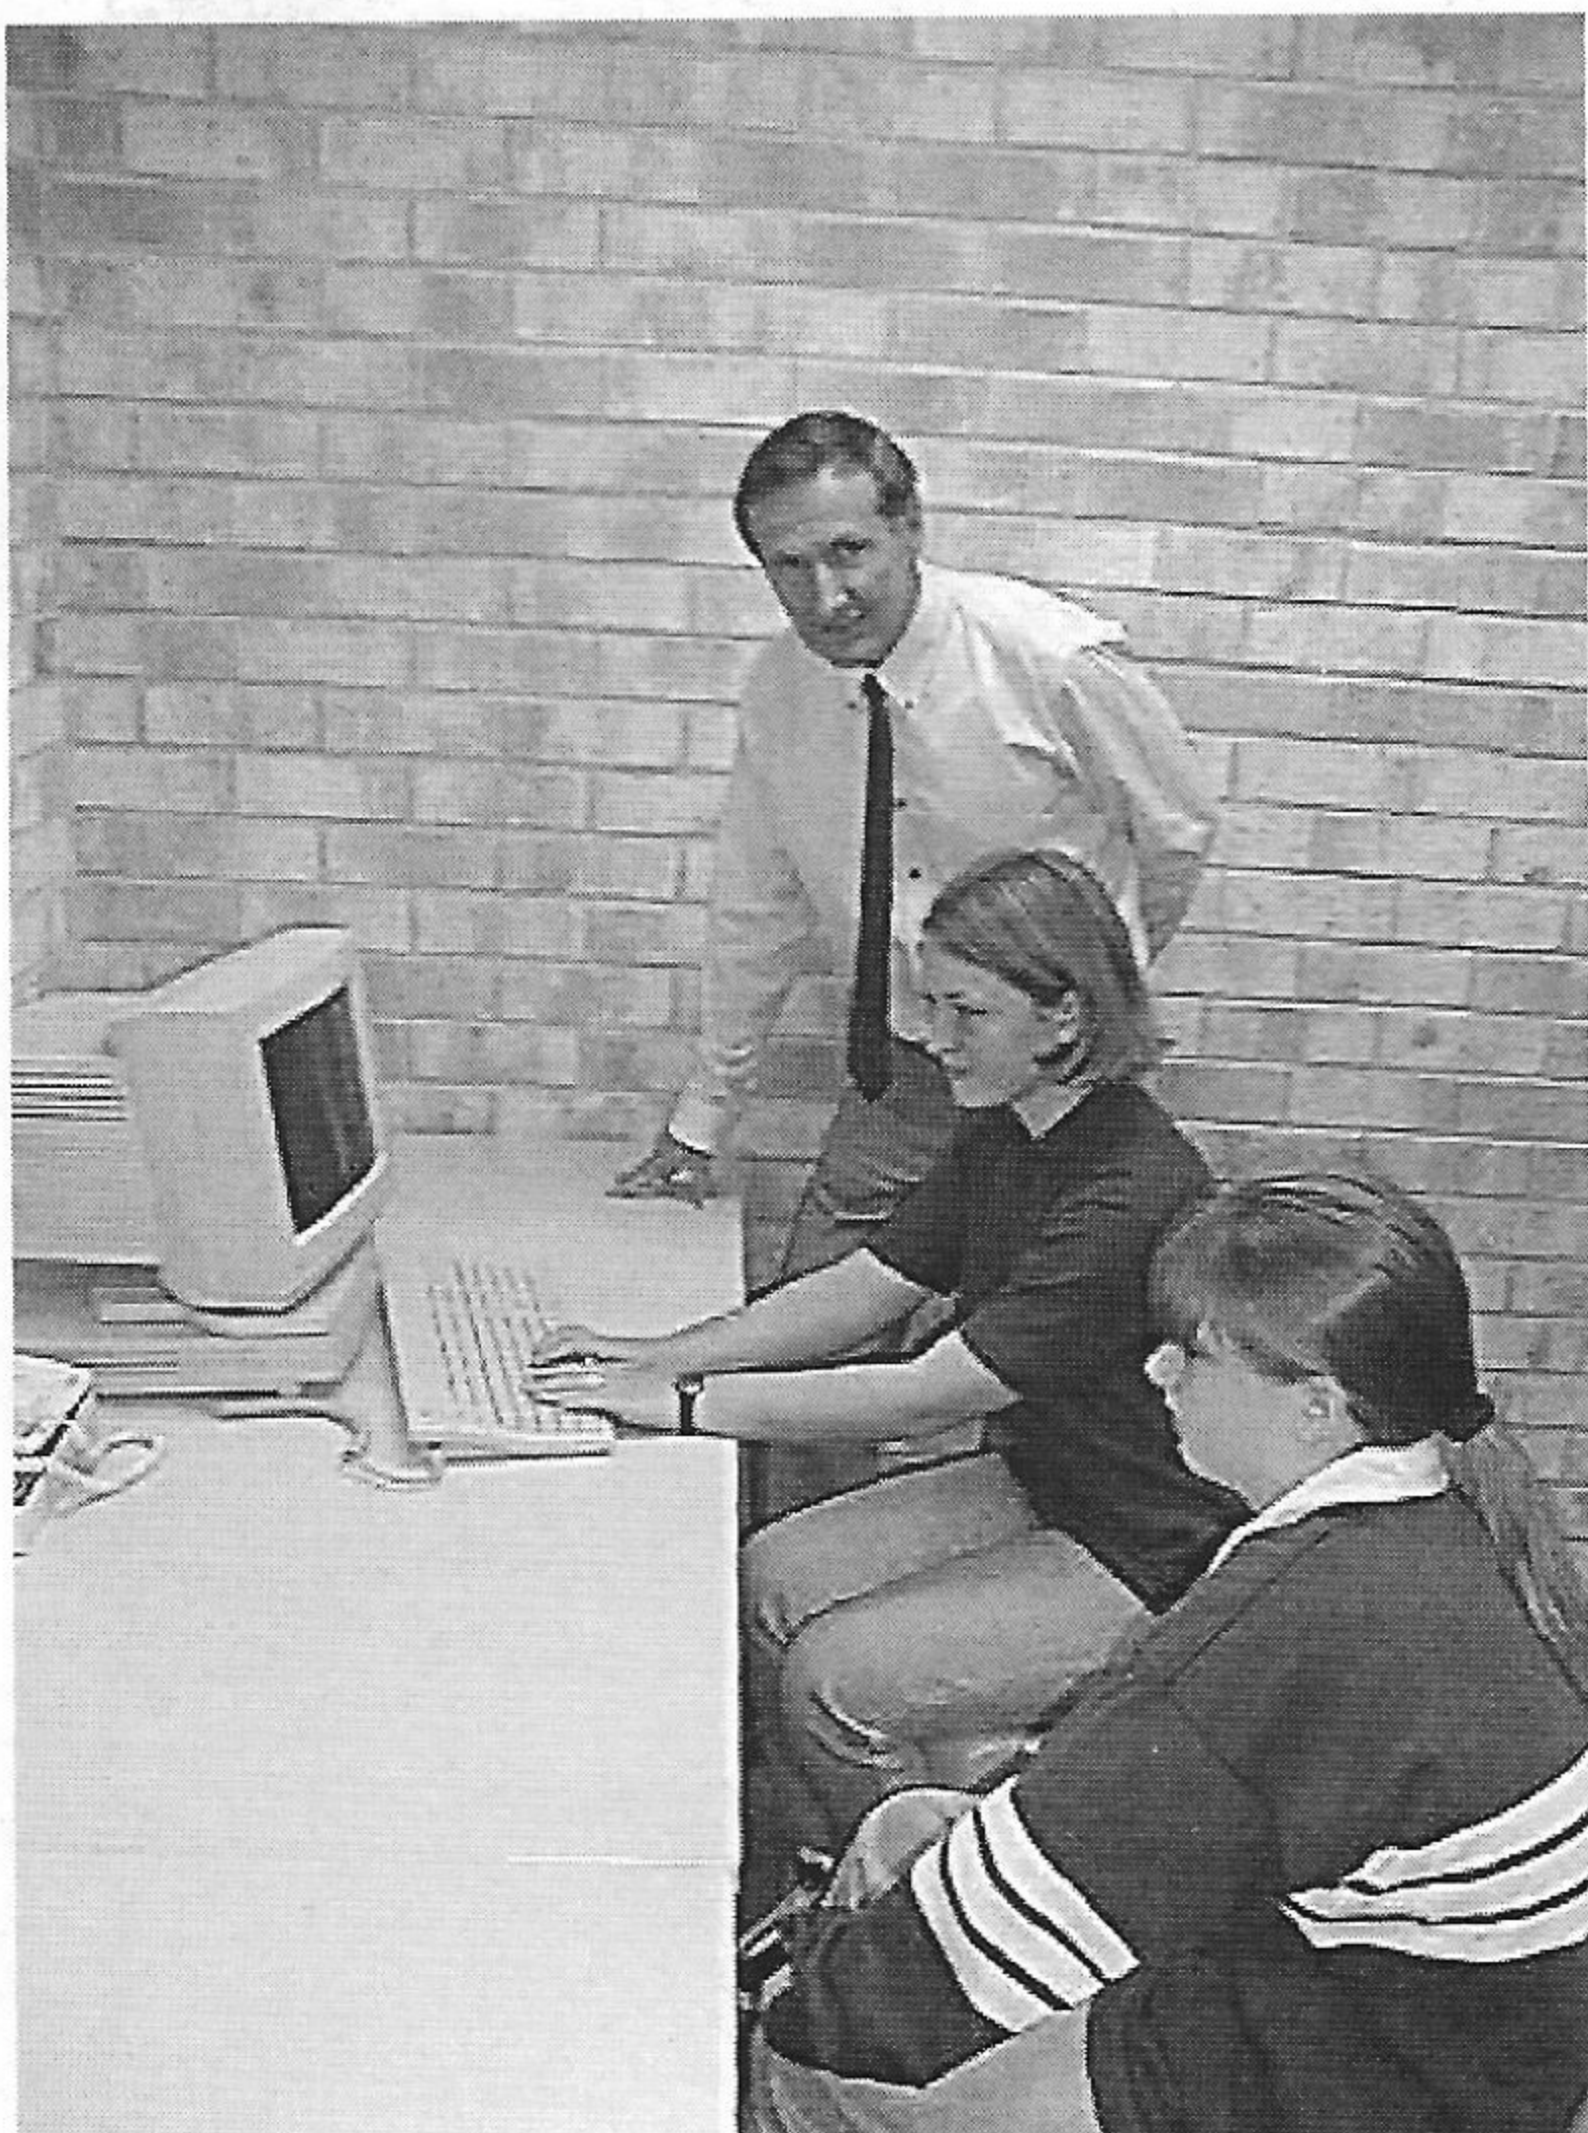

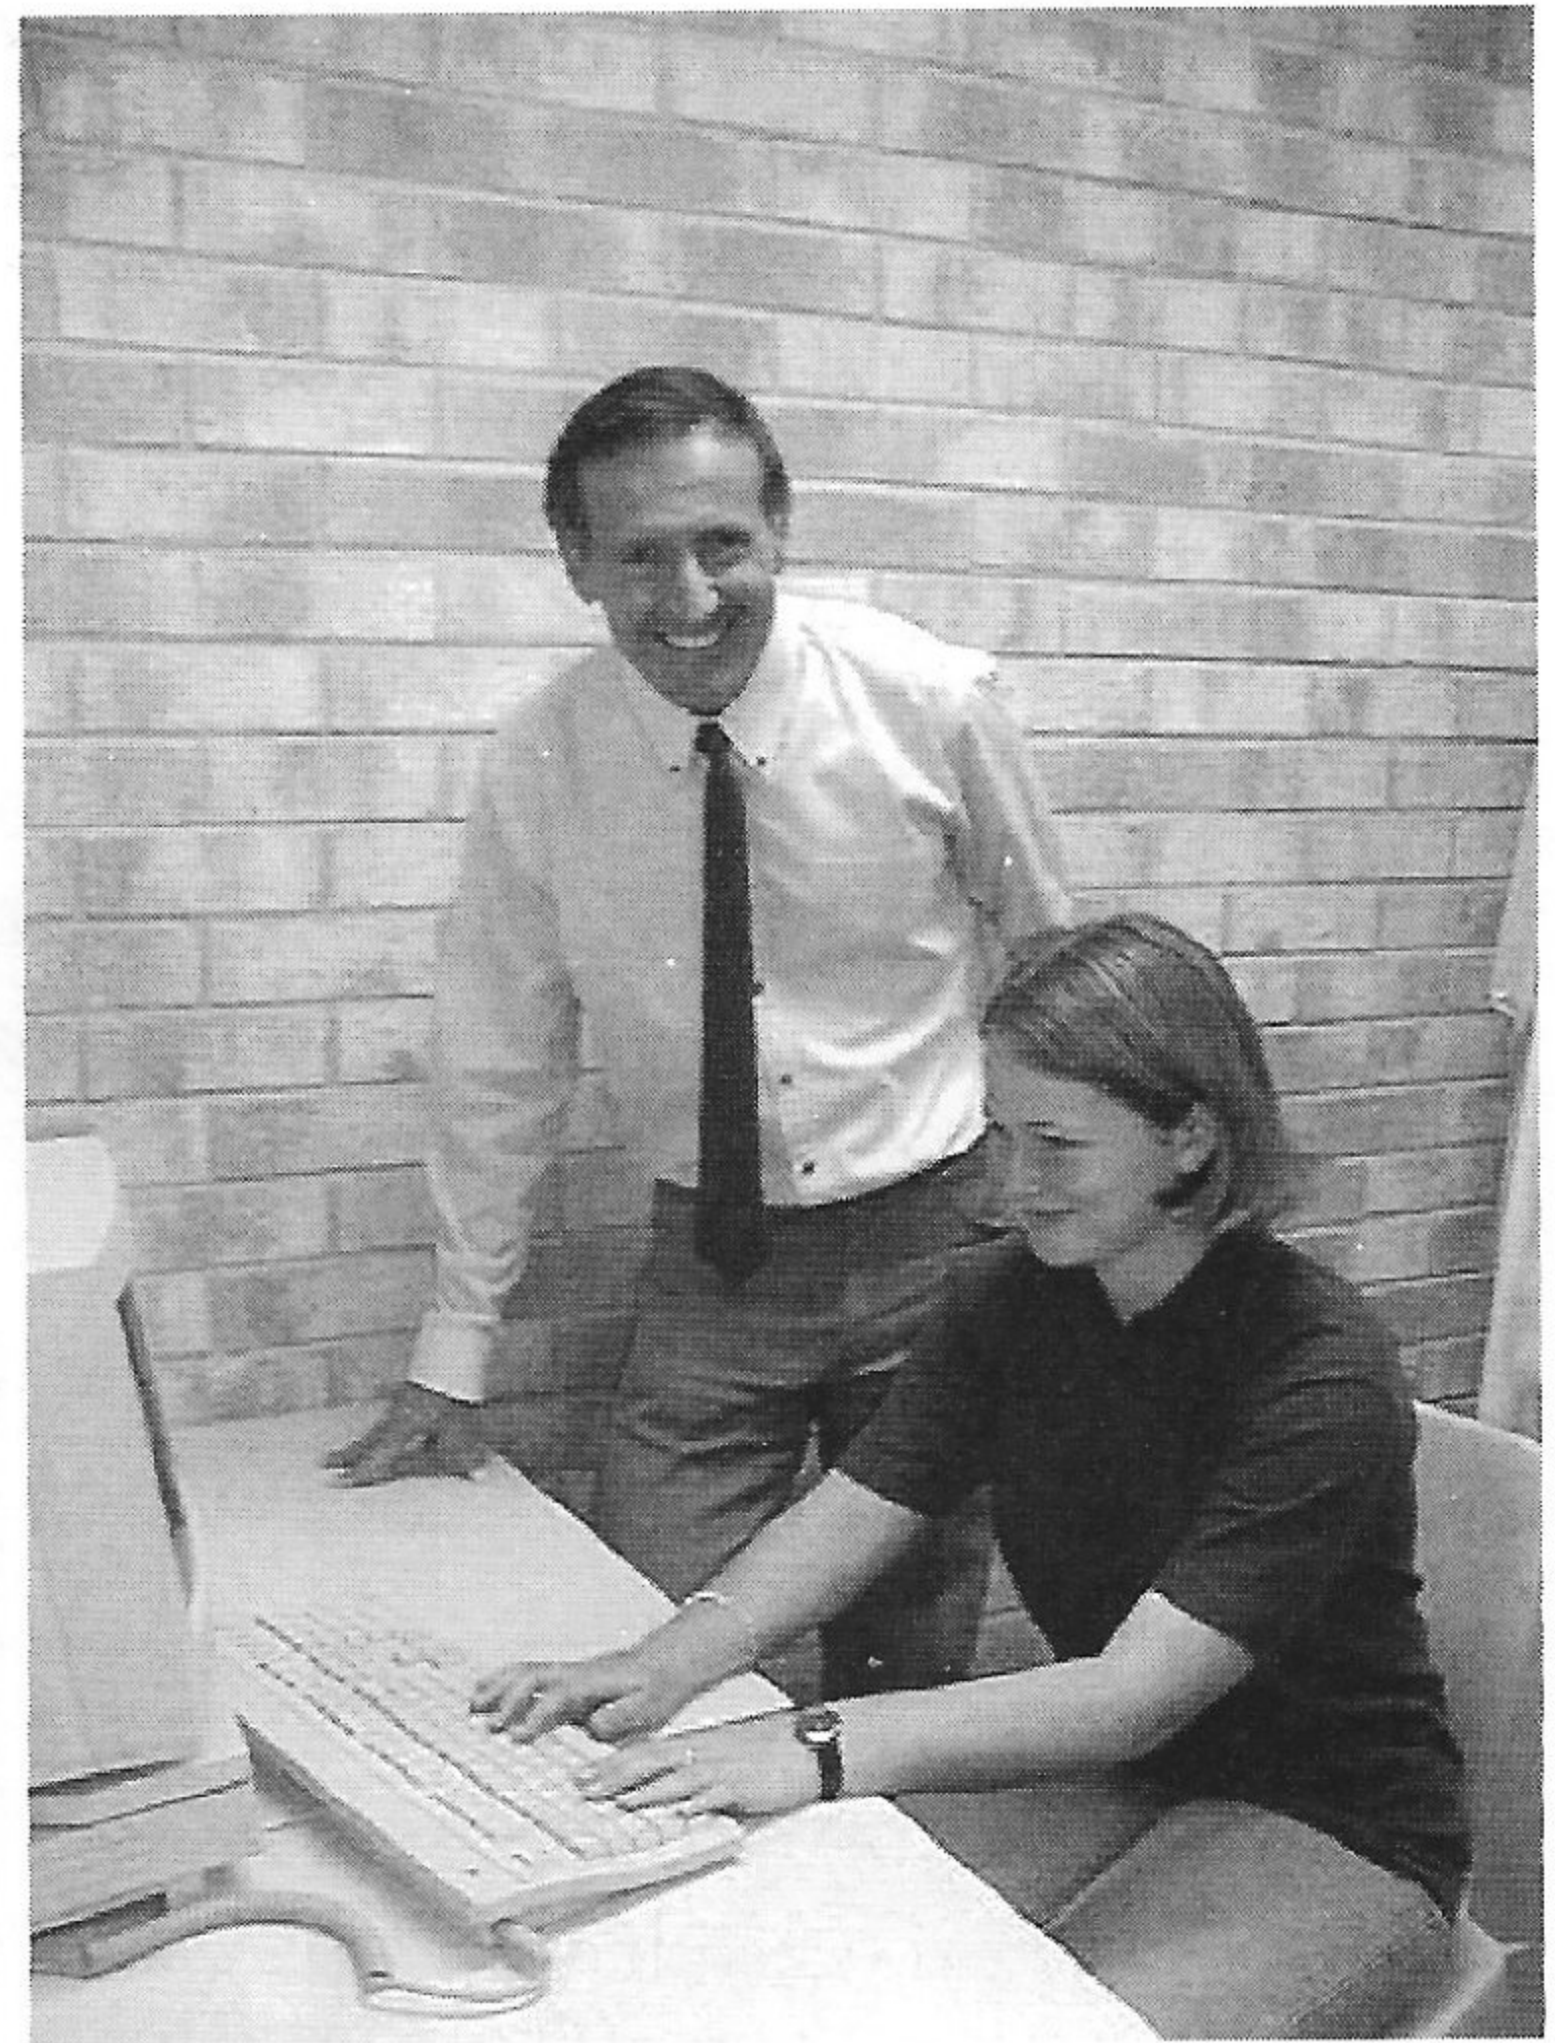

Our teachers are based at Kelmscott Senior High in Perth and the two other schools that have lessons the same time as we do are Manjimup (Trevor and Gary) and Mount Barker (Benji). Our lessons are conducted by telephone and computer link up with Kelmscott.

At the beginning of this year, Madeleine and I went to Perth to the SIDE's (School of Isolated and Distant Education, situated in Leederville) boarding house to attend to Telematics Camp. Students of Telematics came from all over WA, Broome, Albany, Mount Barker, Manjimup, Carnamah and Boddington. Madeleine and I were the first to arrive. Our "house mother" and SIDE teacher, Mrs Murray, greeted us and took us to our rooms. They were THE coolest boarding rooms we'd ever seen. Each house, named after places of outback Australia, contained a kitchen (complete with everything), lounge with a TV, nicely furnished bedrooms and bathrooms. There were 18 students. Madeleine and I shared a unit with four other girls and Mrs. Murray.

Over the next three sweltering hot days, we all visited many places in Perth. We had to walk in temperatures of 35 degrees plus to the Fremantle Prison, Maritime Museum, Perth Art Gallery and the Perth Museum which was displaying treasures from Ancient Egypt. We planned and shopped for our own meals. We played "ice breakers" brain testing games and talked to Year 4's in California by teleconferencing which was very interesting. Many friends were made on Telematics camp.

Madeleine and I are really enjoying Telematics and we'd like to thank Mr. L. Hill and Mr. I. Baxter for getting this up and running, despite a few early hitches.

My story came spitting out the Education Department's fax machine twelve hours after the deadline. Considering I'd got the entry form two hours after deadline, that's not too bad.

I knew nothing about the competition; I just had a vague notion it was something big. And come September, I was a finalist in the Quest For Excellence Awards. It's quite prestigious... run by the Education Department, sponsored by the Department of Minerals and Energy. It was a flash presentation ceremony at the Sheraton Grand River Ball Room and I had to wear a tie. My English teachers from year 8 and year 12, Mr Nilsson and Ms Gatter, were there to see me... lose. Outgunned by a guy from John Curtin High School. So I missed out on the prize of a three day mining seminar to Kalgoorlie. I kid you not. I did get a nice certificate and a huge book on literature.

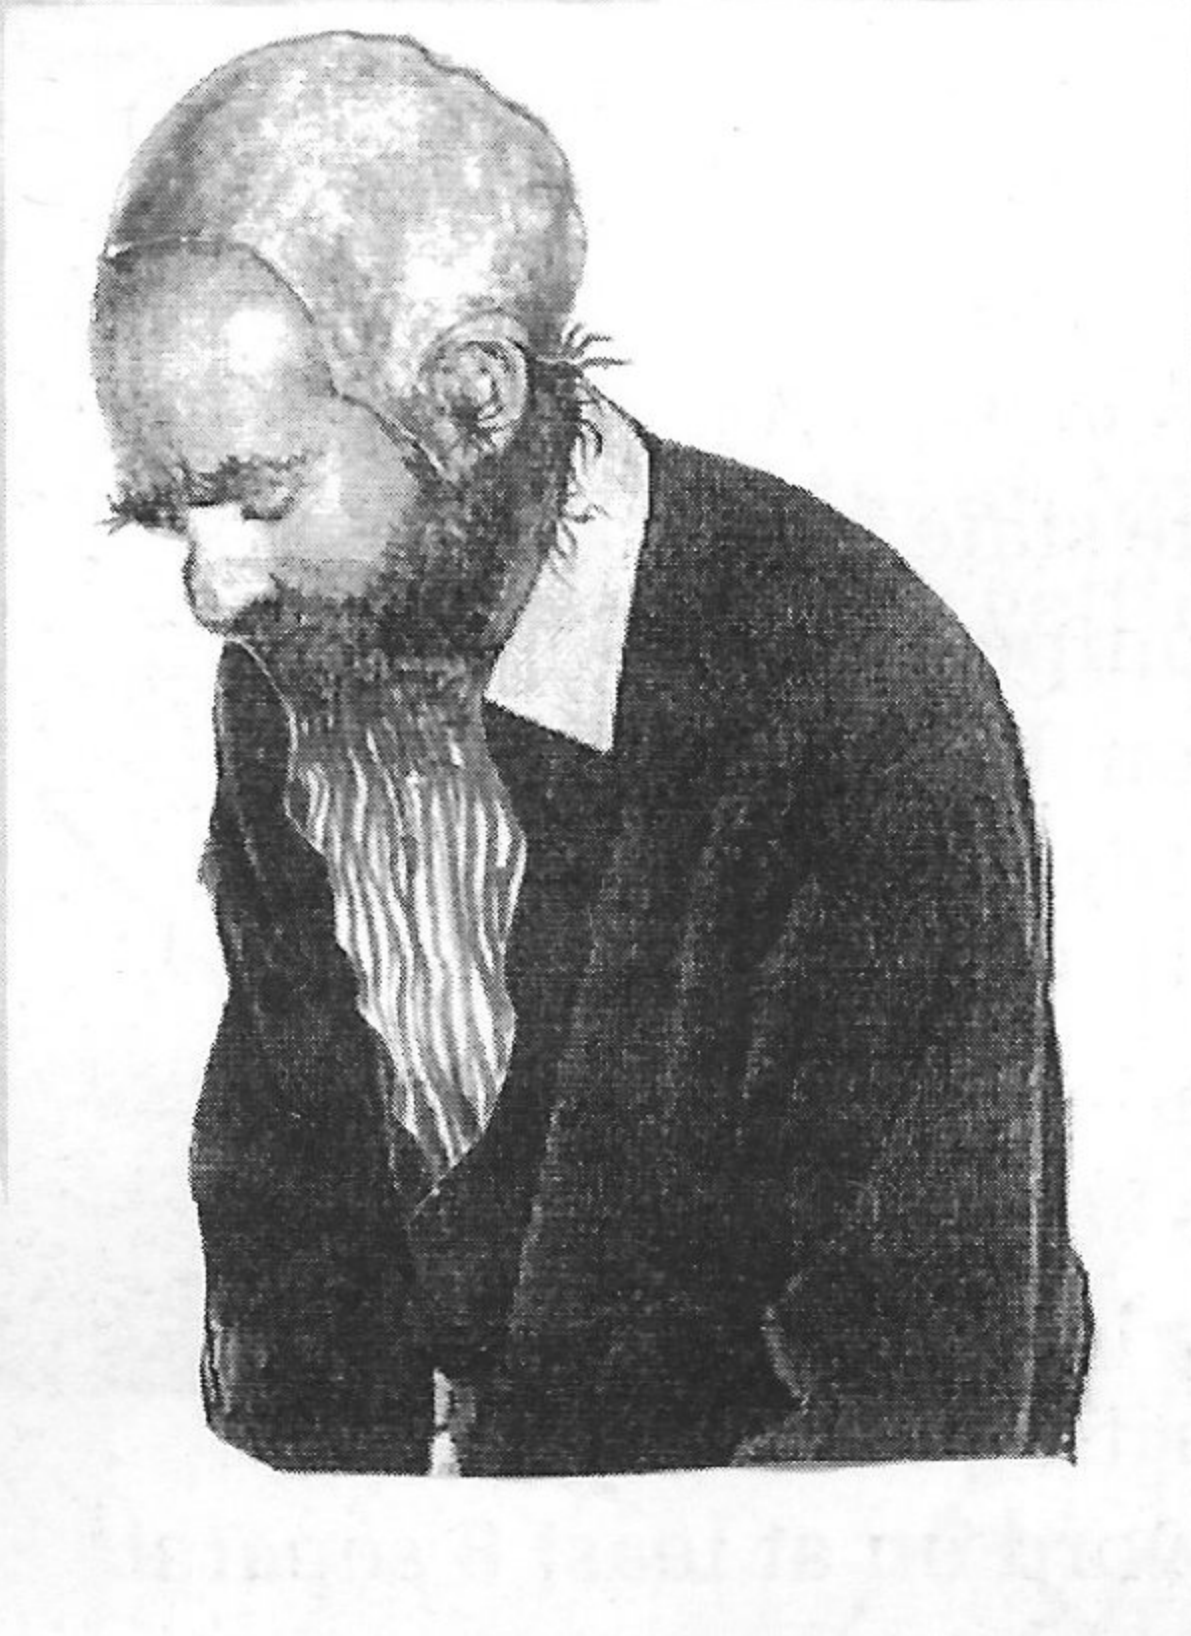

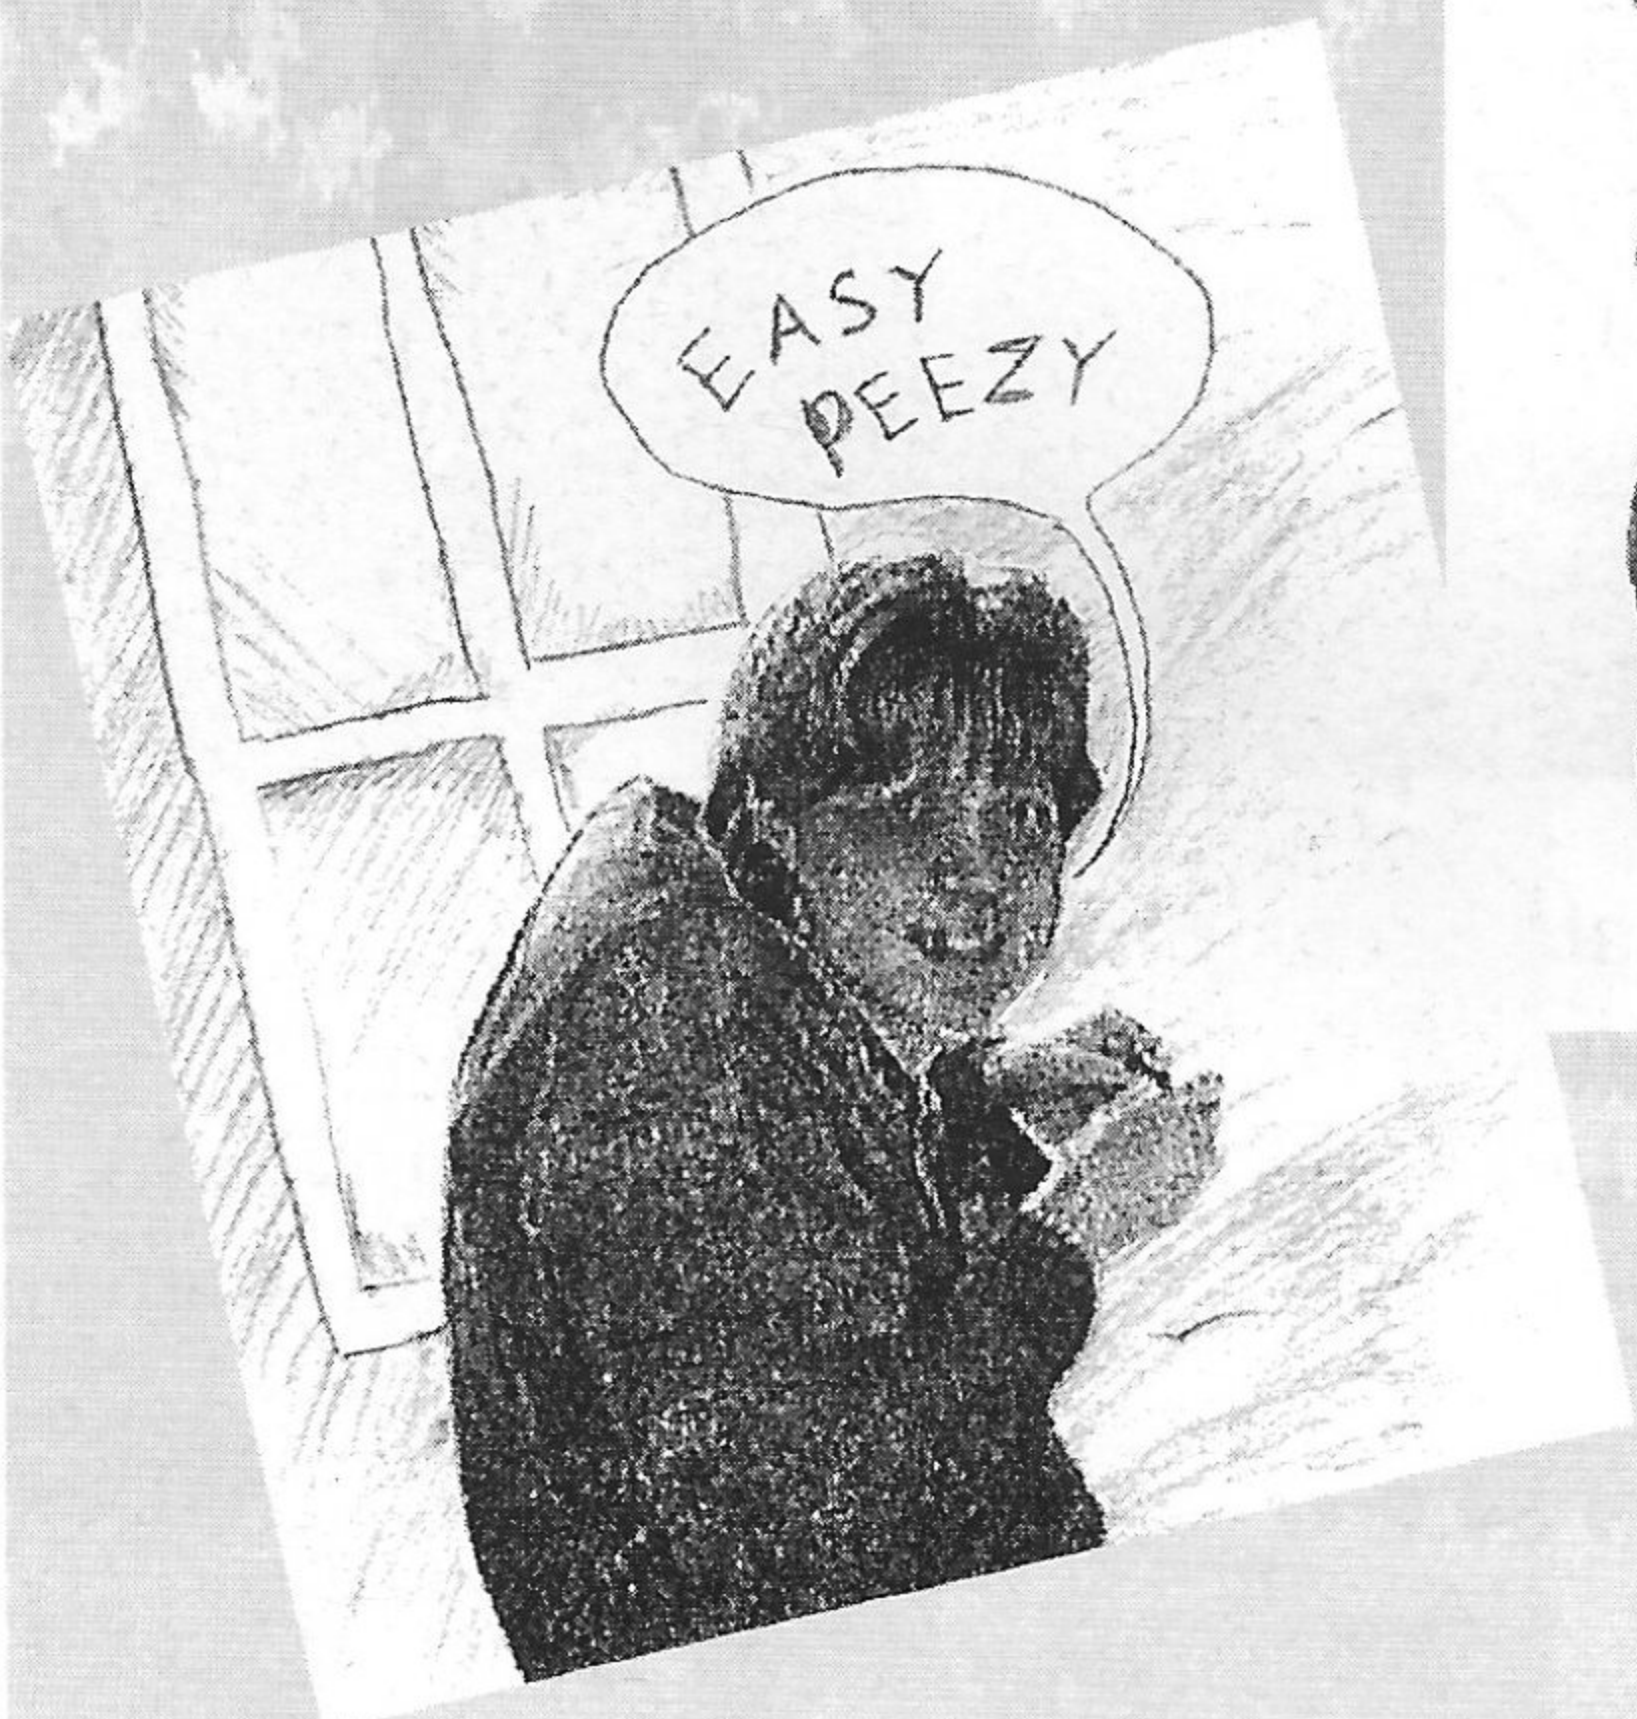

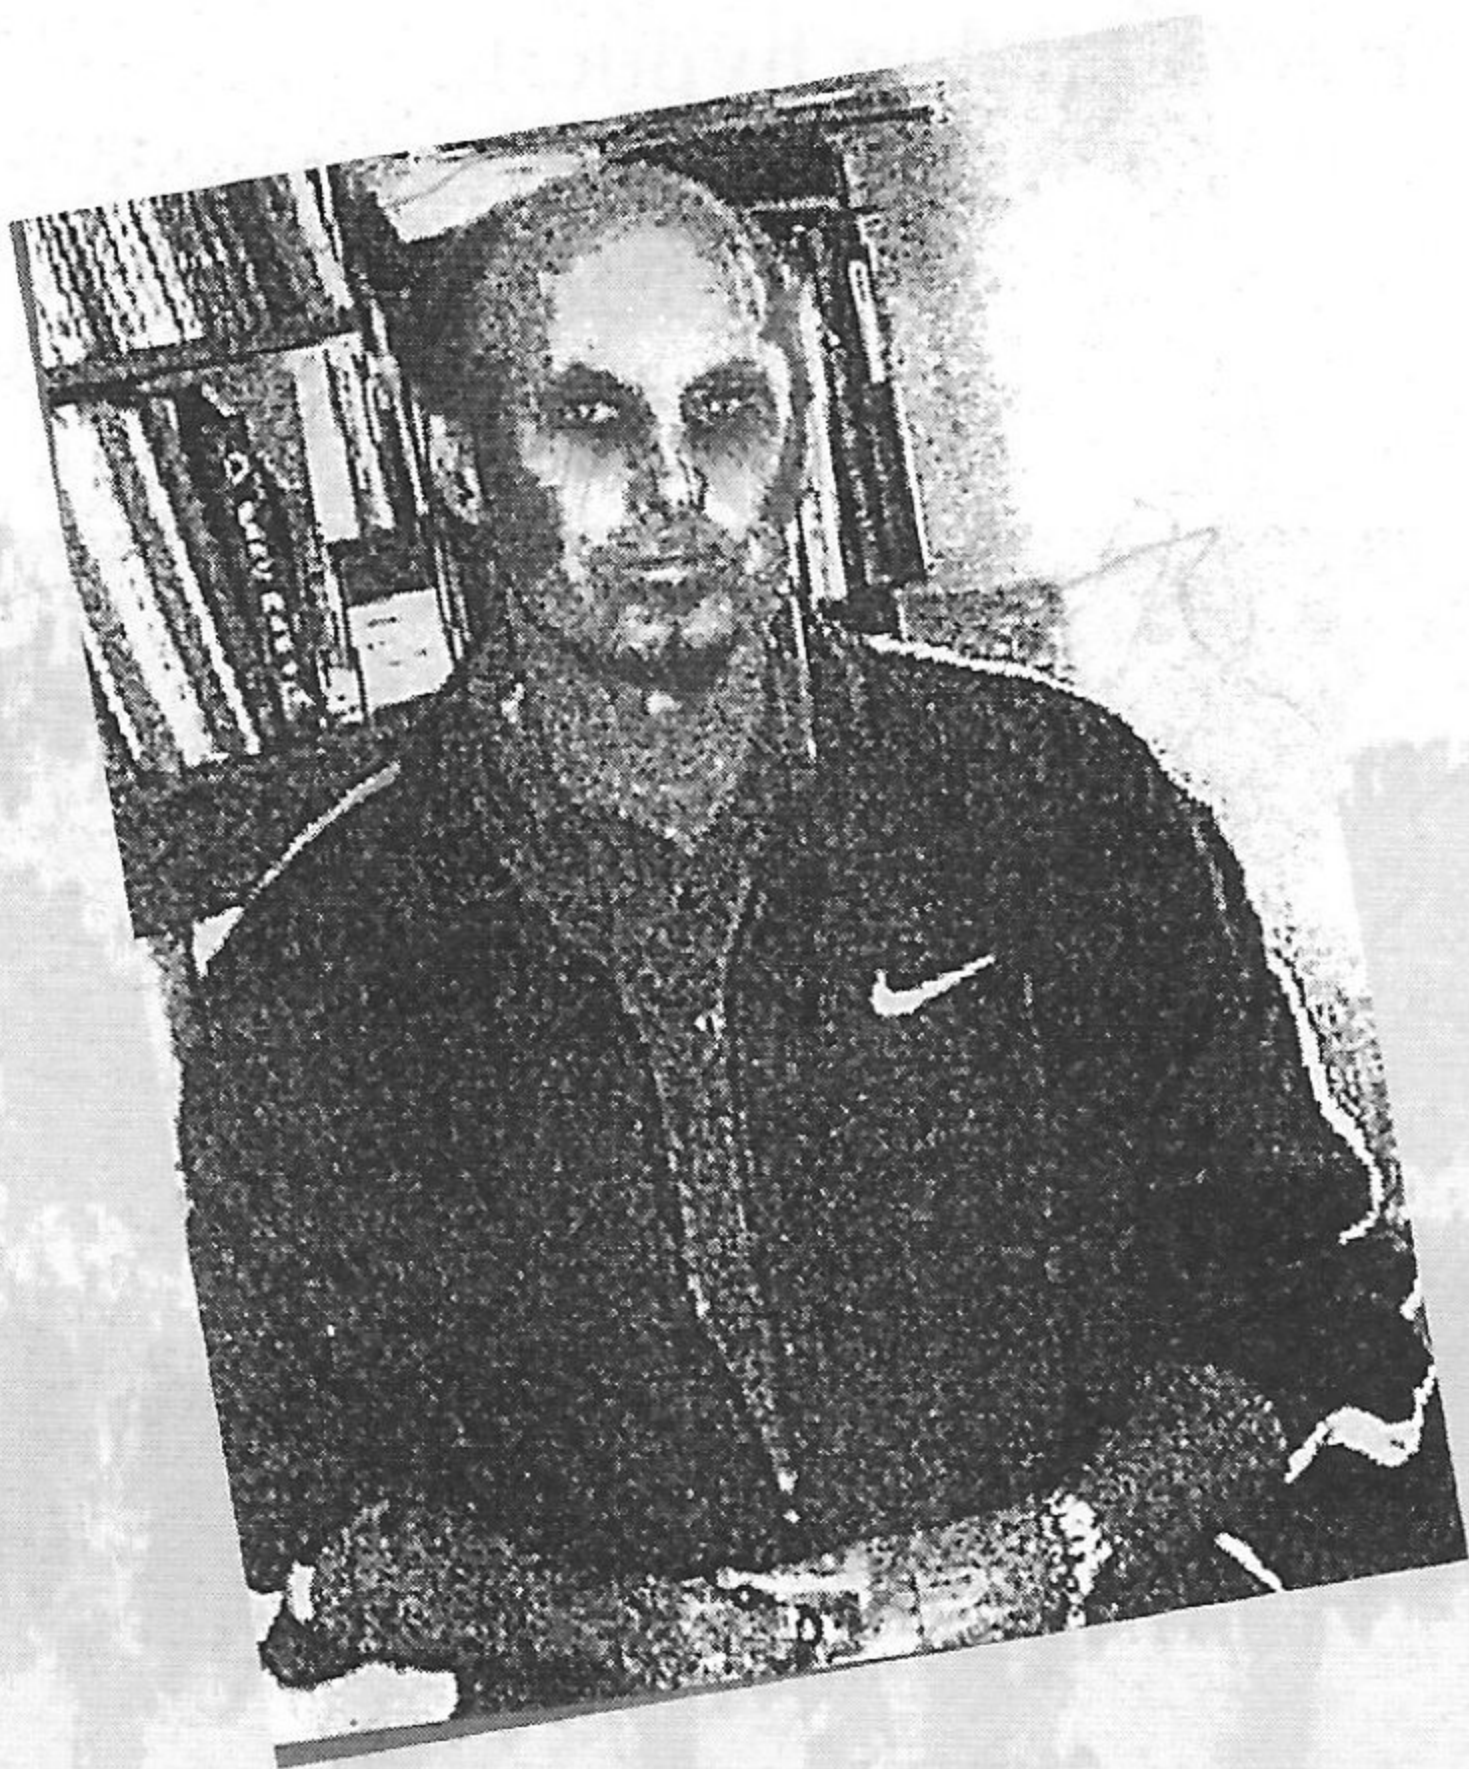

The story was "The Souring". It's an existential work about the Kierkegaard Experiment in which resurrected war veterans are programmed into passionately believing weird religions to save them from despair... for Julian, it ends in irreconcilable hypocrisy. It explores the concept of subjective truth - is it best to believe some thing, any thing, if it can save you from despair, even if it's not true? It's also about apples, but I won't go into that side of it. It contains medium level violence and I'm surprised it hasn't yet been removed from the library.

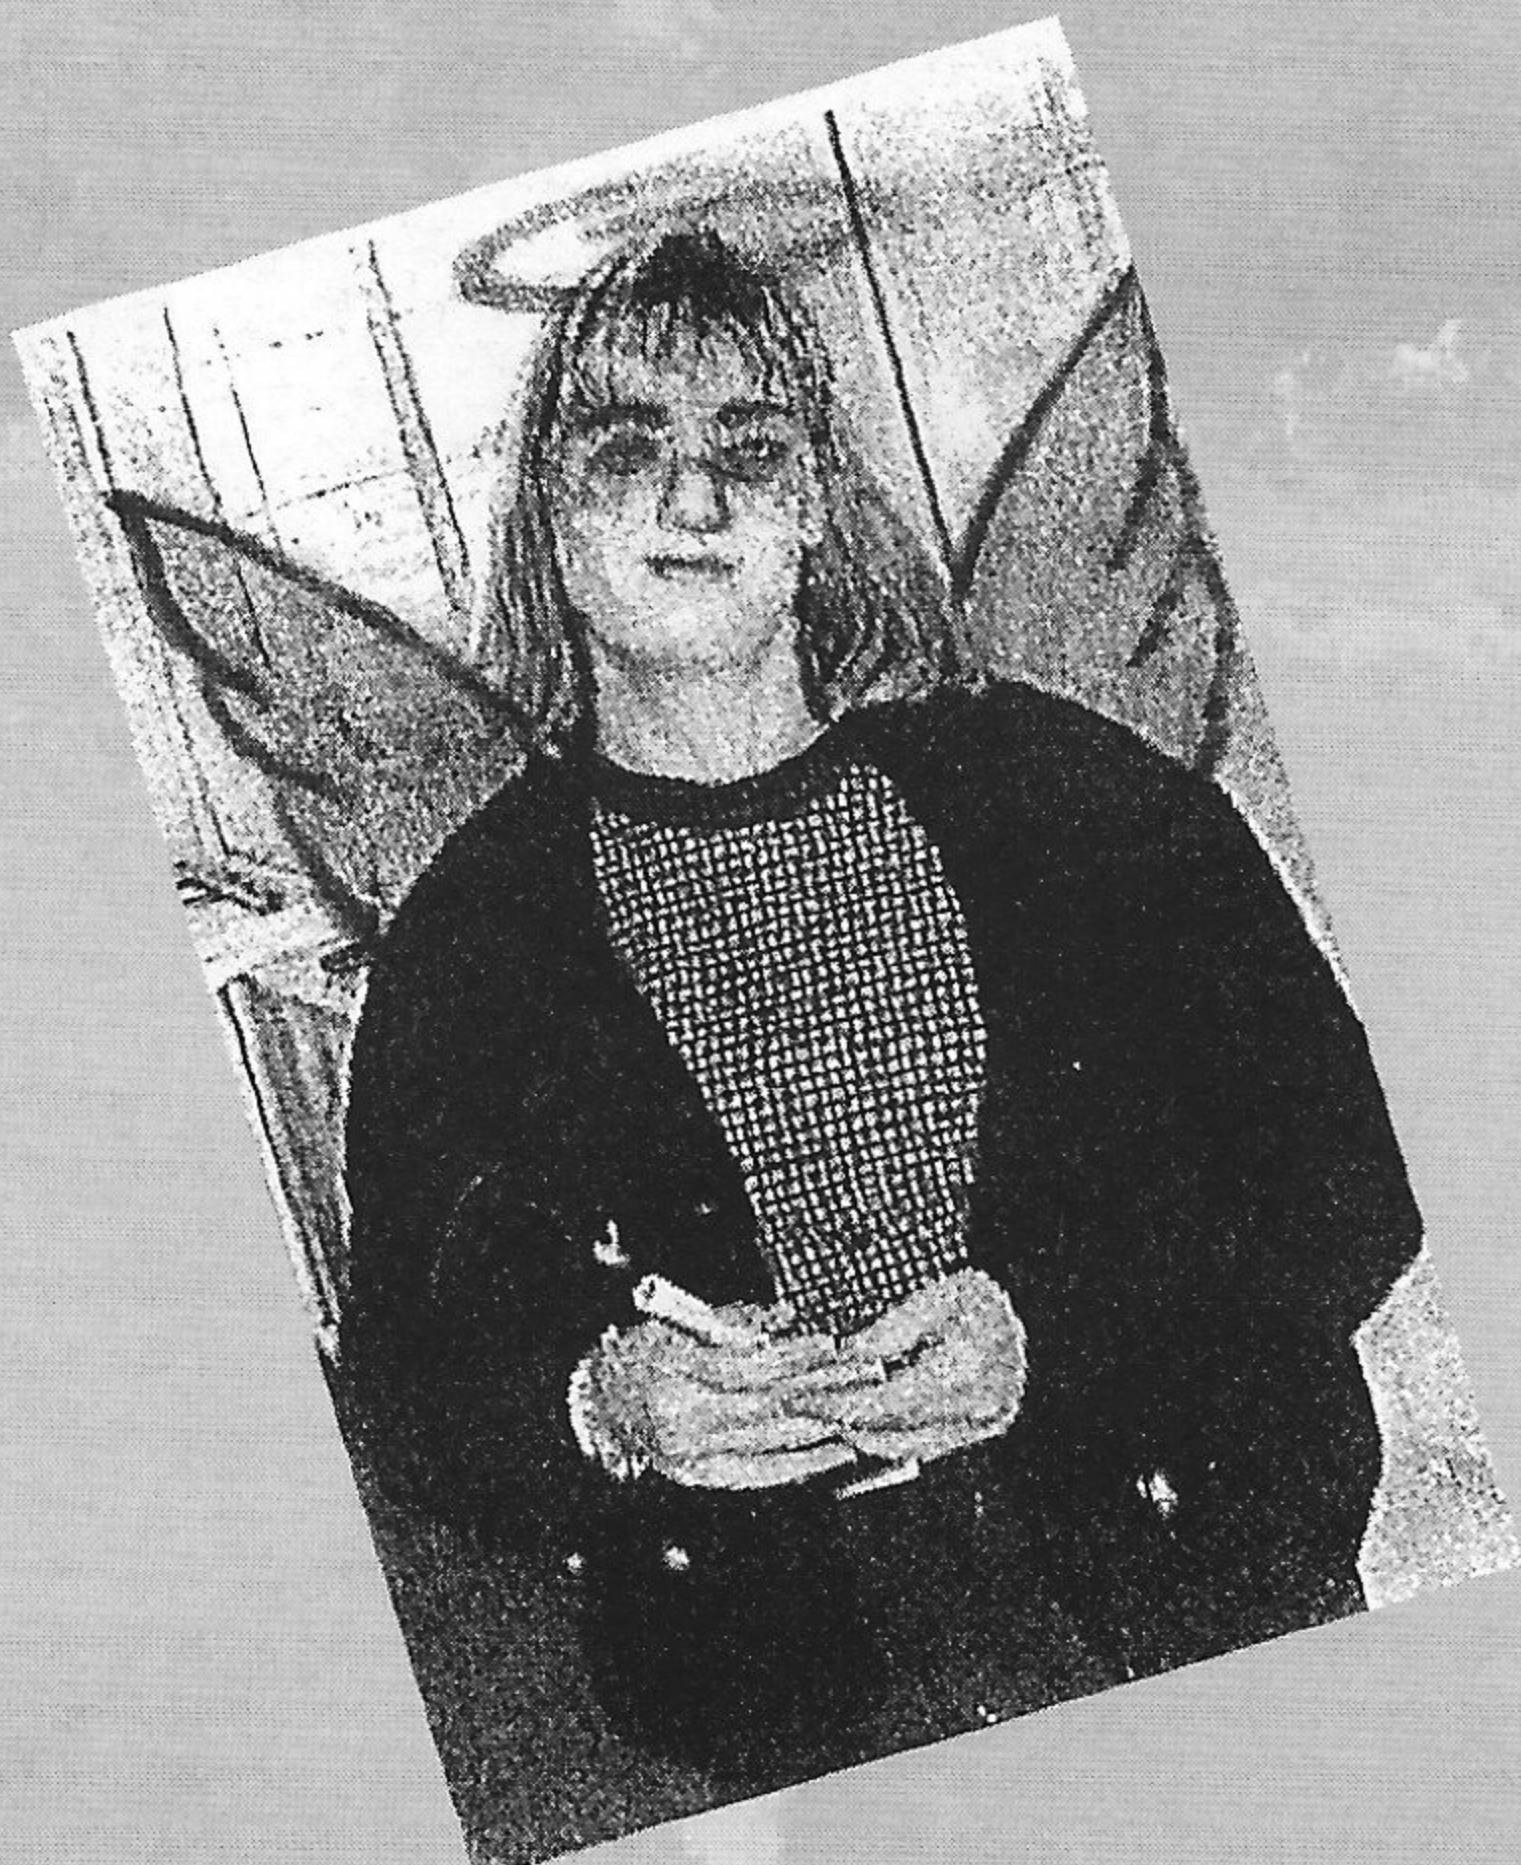

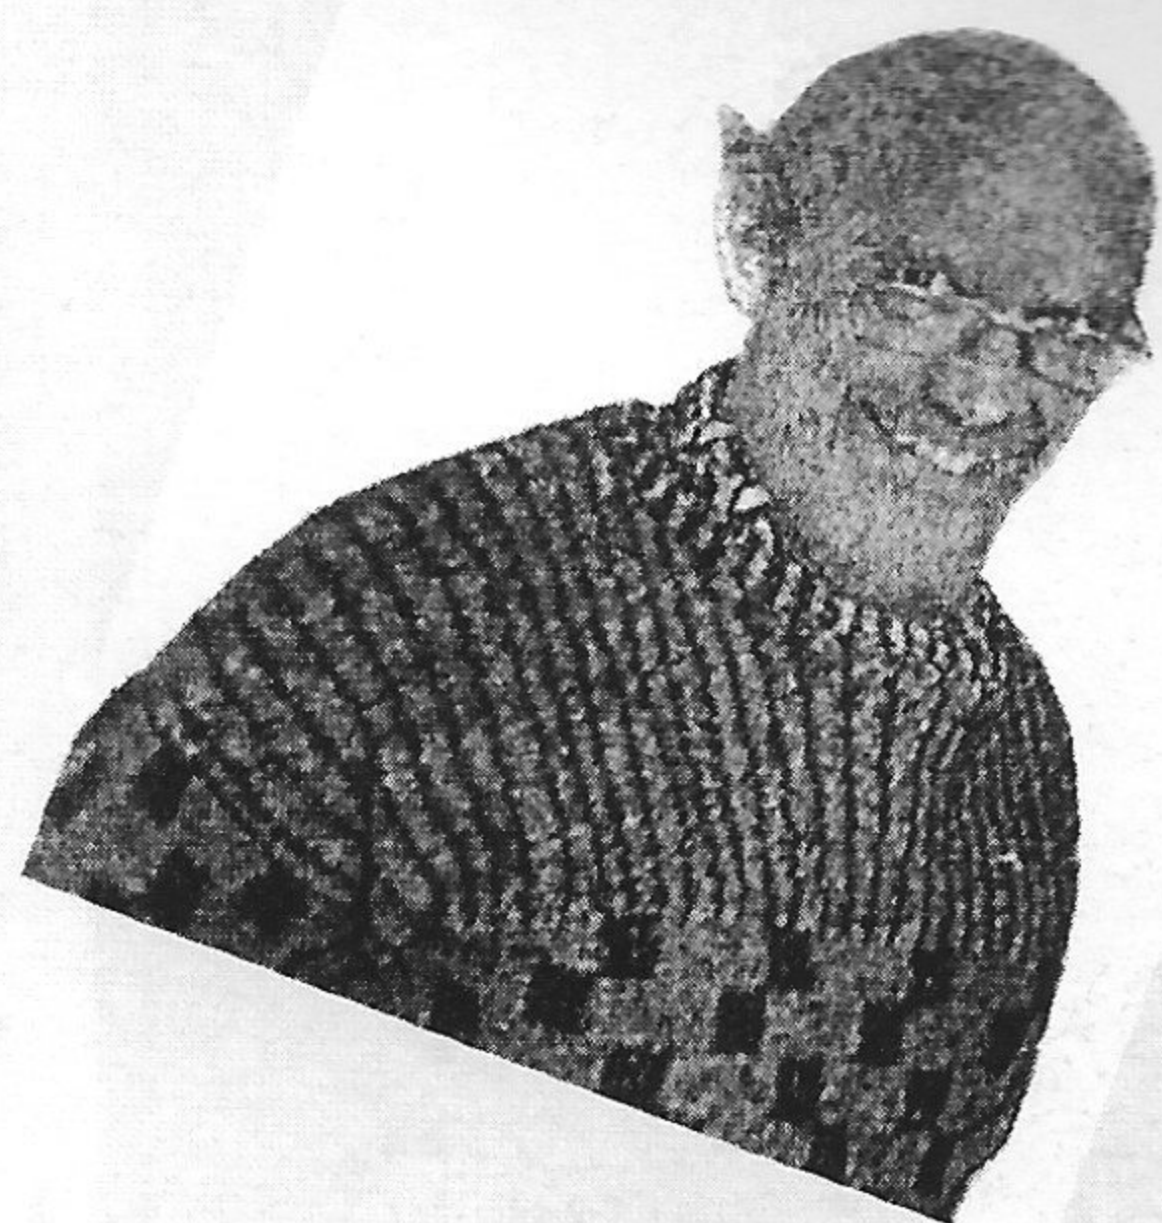

1998 also saw the first time I was accepted for publication in an international science fiction magazine - Altair. "Strands Of Self" is set to be published in February 1999, alongside such luminaries as Sir Arthur C. Clarke (2001: A Space Odyssey), Joe Haldeman and other brilliant SF writers you haven't heard of. My other publications in 1998 - two stories and a poem in Brillig (the national students' literary magazine) and a story in Under Magellanic Clouds (a SF journal), as well as a poem in Studio. The flip side: approximately sixteen rejects. As far as competitions went - I won the state Jean and Rawson Lang Short Story Competition, the Griffin Literary Awards (Open Fiction) and pulled off first, second and third places in the Mandruah Arts Council Writers' Competition. I also kept Australia Post in business, printed out 1347 pages of stories, spent 548 hours in front of the computer screen and told myself I hated writing and I was never going to type another word on at least 8 separate occasions.

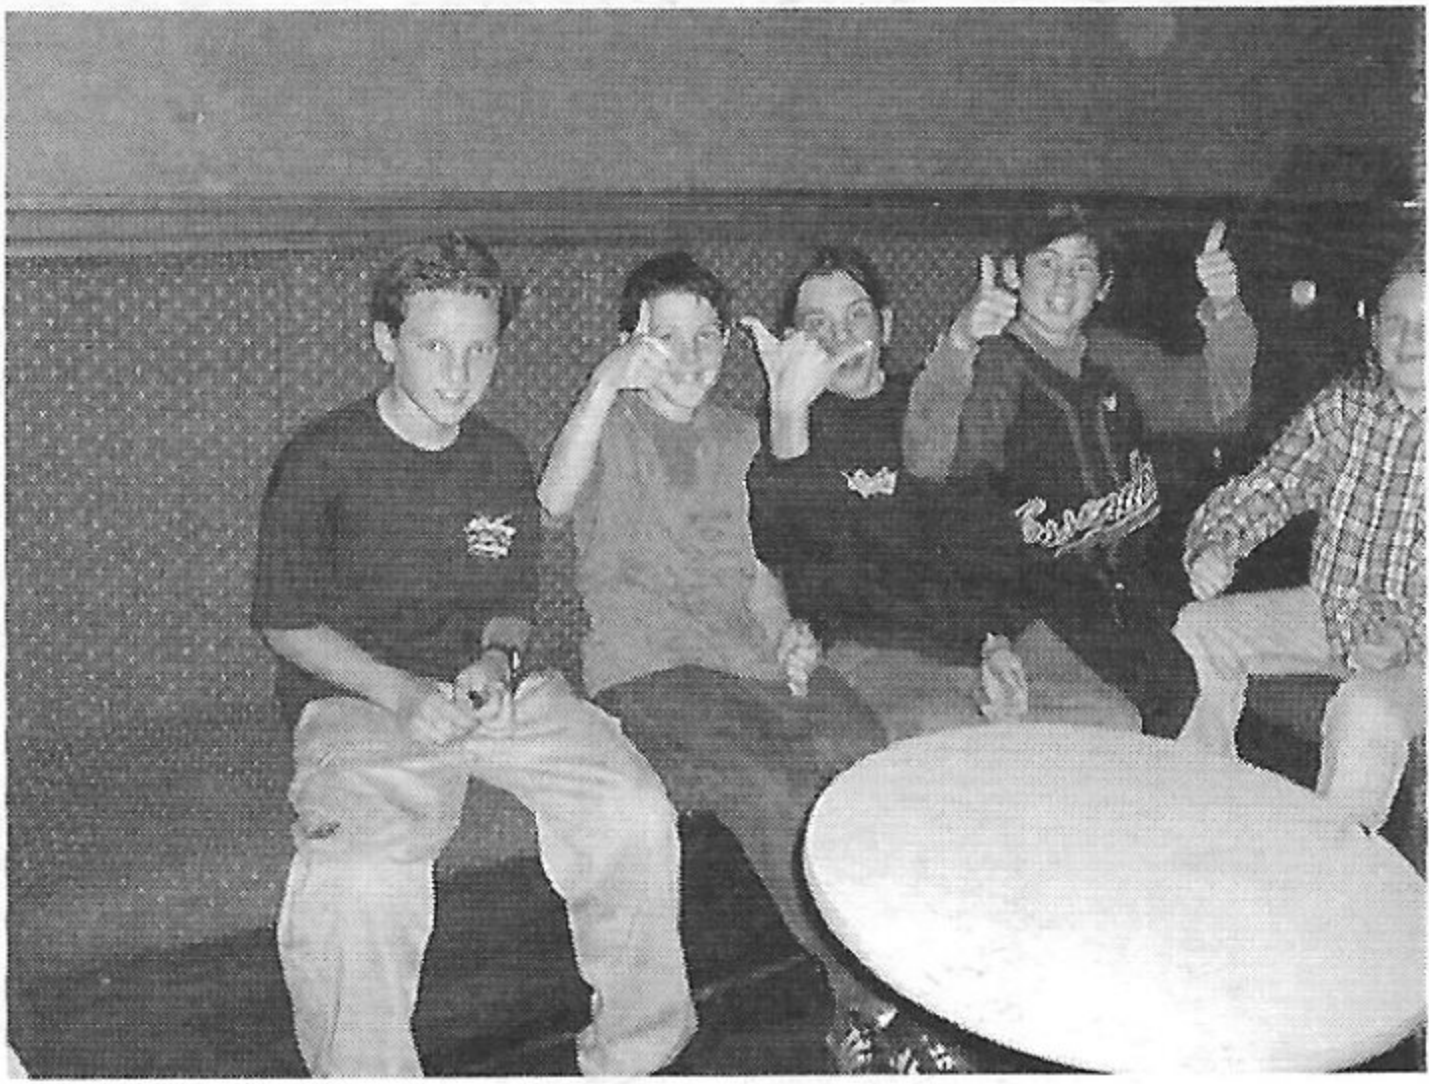

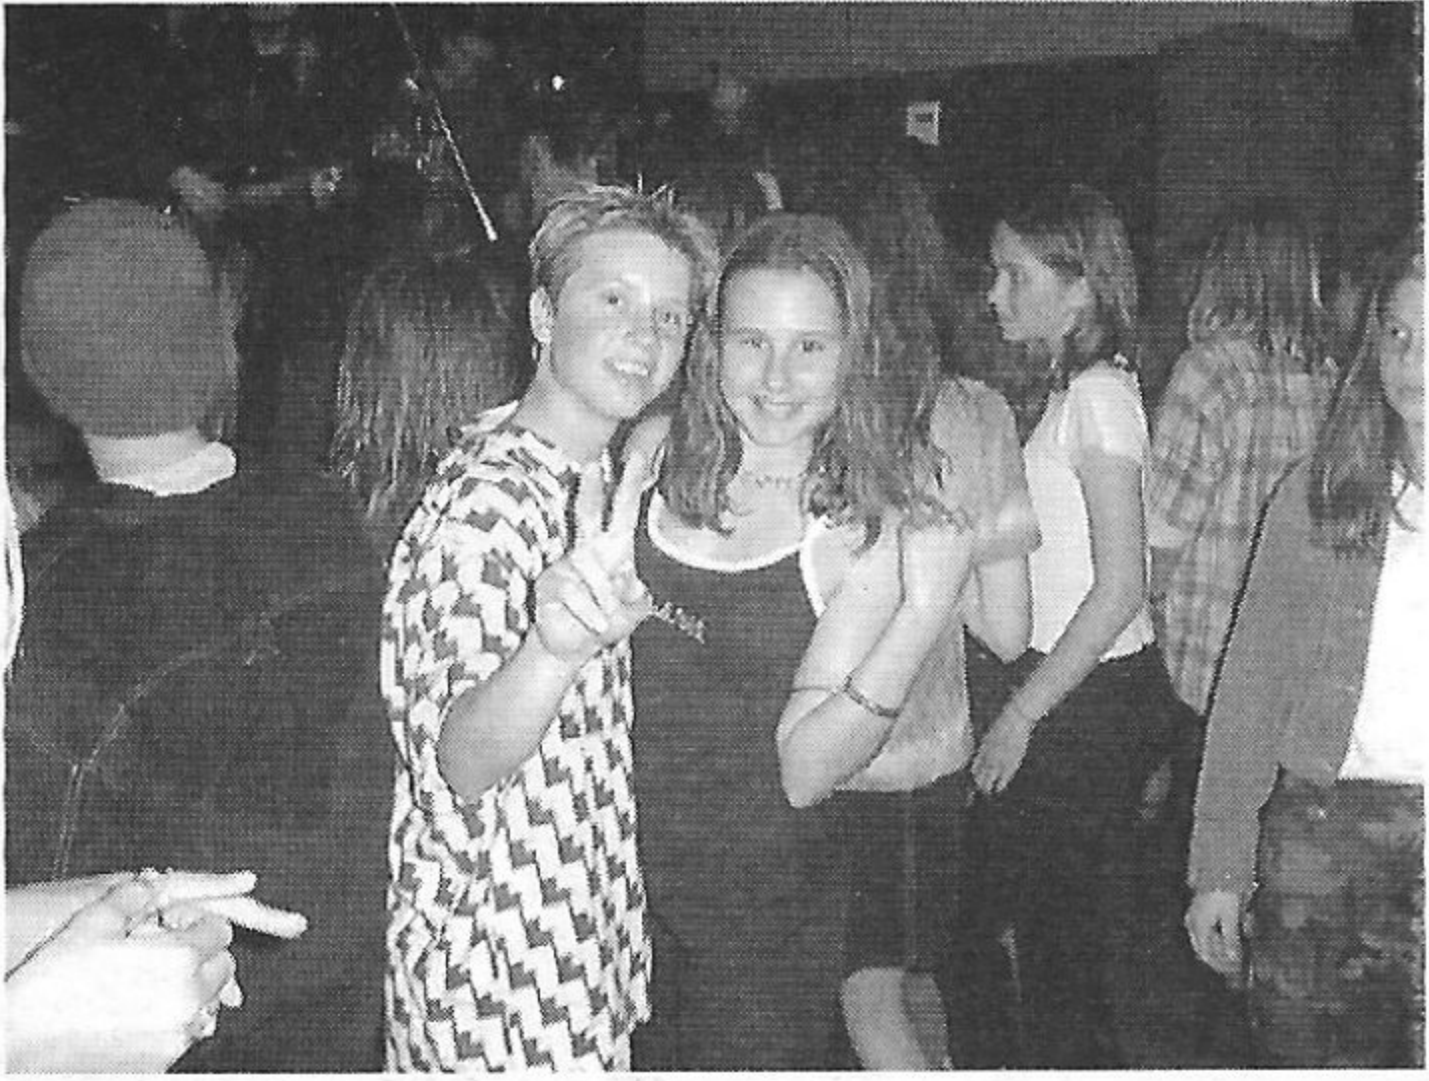

Next year I want to get writing properly - I hope to get a book published... Not that it would make any difference to most people. No-one reads books these days. Or so the cliched lament goes.

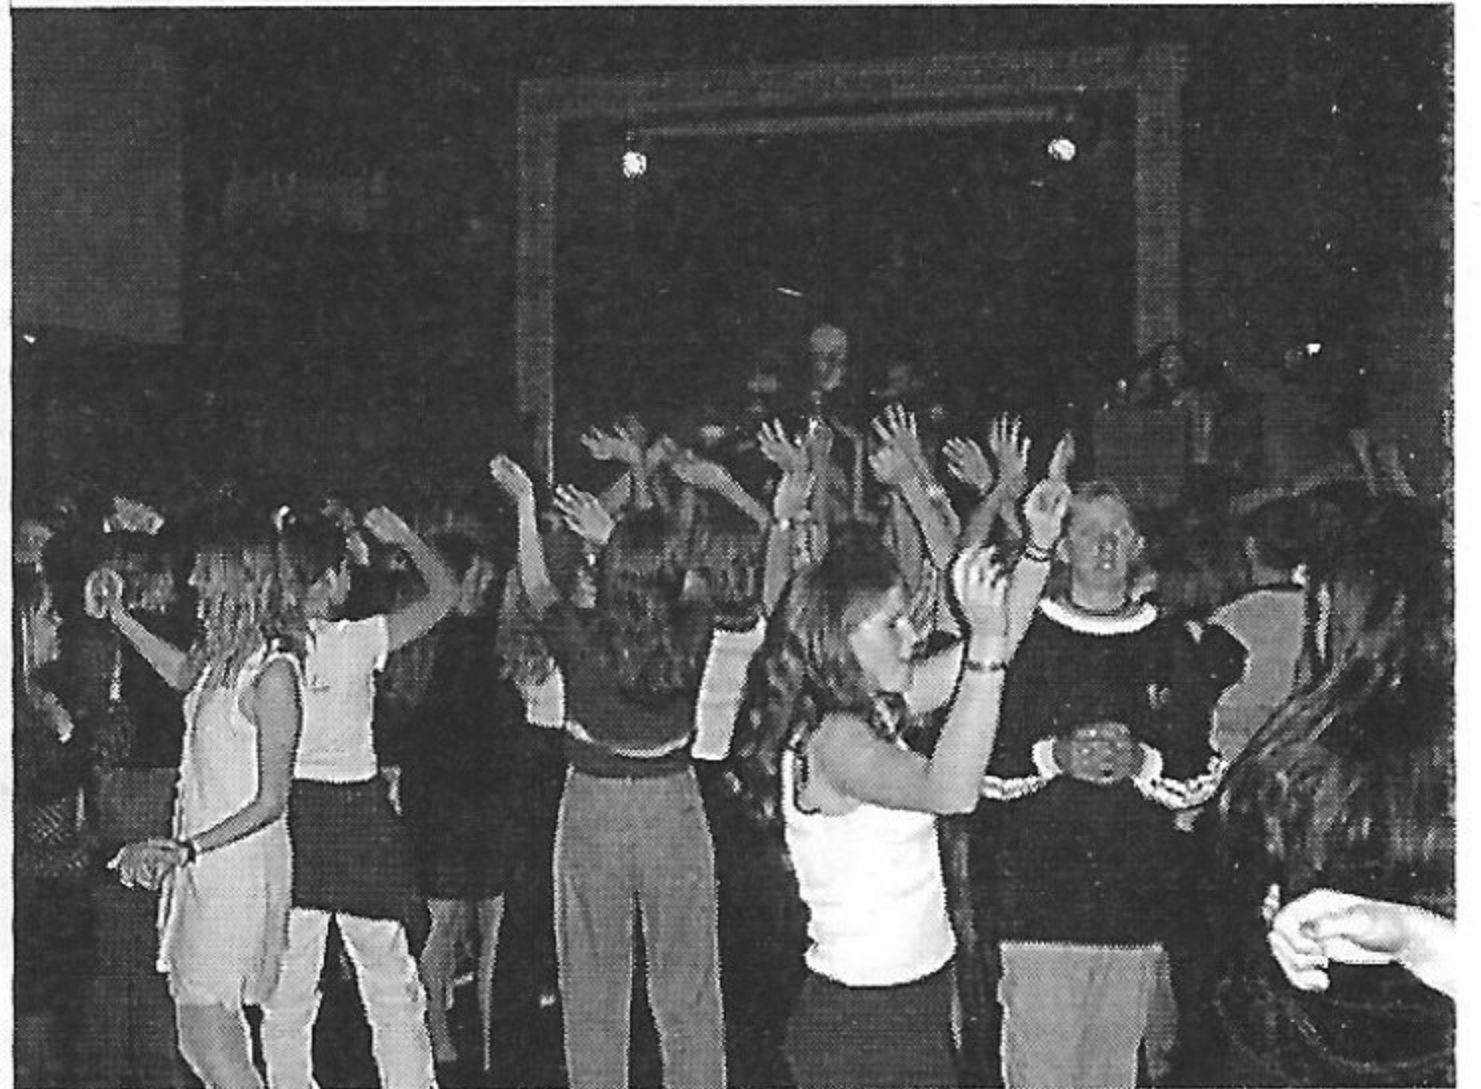

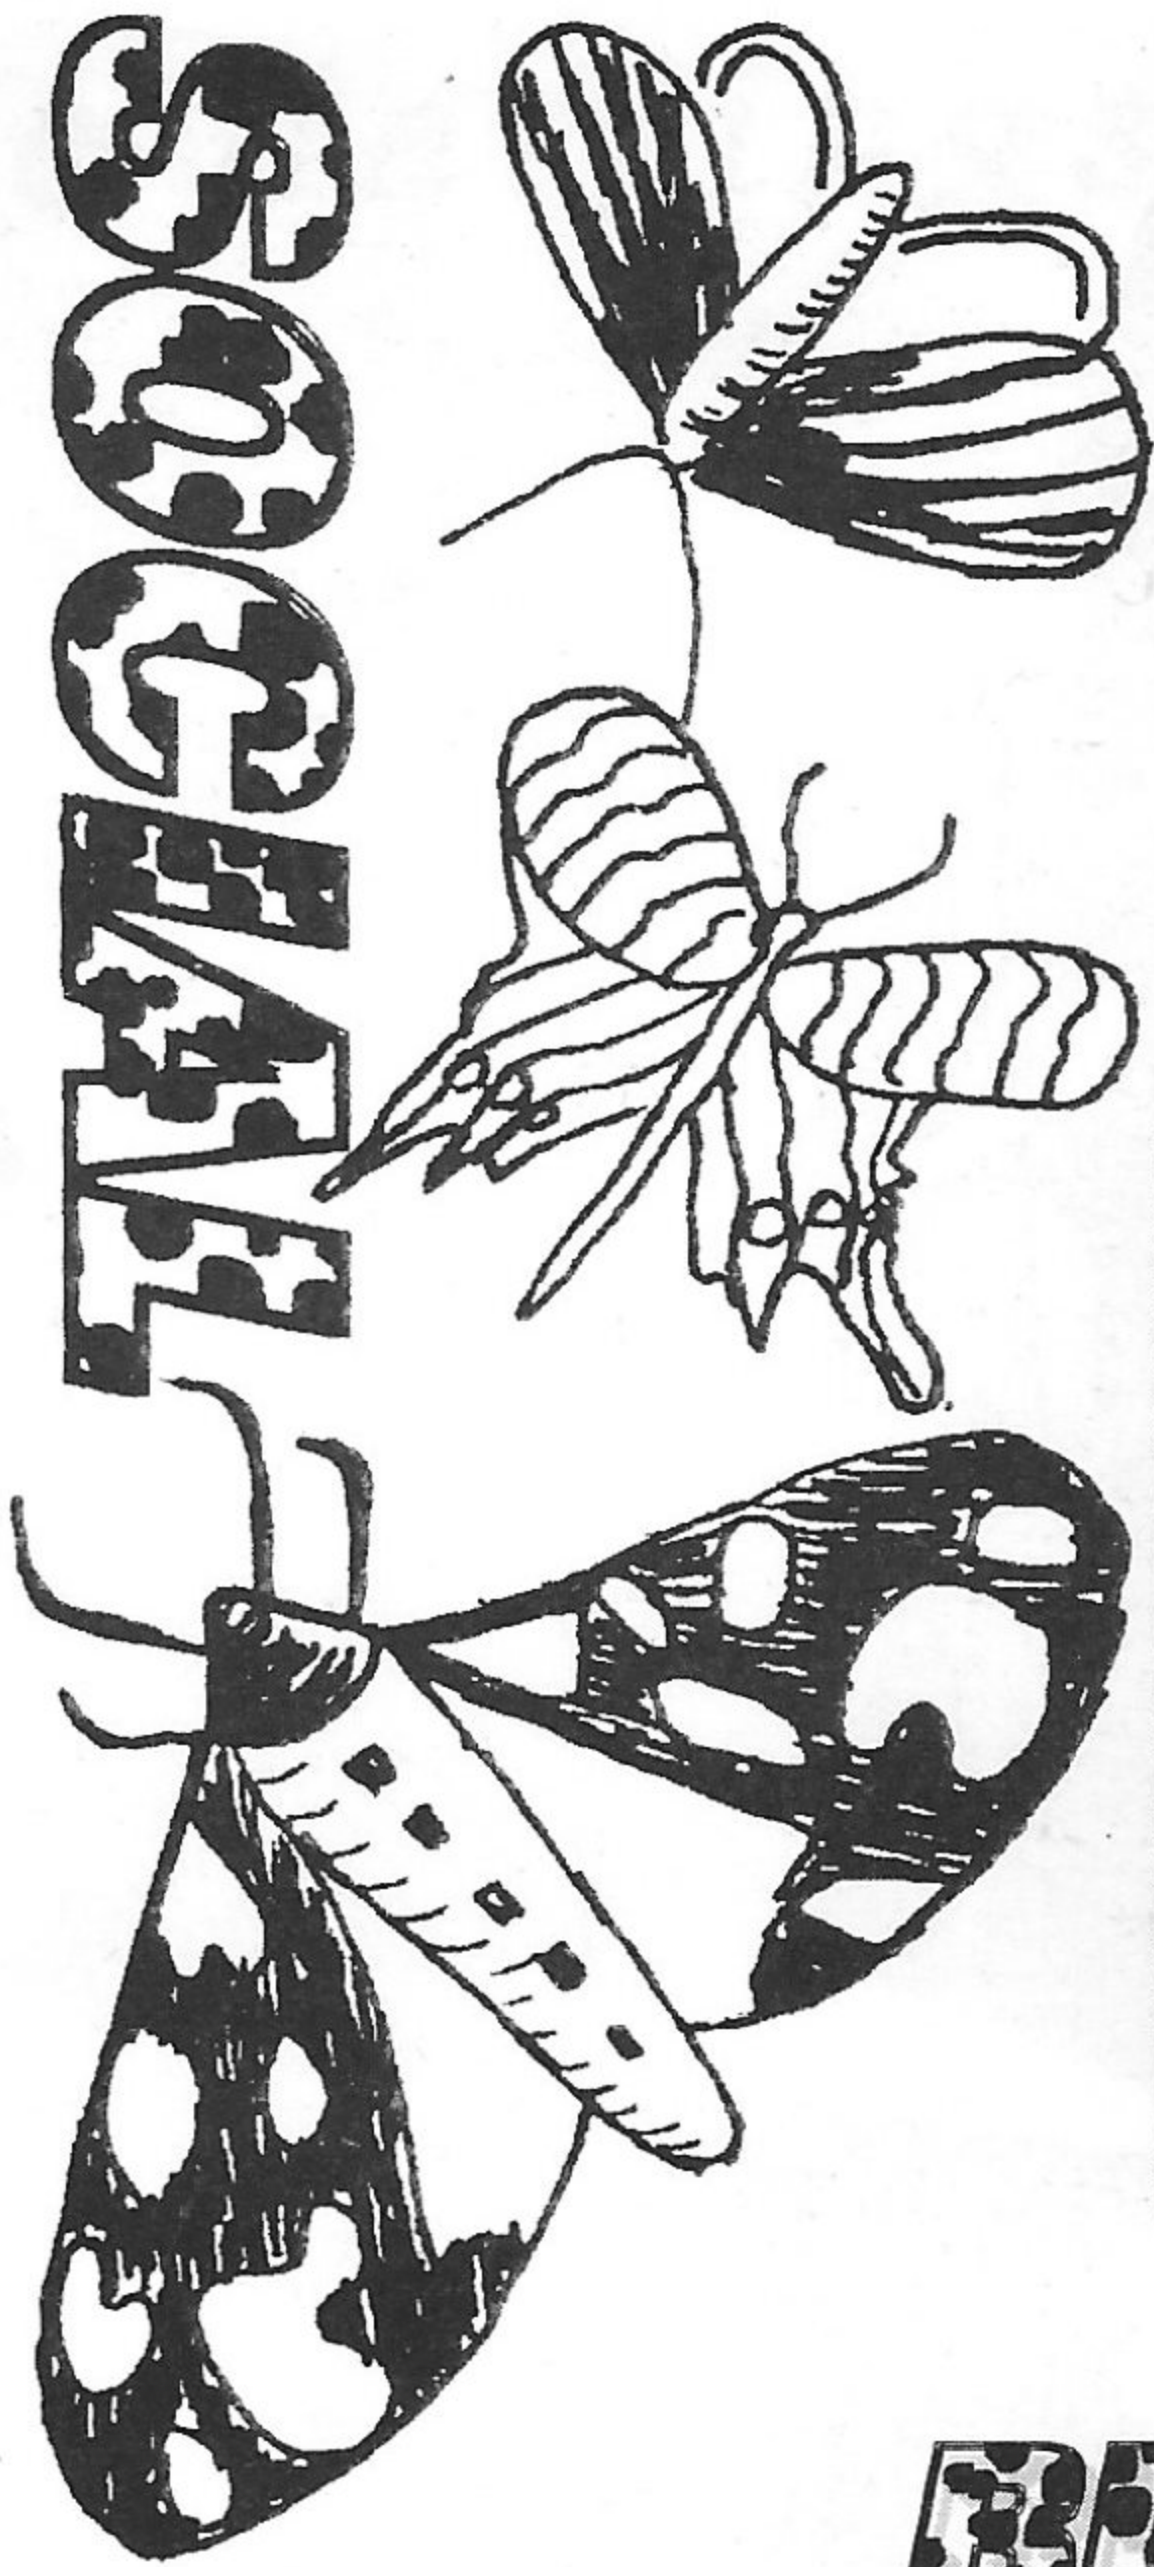

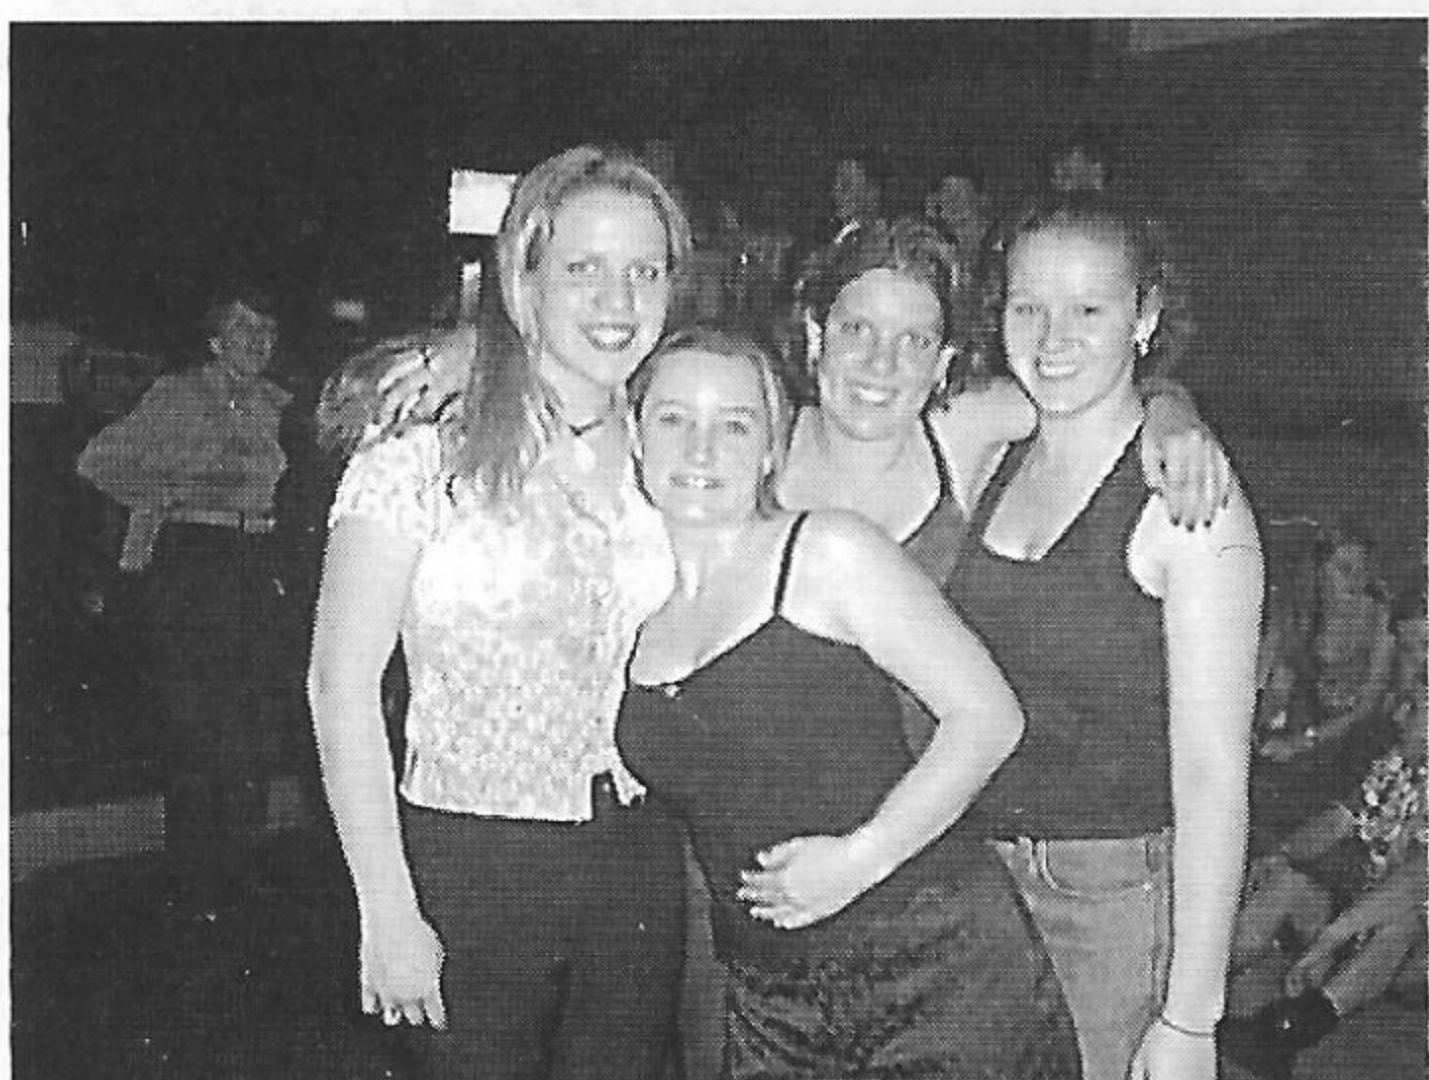

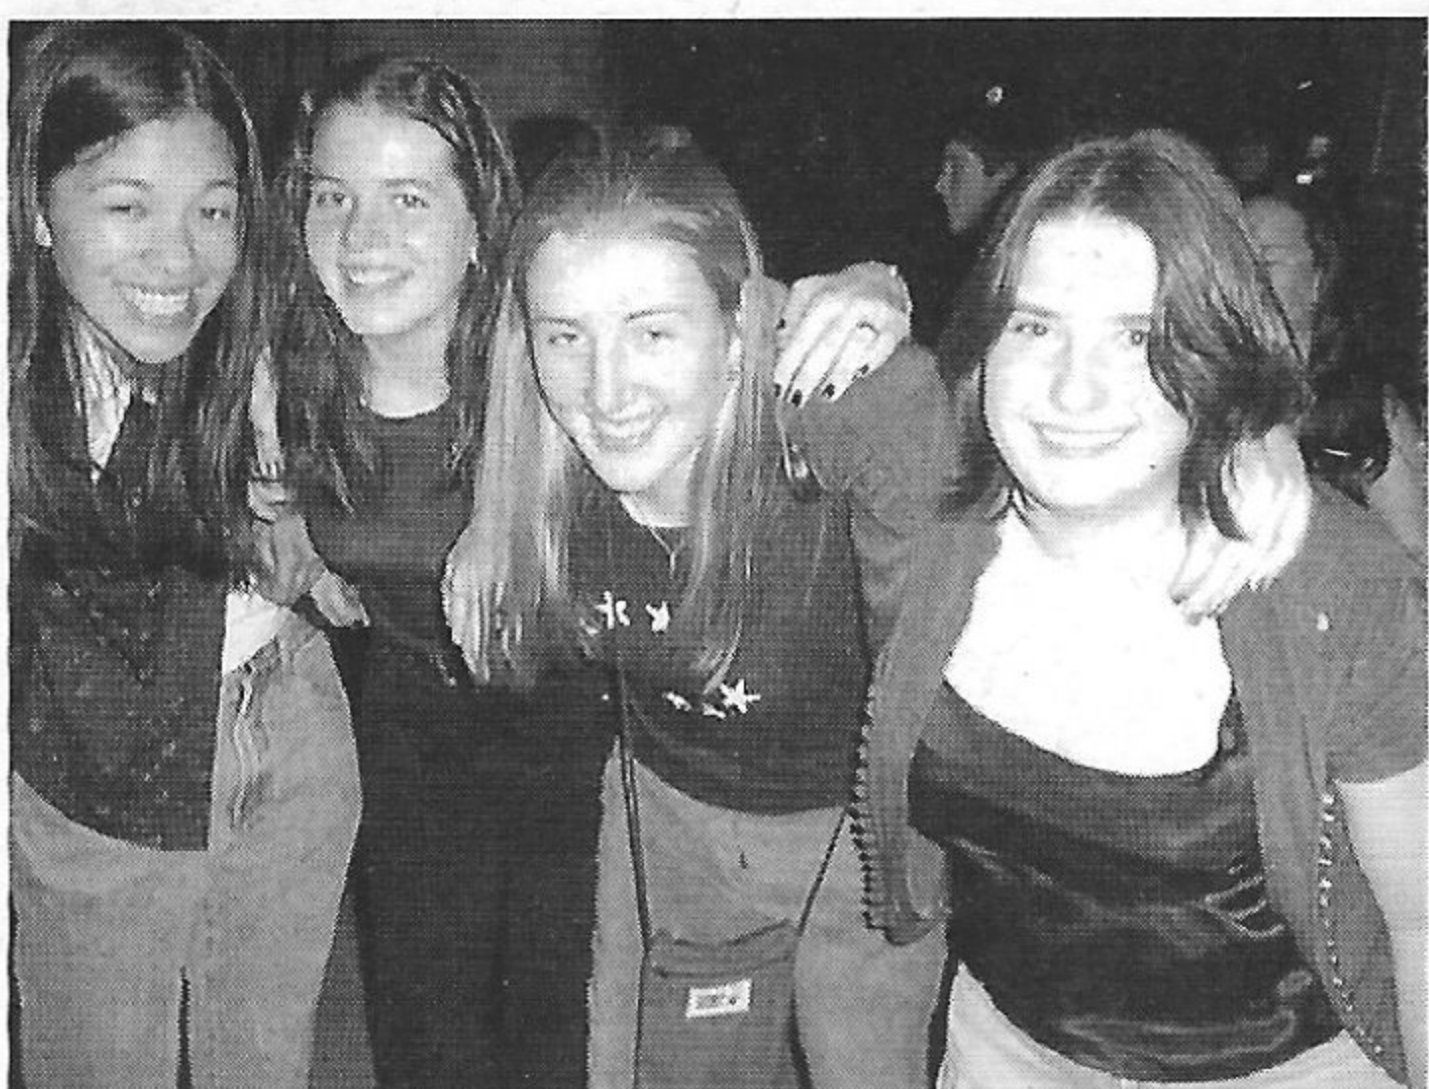

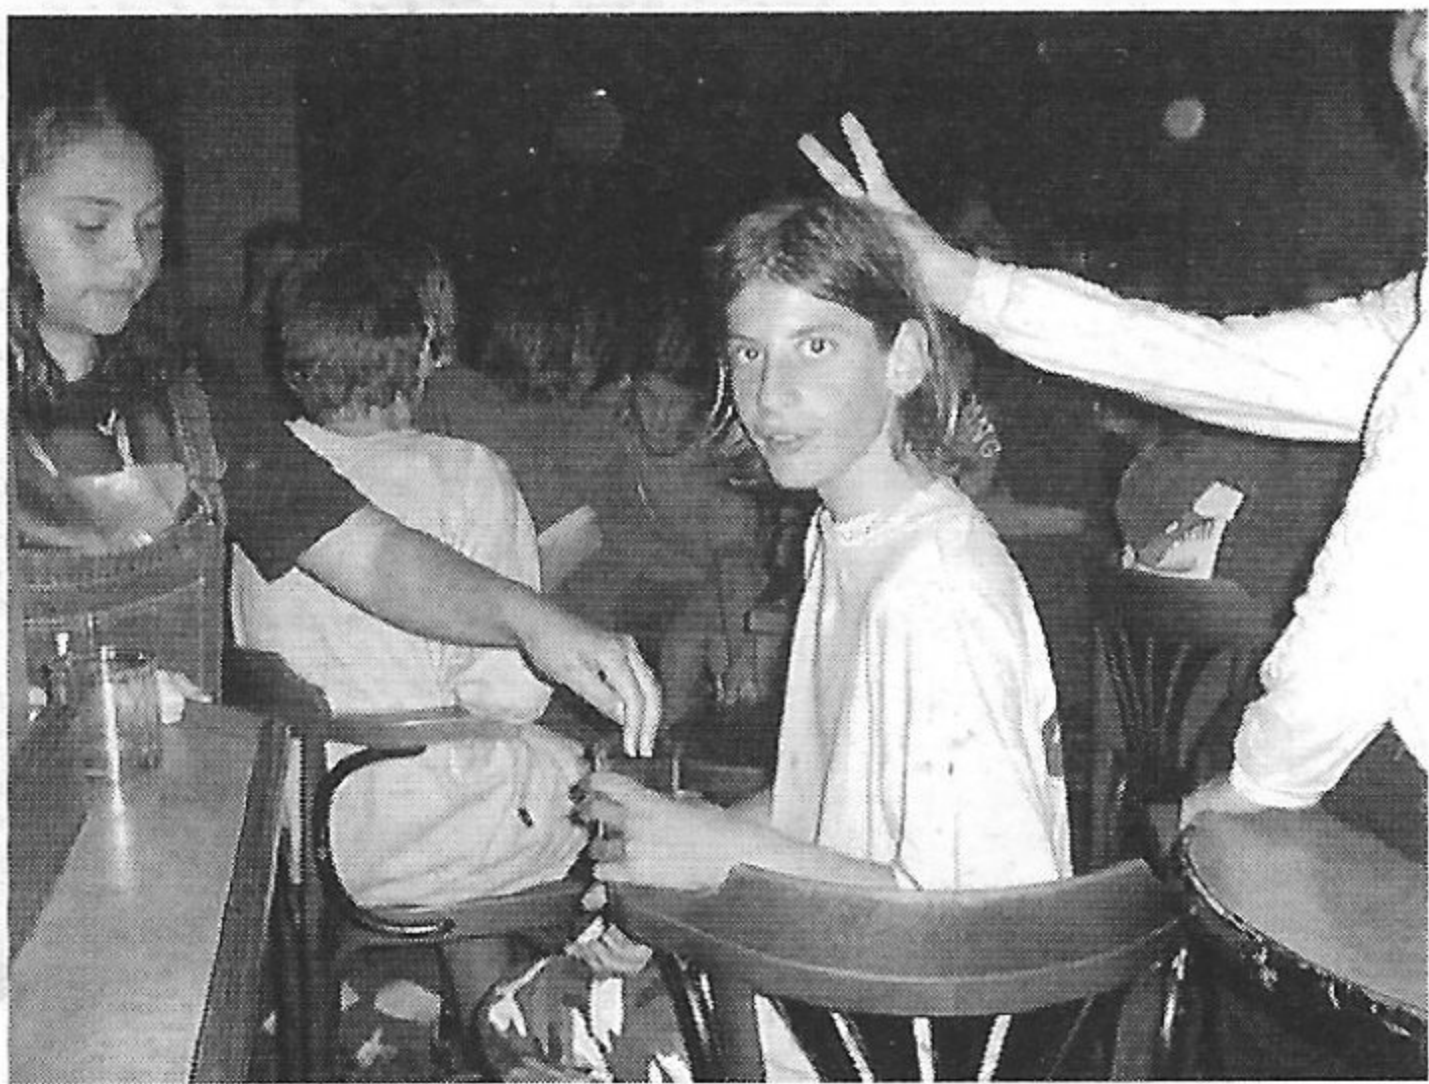

How the little darlings actually see us...
